

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

SEVENTIETH ANNUAL REPORT

OF THE

NEW YORK STATE LIBRARY.

REPORT.

To the Legislature of the State of New York :

The Regents of the University, Trustees of the State Library, pursuant to the provisions of law, hereby submit to you their seventieth annual report, covering the year ending September 30, 1887.

The following summary will show the additions that have been made to the library, and also its present condition:

At the beginning of the year October 1, 1886 :	Volumes.
In the general library .....	92,230
In the law library .....	38,575
Total .....	130,805

Added during the year ending September 30, 1887 :
To the general library .....	2,296
To the law library .....	1,292
Total .....	3,588

At the close of the year ending September 30, 1887 :
In the general library .....	94,526
In the law library .....	39,867
Total .....	134,393

Of the additions to the library :
Acquired by purchase .....	2,265
Acquired by donation and exchange .....	1,323
Total .....	3,588

During the past year the library has been compelled to remain in the temporary quarters which were provided for it. In consequence of the contracted space which it is allowed to occupy, it has been impossible to expand it as much as under other circumstances would be feasible. Some additional shelving, made necessary by the increase in the number of volumes, and additional store-room for duplicates have been constructed.

It is important to call the attention of the Legislature to the condition of the duplicates belonging to the library. When, in 1883, the old library building was torn down, it was expected that the new quarters for the library would be ready within a year. Under these circumstances a room was fitted up in the basement to hold the duplicate volumes belonging to the library and the legislative documents which are entrusted to the care of the library. Long ago that room was entirely filled and the material in it packed in such a way as to be in a great part inaccessible. It has come to be one of the most important duties of the trustees of the library to provide a new and suitable place for these duplicates. It is the purpose of the trustees to use the two pavilions which are over the rooms to be occupied by the library as places where the duplicate stock of the library may be kept. But a small amount of expenditure would be necessary to place one of these pavilions in order. This could be done without in any measure interfering with the work which may be done upon the general preparation of the rooms which are designed for the library. The room has been examined and an estimate of the cost of making the necessary fittings for the purposes intended has been made, and it is estimated that rough shelving and partitions, such as would be suitable for the purpose, could be put up for a sum not exceeding seven hundred dollars.

If this can be done, the relief occasioned will be very great. Not only will it be possible to arrange the material in such a way that it will be possible to obtain what is sought for, but the material will be safe from the destructive causes which now are inevitable.

It is interesting to mention that some additional manuscripts connected with those that the library before possessed, have been secured. Professor Jameson, of the Johns Hopkins University, found it necessary in his historical researches to have copies made of the manuscripts left by Usselinex. These were additional to the Usselinex manuscripts possessed by the State Library, to which Professor Jameson had had access. After completing his historical work, Professor Jameson offered to sell to the library the manuscripts of which he had obtained copies. These were purchased from him and are now added to those which the library already owned. They go far towards making complete the records of the early discoveries of this country which the library now possesses.

For the usual operations of the library during the year, the trustees refer to the reports made to them by the librarians. They desire to express their high appreciation of the assiduity and ability with which, under the present embarrassments, the work has been conducted. The absence for the entire year of Librarian Homes threw a great amount of extra work upon the others connected with the library. The want of Dr. Homes' experience and activity has been most severely felt; at the same time these have been very far supplemented by the activity of others.

Mention should be here made of the work which has been done during the past year upon the manuscripts in the possession of the State Library. Mr. Fernow has continued his services upon these manuscripts, and during the year has, under the authority of the Legislature, published a volume chiefly occupied with the military services of the citizens of the State during the Revolutionary War. This volume contains all that is known of the organization and composition of the regiments furnished by the State of New York in that war. The volume is already found to be of great interest and value to those who are studying the services of their ancestry in that great struggle.

During part of the past year Mr. George W. Kirchwey has been employed by the trustees in continuing and completing the work begun by Judge Clinton. This work, by the sudden death of Judge Clinton, was left in a condition which made it of very little use to historical investigators. Mr. Kirchwey is revising the calendar and index which Judge Clinton began. His work will render available the volume of manuscripts which compose the Clinton papers.

The trustees desire to make known to the Legislature the great loss which the library has sustained in the death of Dr. Henry A. Homes, the librarian of the general library. Dr. Homes was appointed an assistant in the State Library in 1854. Since that time he has devoted his time and energy to the management of this important trust. In 1857 he was appointed the librarian of the general library, Mr Alfred B. Street being at the same time appointed librarian of the law library alone. Since that time Dr. Homes has continued without change as the librarian of the general library up to the time of his death, November 3, 1887. Th trustees desire to express their great grief at the loss which the State has sustained, and their appreciation of the fidelity and ability with which he fulfilled his responsible duties. Since his death the trustees have received from all parts of the United States, and from European libraries, expressions of grief at the death of one who had come to be recognized as one of the chief librarians of the world.

H. R. PIERSON,

Chancellor.

REPORT OF THE ACTING LIBRARIAN OF THE GENERAL LIBRARY.

To the Regents of the University, Trustees of the State Library:

The number of volumes added to the general library during the twelve months ending September 30, 1887, is 2,296, making the whole number of volumes in this department of the library, 94,526. Of these 2,296 volumes, 1,449 were obtained by purchase and 847 by donation or exchange.

During the past year the library has been greatly strengthened in the accession of English historical works that enable the American genealogist to carry on the investigations of family history previous to the early colonizing of the country. Notable among these are a number of heralds' visitations, giving the pedigrees of many English families having descendants in the State. Several English county histories have also been obtained which are needed by visitors and authors in search of genealogical information. Histories of counties and towns in the United States, and genealogies of American families are being rapidly published and are secured as early as possible, not only because of their importance, but because, owing to small editions and a growing demand, their commercial value rapidly increases. Such books are regarded important on account of the great number of citizens who call for them and the intensity of the desire back of the application. Several works on social science and political economy have been added to meet the wants of members of the Legislature, and several technical works to assist particularly some of the departments engaged in the service of the State. The State Library has already one of the best and most complete collections extant of works relating to the civil war, and every regimental history, not already in the library, that offered itself for purchase during the past year, has been obtained. These works are also rapidly increasing in price and scarcity for the same reasons that affect the value of local histories.

Among the notable purchases of the year is, first, a large and valuable addition to the Usselinx manuscripts, so important to a correct understanding of the colonial history of this State. In the report for 1884, Dr. Homes, in speaking of the purchases made at the sale of the library of Mr. Henry C. Murphy, says: "The most numerous and valuable of the whole are copies of papers and reports of Willem Usselinx, never yet printed." The purchase here mentioned includes 404 pages of folio manuscript, which cover the period from 1614 to 1646. During the past year another and similar collection of manuscripts, being copies of original documents at The Hague, written by, or relating to, Usselinx, was purchased of Mr. J. F. Jameson, of Baltimore. This purchase, covering a period from 1618 to 1649, includes 454 folio and 136 quarto pages, and the whole has been bound in three substantial volumes. Another important acquisition, to shed light on the early discoveries of America, is a fac-simile of the so-called Borgian map of 1529, now in the Vatican library, a broad sheet, fifty-seven by twenty-four inches, mounted on cloth. A rare copy of Ptolemy's Geography of 1511, also secured, contains a map, of much interest to students of the progress of discovery in America. Of similar interest are the Riflessioni geografiche of Vitalis Terra Rossa, containing claims for Venetian nobles of pre-Columbian discoveries in the Western World.

Two notable gifts of books to the State Library have been made: from Hon. Henry R. Pierson, a collection of United States and New York documents and miscellaneous volumes to the number of 232, and 227 pamphlets; from Dr. David Murray, a collection of 245 Japanese books, and eighty-two other volumes and 141 pamphlets. Many of these Japanese books are illustrated, and among them are works geographical, historical and educational.

The want of room to accommodate the British patents has compelled the closing of a portion of the western corridor and the erection of shelving within the inclosure, which, it is expected, will be sufficient to contain the accessions until the new apartments are ready for occupancy.

There is still need of a type-writer copy of the greater portion of the catalogue of 1855, to be incorporated into the great manuscript catalogue of the library, so that by consulting one catalogue it may be ascertained if a given book is, or is not, in the library.

All which is respectfully submitted,

GEORGE R. HOWELL,

Acting Librarian.

APPENDIX II.

REPORT OF THE LIBRARIAN OF THE LAW LIBRARY.

STATE LIBRARY, November 10, 1887.

To the Regents of the University of the State of New York :

The number of volumes added to the law department of the library during the year ending September 30, 1887, is 1,292, which increases the total number of volumes in this department to 39,867. Of these 1,292 volumes, 816 were acquired by purchase, and 476 by donation and exchange.

The additions have been principally continuations of American and British reports, statutes, law periodicals and standard elementary works. The effort to supply deficiencies existing in the collection of American statute law has been continued, and has resulted in the addition of several rare volumes. Fifty-one collected volumes have been added to the collection of the proceedings of the boards of supervisors of the various counties of the State, which proceedings, by chapter 102 of the Laws of 1877, are required to be transmitted annually to the library by the clerks of the respective boards.

During the year an opportunity occurred whereby the British parliamentary papers for the sessions of 1842, 1843, 1852 to 1859, comprising 527 folio volumes, in good binding, were obtained for the library at a cost of less than the binding. The library is now in possession of these papers complete for the sessions of 1811 to 1832, 1842 to 1859, 1868 to 1886, making a collection of 2,200 folio volumes.

The use of the books in this department has been equal to the average use in previous years. More than the usual number of volumes have been delivered to the various State officers for temporary use in the discharge of their respective official duties.

Respectfully submitted,

STEPHEN B. GRISWOLD,

Librarian of the Law Library.

SEVENTY-FIRST ANNUAL REPORT

OF THE

NEW YORK STATE LIBRARY.

REPORT.

To the Legislature of the State of New York:

The Regents of the University, Trustees of the State Library, pursuant to the requirements of law, hereby submit to you their seventy-first annual report, covering the year ending September 30, 1888.

The chief event to be reported at this time in regard to the State Library is its expected transfer to the quarters provided by the State Legislature for its reception. The trustees of the library at their annual meeting in January, 1888, appointed a special committee, charged with the duty of bringing to the attention of the Legislature the subject of the completion of the rooms for the books of the State Library. This committee has labored with great earnestness and activity, and the progress of the work as we are now able to report it to you must be largely attributed to it. By chapter 578 of the Laws of 1888, an appropriation was made for finishing the rooms designed for the State Library. This law appointed the Lieutenant-Governor, the President pro tempore of the Senate, the Speaker of the Assembly and the Commissioner of the New Capitol as supervising commissioners for this work. These commissioners at once began the work of planning and pushing forward to completion the preparation of the rooms for the library. They appointed Mr. Melvil Dewey, the librarian of the library of Columbia College, as their consulting librarian. Under his enthusiastic zeal and the care and fidelity of Commissioner Perry, the work has made great progress. At the time the Legislature will have met the rooms for the law library will be entirely finished, and we hope that the books of that department may be transferred to the place permanently designed for them. The work on the remaining part of the library is being pushed forward, and in a few weeks it is expected that the whole will be ready for occupancy.

In devising the plans it early became evident that it would be a great addition to the conveniences of the library if the rooms now occupied by the Regents of the University for their offices could be consolidated with the rooms already designed for the library. The entire west front of the Capitol on the third floor, from Washington avenue to State street, would then be a succession of rooms and alcoves for the use of the library.

The Regents of the University, who are trustees of the State Library, saw at once the importance of making this change. They unanimously, therefore, by a resolution passed at their semi-annual meeting in July, agreed to surrender the rooms that were then in their possession, taking instead the rooms upon the fourth floor. The library is now being fitted up with the purpose of occupying the entire space on the third floor, and a portion of the space above. The Regents will have for their offices the rooms directly over the ones now occupied by them.

The current operations of the library have gone forward with the usual regularity and activity. During the time when the work of preparing new rooms was in progress, it seemed to the trustees unwise to take any steps for filling the vacancy that was occasioned by the death of Dr. Homes, the librarian of the general library. That vacancy still exists.

The work in the general library has been performed by the chief assistant, Mr. G. R. Howell, who has acted as librarian. His report and that of Mr. S. B. Griswold, the librarian of the law library, are referred to for the details of the work that has been done. With the small amount of space available, it has been impossible to carry forward the increase in the books with as much activity as would have been otherwise possible. The system of exchanges, by which a large part of this increase is attained, has been in a great measure suspended owing to the crowded condition of the rooms in which the duplicates are kept.

No appropriation having been made for continuing the work upon the Clinton papers, that part of the operations of the library was discontinued when the old appropriation had been exhausted. It had been attempted to make a calendar of the papers from the beginning, and then to make an index by means of which reference might be made to any subject treated in these papers. Very material progress has been made in this work, but it is not yet completed and consequently is not in a condition to be made use of by those who wish to consult the papers. Whenever this can again be taken up no very great length of time will be required to put this important series of historical papers in a condition where they can be available for those who desire to consult them.

The accumulation of historical manuscripts in the library is a very notable portion of the collections. The library already contains the Sir William Johnson papers, the Vermont manuscripts, the Daniel D. Tompkins papers, the George Clinton papers, and the papers transferred to the State Library from the offices of the Comptroller and Secretary of State by chapter 120 of the Laws of 1887. In the arrangements for the rooms of the library, the trustees designed to make adequate provision for the care and completion of the work upon these historical papers. The collection of works in the library largely pertains to American history, and especially to the history of the portion of the United States now included in the State of New York. It may fairly be said of the library, to be one of its important functions to gather into one locality as many of the papers relating to the early history of the State and country as may be possible.

In connection with this subject, the trustees desire to report that in the last supply bill there was included an appropriation of $800 for the purpose of procuring copies of manuscripts relating to the early history of the country, which are now in the National Library at Paris, and in the national archives of the French government. A list of desirable papers was furnished to the trustees, and from these a selection was made and orders given for the copies which the library might make use of. A very considerable number of these papers have already been furnished, and the entire appropriation has been exhausted.

It is earnestly recommended that an additional appropriation of $500 be made for the purpose of procuring copies of some of the papers still remaining. It is very desirable that the State Library should contain as much of the material as possible relating to the early history of this country. The manuscript material in European libraries is a source, to a great extent as yet unexplored, of the events connected with the discovery and exploration of America. The State Library has already a very considerable stock of these historical documents, and it is one of the ends to which the policy of the library has been directed to equip it well with material bearing on American history.

The following is a list of the papers which have already been furnished:

1. Extrait du Journal des Services principaux de Paul Jones.
2. Mémoire sur les limites des colonies.
3. Relation des fêtes de Paris à l'occasion des victoires remportées en Amérique.
4. Mémoires politiques et militaires du chevalier de Ricard à l'occasion de la guerre d'Amérique, 1<sup>re</sup> tome.

APPENDIX I.

REPORT OF THE ACTING LIBRARIAN OF THE GENERAL LIBRARY.

To the Regents of the University, Trustees of the State Library:

The number of volumes added to the general library during the twelve months ending September 30, 1888, is 2,434, making the whole number of volumes in this department of the library 96,960. Of these 2,434 volumes, 1,432 were obtained by purchase, and 1,002 by gift or exchange.

During the past year the library has been greatly strengthened in the acquisition of books on American history. This class of literature necessarily embraces works on prehistoric America, early discoveries, colonization and national, State, county and town history and biography, to the present day. Of these the most frequently and eagerly sought for by readers from all parts of the State are local histories and genealogies. The aim in purchasing, therefore, has been to secure all of the latter class of works as promptly as possible, inasmuch as every year adds to their commercial value. Such works as are of direct assistance to the various departments of the State government have been purchased to a moderate extent, and in their purchase regard has been had to the limited appropriation for the purchase of books and to the general instructions of the Regents in the building up of the library. A moderate purchase has also been made to supplement the encyclopedias on several subjects, such as electricity, political economy, literary history, costume and practical science. Long existing deficiencies in periodicals indexed in Poole's Index, and therefore frequently sought for, have in several works been supplied and the sets made perfect. Regimental histories relating to the civil war of 1861-65 are purchased as opportunity is presented, and the collection of the State Library on this subject is believed to be equal to that of any public library in existence.

The use of reference books in this department of the library has been gradually increasing, and must increase still more in the larger and more commodious apartments now being provided. The larger number of rooms thrown open to the public will require a corresponding increase of the staff of the library. The work of preparing a new subject index, which is recommended to be printed in 1890, should be begun during the coming year, and I would suggest that this should embody with the manuscript index of 1882 to 1889 the supplementary index published in 1882. Or, what might be still better, to incorporate the printed subject indexes of 1872 and 1882 with all subsequent manuscript additions into one volume.

All which is respectfully submitted.

GEORGE R. HOWELL,

Acting Librarian.

APPENDIX II.

REPORT OF THE LIBRARIAN OF THE LAW LIBRARY.STATE LIBRARY, December 1, 1888.To the Regents of the University of the State of New York :

The number of volumes added to the law department of the library during the year ending September 30, 1888, is 1,364, which increases the total number of volumes in this department to 41,231. Of these 1,364 volumes, 866 were acquired by purchase, and 498 by donation and exchange.

The character of the books added has not varied materially from that of former years, a large part being continuations of American, British and Colonial reports, statutes, state papers, law periodicals and standard elementary works. The purchases have been strictly confined to those classes of books which your honorable body has, from time to time, indicated as desirable to be added to the library.

The effort to supply deficiencies existing in the collections of American statute law and law periodicals has been continued, and has resulted in the addition of nearly fifty rare volumes to these collections. It is not possible, within the limits of the present annual appropriation for the purchase of books, to purchase within any one year more than fifty of the volumes needed to supply existing deficiencies in the library collections.

The library is now in possession of the British parliamentary papers complete for the sessions of 1811 to 1832, 1842 to 1859, 1868 to 1886, making a collection of over 2,200 folio volumes. Since the session of 1868 these papers have been obtained by annual subscription. The sessions prior to 1868 have been obtained by purchase in large lots, as opportunity occurred, and paid for out of special appropriations made therefor by the Legislature. There is now an opportunity to purchase in London these papers for the years 1860 to 1867, comprising 523 folio volumes, for a sum which, together with the charges for transportation, will amount to about seven hundred dollars. In view of the fact that the addition of these years will complete the library collection of these papers from the year 1842 to the present time, the importance of obtaining them becomes apparent. The librarian would, therefore, recommend that an application be made to the next Legislature, by your honorable body, for a special appropriation of $700 for the purchase of these papers for the sessions of 1860 to 1867, inclusive.

During the past ten weeks, in addition to the ordinary service in the library, about 15,000 volumes have been dusted, rearranged by the librarian and assistants, and the entire law library put in readiness for its removal to the new apartments—an event which will gladden the hearts of those for whose use the library is maintained, and who have been subjected to most serious inconvenience during the five years of its occupancy of the present temporary quarters.

Respectfully submitted.

STEPHEN B. GRISWOLD,

Librarian of the Law Library.

OF THE

To the Legislature of the state of New York:

I have the honor to submit herewith, pursuant to law, as the 72d annual report of the Regents of the University on the New York State Library the report of the director of the library with appendices.

GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS

Chancellor

REPORT OF DIRECTOR OF STATE LIBRARY

To the Regents of the University of the State of New York :

I have the honor to submit the following brief report of progress in the library during the year ending September 30, 1889:

Size and growth.

Building.—As will be apparent to the committee, not a little work which it was hoped to do still remains undone. The veto of the appropriations made by the legislature for completing the library rooms made it necessary to suspend work just on the eve of its completion. Our floors are uncovered, our heating, lighting and ventilation incomplete, our elevators not running, our entrance stairs unbuilt, and our rooms are furnished only with odds and ends picked up for temporary use. It is impossible till the building is made more available to make any substantial progress in our main plans. Meanwhile we carry on the routine work, help readers as well as we can under the circumstances, and use every spare minute in preparing catalogues and getting ready for the active use of the library, which seems assured as soon as we can make ready for it. We have however moved all the books of the law and general library into their new quarters where they are safely stored. Though embarrassed in our daily work by the presence of workmen and by annoying delays, we fully realize that the commission in charge and the capitol commissioner have done all in their power to meet our wishes and we are suffering our present embarrassments with patient hope for the future.

Removal.—In spite of serious difficulties in occupying unfinished rooms we promptly moved all the law books from the golden corridor to the new shelving provided in the north end of the new library. After these the books of the general library were moved into the south stack, and the temporary quarters were vacated a day before we had promised the rooms for the use of the second division of the Court of Appeals. Protection against injury and theft, and convenience in handling made it economy to put into cheap boxes the many thousand quarto volumes of the colonial and natural history which had been stored in a half-dozen places on the second floor. Every volume was thus boxed and moved to the fifth story where the duplicate department is to be established.

There remain nearly 100,000 volumes in the basement of the capitol more exposed to injury than any others. The need for other state use of the rooms where the other books were stored made it imperative that they should be moved first. We have now to deal with the fact that the books which were being ruined by heat are still unprotected. The importance can not be overestimated of getting these into safe quarters at once, and I respectfully urge that an appropriation for fitting up the necessary shelving be asked from the legislature at the opening of the next session.

Laws of 1889, ch. 529, § 18 is as follows:

"The regents shall have charge of the preparation, publication and distribution, whether by sale, exchange or gift, of the colonial history, natural history and all other state publications not otherwise assigned by law. To guard against the waste or destruction of state publications, and to provide for the completion of sets to be permanently preserved in American and foreign libraries, the regents shall maintain in the State Library a duplicate department, to which each state department, board or bureau, shall send not less than five copies of each of its publications when issued, and after completing its distribution, any remaining copies which it no longer requires. The above publications, with any other books and pamphlets not needed in the State Library, shall constitute the duplicate department, and the rules for sale, exchange or distribution from it shall be fixed by the regents, who shall use all receipts from such exchanges or sales for the increase of the State Library."

There is almost daily demand from American and foreign libraries for books which this duplicate department can furnish, and its claims must be added to those of the books now being slowly burned.

Books.—We have not begun any systematic buying but have merely kept up the old lines. Next year our more than doubled appropriation will enable us to make substantial additions. We have arranged to buy serials, American books and foreign books from three thoroughly responsible firms who will serve us better and at large reductions from the prices heretofore paid. Recommendation slips (of which a sample is attached) have been provided and a complete system for thorough but economical work in the ordering and receiving department has been devised. The library receives by the fast Cunard and North German Lloyd steamers each week the latest books and serials from England and the continent, and a regular box of new American publications is to come weekly from New York. Periodicals and books which under the old system came only once or twice a year will now be available in the State library at once on publication and at less expense than formerly.

Staff.—Mr B. Fernow's ($1,500) resignation took effect April 1 and Mr James Boynton's ($1,300) on May 1. By reorganizing, redistributing and systemizing the work we shall be able to accomplish quite as much as before and save these salaries, or $2,800 a year.

This sum will help materially in paying the new employes which our enlarged quarters and new facilities make absolutely necessary. The mere safety of the books requires a much larger force in our more than 20 rooms than sufficed in the three old ones. As the $10,000 in the supply bill for meeting these expenses was vetoed, it becomes necessary to defer much of our important work and to postpone the real opening of the library quarters for one year longer than we planned.

With the money left because of the death of Dr Homes and the resignation of Messrs Fernow and Boynton, we have been able to employ three pages at $150, $240, and $300 a year, a catalogue librarian at $2,000 and five assistants at $800 each.

The work accomplished since April 1 has been wholly satisfactory. In the general library about 60,000 volumes have been given their proper places in a scheme of about 5,000 topics. All these have been inventoried and a shelf list and subject catalogue in book form have been written.

Till this inventory is completed we can give only an estimate as to the number of books missing. There has been no shelf list heretofore and no systematic inventory. The inventory which I ordered in the law library has been taken by the sub-librarian and is given as appendix 4. Its result is very gratifying when we consider how many years are covered in the trifling losses.

Manuscripts and historical records.—The work resigned by Berthold Fernow on April 1 was at once taken up by librarian George R. Howell, who was given entire charge of this department. A separate locked room has been set apart for manuscripts and it is hoped that we shall be able to complete in due time the needed indexes to the great mass of valuable manuscript matter in our charge.

Use.—No effort whatever has been made to increase the use of the library, nor is it really practicable till our rooms are completed and our books catalogued and classified. We try to do the best possible under the circumstances with the readers who come to us but shall not consider the library running on the new system till we are fairly settled in our new quarters. It is however gratifying to find that in spite of annoyances and inconveniences the number of readers is steadily increasing. Inevitably any radical changes must be confusing to old users of the library, just as a housewife would find herself less ready in putting her hands on any given bottle if the random grouping on the shelves to which she had been long accustomed should be changed into the rigid and scientific order of the pharmacist. Yet no one doubts the wisdom of adopting a proper order when the number of bottles, boxes and jars becomes very large, as in a drug store.

This library has now become so large that it is a matter of necessity to reorganize it on a more comprehensive plan, and its future growth is sure to be so rapid that this plan should not require expensive modifications when a generation or two later we shall have upwards of a million books.

Association of State Librarians.—On May 8-11, 1889, there was held, in connection with the annual meeting of the American Library Association in St. Louis, a convention of state librarians at which 25 states were represented by their librarians or by proxies. After mature deliberation it was deemed wise by all present to found a permanent association, and a constitution was adopted and plans were made which promise to be of great practical utility to state library interests. Your director, by vote of the Library committee, attended as your representative and was honorably and unanimously elected to the presidency of the new association. The new interest and activity resulting from this organization will certainly have a favorable effect on the future of our own library.

Visits to other libraries.—Beside visiting several state libraries in the southwest, I spent my summer vacation in inspecting anew the leading libraries of Scotland, England and Paris. Our catalogue librarian, Mr. W. S. Biscoe, accompanied me throughout the trip, and together we brought back much more information and material than would have been possible to either alone. We visited over 50 libraries beside the museums and universities. No time spent for the state library since my election will be more profitable in the end than that given to the personal study of the methods of many of the best libraries abroad. It was also our privilege to attend the annual meeting of the Library Association of the United Kingdom at its London meeting, Oct. 2-4. Beside the practical lessons to be learned from a study of foreign methods, I was able to arrange for a large number of very valuable exchanges, and for gifts to the state library which could not have been secured except by this personal effort.

General library interests.— During the past year the following votes have been placed on the official minutes of the regents :

Dec. 12, 1888. Resolved, That hereafter the secretary and treasurer of the board be given general charge and direction of the state library with the title of secretary and director of the state library, and that Mr George R. Howell be continued as librarian in immediate charge of the general library, and Mr S. B. Griswold be continued as librarian in immediate charge of the law library, each to act under the supervision and direction of the secretary and director as aforesaid.

Jan. 9, 1889. Resolved, That the books, maps, pamphlets and other material now composing the museum library be transferred to the New York State Library.

Jan. 10, 1889. At the close of the secretary's address the following preamble and resolution was presented from the University Convocation of 1888.

Whereas, This Convocation believes that the time has come when certain of our public libraries should be recognized as an essential part of the state system of higher education, and as properly a factor with the academies and colleges in the composition of the University of the State of New York ; and,

Whereas, To secure to the state the full advantages of such recognition, it is necessary that proper provision should be made by the state for advisory supervision and guidance of existing institutions and for stimulating the formation of new libraries ; therefore,

Resolved, That this convocation requests the regents of the University to take such action as may seem to them expedient for giving to such libraries as their official inspection shall show to be worthy the distinction, their proper place as a part of our state system of higher education.

On motion it was unanimously

Resolved, That the regents heartily approve the request of the University Convocation of 1888, that such libraries as may be found worthy the distinction shall be officially recognized as a part of the University of the State of New York, and given a seat in the University Convocation.

Resolved, That the officers of this board be directed to submit to the regents at their next meeting plans for determining what libraries are entitled to the proposed recognition and for carrying into effect the proposition of the Convocation so far as existing laws permit.

Resolved, That the Chancellor and the committee on legislation be requested to procure any needed legislation to enable the regents to comply fully with the request of the Convocation for the official recognition of certain libraries as a part of the University of the State of New York.

Free public libraries.—The Superintendent of Public Instruction introduced and supported the following resolutions which the regents adopted Mar. 12, 1889:

Resolved, That the board is of the opinion that legislation is needed looking to the building up of township public libraries throughout the state: that a distinction should be drawn between libraries for the use of schools and public libraries for the general use of the people; that the former should be managed and directed through school officers and teachers and supported from public school moneys while the latter should be supported through the joint action of the state and the several cities, villages or townships and should be placed under the charge of this board and in connection with the work of the State Library.

Resolved, That the committee on legislation be requested to seek legislation making provisions for the establishment and maintenance of such free public libraries.

The new law has provided fully for the admission to the University of such libraries as the regents shall find worthy the honor. May I respectfully urge that the interests of the State Library as the natural center of general library interests of the state, demand that at the next session of the legislature there should be passed a satisfactory law for founding new libraries, and for a wiser use of the $50,000 a year granted by the state for the district public libraries, which, as pointed out by the Superintendent of Public Instruction, should properly be connected officially with the State Library.

I submit the reports of the three librarians and the usual list of additions for the year, and also as appendix 5 a separate report on the Library School, as made to the chairman of the Library committee, July 10, with alterations bringing it up to Sept. 30.

Looking back over the nine months since my election as director, I must report the result of the year's work, in spite of the unexpected drawbacks in the completion of the rooms, as a very satisfactory beginning of the great task before us.

Respectfully submitted

MELVIL DEWEY

APPENDIX I

REPORT OF THE LIBRARIAN OF THE GENERAL LIBRARY

ALBANY, December 9, 1889.

TO MELVIL DEWEY, Director of New York State Library,

SIR:—The number of volumes apparently added to the general library during the year ending September 30, 1889, is 779, of which 491 were by purchase and 288 by gift or exchange. The actual number added during this year is greater than this by several hundred, though not more than half the number annually added during the last ten years.

The additions have been mostly works of American history and genealogy.

The collection of manuscripts has been put in such order as is possible on the temporary shelving provided. Of these about 25 volumes, mostly from the Stevens papers, need to be bound soon to prevent loss or injury.

Since removal to the present quarters there has been an increased use of the library, and a still larger use is anticipated when the great central room with its ample accommodations shall have been completed and furnished.

REPORT OF CATALOGUE DEPARTMENT

December 10, 1889.

To MELVIL DEWEY, Director of New York State Library:

I submit herewith the condition of the cataloguing work at the present time:

ACCESSION DEPARTMENT.

The work of entering books on the new accession book was begun Sept. 18; 1,804 volumes have been since recorded.

ORDER DEPARTMENT.

The first orders completely recorded by the new system were sent to our regular agents Nov. 11; 203 orders have been sent and 127 received.

CARD CATALOGUE DEPARTMENT.

The regular cataloguing work was begun Nov. 1; 1,502 cards, 665 author, 169 title and 668 subject, have been written and placed in the new catalogues.

SHELF DEPARTMENT AND CLASSIFICATION.

In this department is included most of the work thus far done. The large alphabet of books in the general library has been roughly classified and arranged on the shelves and an inventory made. This was done before Oct. 1 and includes 58,349 volumes. A tabulated list appended shows the number of books thus recorded in each of the 100 divisions and a summary for each of the 10 classes of the classification. Since Oct. 1, 19,837 volumes have been classified and entered on the inventory.

REPORT OF THE LAW LIBRARIAN

ALBANY, November 20, 1889.

TO MELVIL DEWEY, Director of New York State Library,

SIR:—1,166 volumes have been added to the law library during the year ending September 30, 1889, of which 528 were acquired by purchase and 638 by gift and exchange.

The additions have been principally continuations of American and British reports, statutes, law periodicals and standard elementary works. During the year ten rare volumes have been added to the collection of constitutional journals and debates, and several rare volumes of session laws have also been secured. 83 volumes, with an index thereto, prepared by the sub-librarian, have been added to the collection of New York Court of Appeals cases, which increases the number of volumes in the collection to 1,243. This collection is much consulted, and is one of the most important in the library.

I respectfully renew the recommendation contained in my report to the regents a year ago, that the British parliamentary papers for the sessions of 1860 to 1867 be bought at the first favorable opportunity. This would complete the library set of these papers from 1842 to the present time.

I also recommend that the effort to supply existing deficiencies in the collections of statute law and law periodicals be continued until these collections are as complete as it is possible to make them.

Respectfully submitted

REPORT ON THE LIBRARY SCHOOL

To the Hon. HENRY R. PIERSON, LL. D., Chairman of the Library committee:

At the meeting of the regents on Jan. 12, 1889, the secretary read the letter from Acting President Drisler of Columbia College consenting to the transfer of the library school, and gave oral explanations of the work of the school, after which the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

"Resolved, That this board approves the plan submitted by the director of the state library for training librarians and cataloguers in connection with the work of the library, giving them instruction and supervision instead of salary for services rendered to the library.

"Resolved, That the director of the library be authorized to employ such assistants as are found best fitted for the work and are willing to give their services for a satisfactory time without other compensation than the instruction and supervision furnished by the library.

"Resolved, That this board accepts the proposition submitted by the trustees of Columbia College through its committee on course and statutes and its acting president to transfer to the state library the system of training conducted for the last three years in Columbia College under the name of the Columbia College School of Library Economy.

"Resolved, That the Library committee be directed to submit to a later meeting of this board a complete scheme for conducting this library training as a permanent feature of the state library."

Under the authority thus given, the director of the library about April 1 received from Columbia College the entire collection of books, pamphlets, appliances and other collections bought for or given to the library school. With the close of the winter term on March 30, the Columbia authorities carried out their agreement to transfer the system of training to the state library, by formally discontinuing the school and after settling all its accounts, transferring $548.05 to the regents, this sum being the total balance on hand received from tuition fees after deducting all incidental expenses of the school, not met by the gifts of its friends.

As in each preceding year, at the close of the winter term many of the pupils had desirable positions at good salaries waiting their acceptance. Those who did not take other positions, by arrangement with the director, under the authority given by the above resolutions of the regents, presented themselves on April 10 at the state library where they have continued their studies and work under the supervision of the library staff. Appended is a list of the 13 who came, with notes of residences and in four cases of the positions to which they have already been called from the state library.

Martha Y. Wheeler, Albany, N. Y.

The first term was of necessity an experiment as so many of the conditions were new. That experiment however proved an entire success. It has been found that the state library in its organization and appointments, rooms and other facilities is much better adapted to this work than was the Columbia College library. It has also been made clear that the services of the pupils can be used in our library to excellent advantage, so that it will be practicable to carry on the school successfully without asking any large appropriation for its support. With the great amount of cataloguing and other work to be done in our great library, this apprentice help can be used here to much better advantage than at Columbia, where nevertheless the school proved a marked success without a dollar from the treasury for its support.

This experience makes it perfectly safe for the regents to make this training a permanent feature of the state library, which under the new law is an integral part of the University. Such a course is justified by the warm approval with which the plan has been received and by the evidence from all parts of the country, and also from abroad, that the school is doing an urgently needed educational work which, if it be maintained and developed to meet the growing demands, will bring the University great credit. In addition to the many commendations in the press and from individuals the most noteworthy since the last meeting is the hearty indorsement by the American Library Association at its national convention held in St. Louis, May 8-11. As this association represents all the leading librarians of the country its action seems entitled to be submitted in full.

(Extract from official minutes of American Library Association.)

President C: A. CUTTER, of the Boston Athenæum.—I call upon Mr Foster, of the committee on the Columbia library school, to report upon it. As I also am of the committee, I will say that, when I lectured before it last winter, I noticed, I thought, less of that dangerous high pressure which Mr Green pointed out two years ago, but no diminution of interest on the part of the students. I am not familiar enough with other schools to say how this stands comparatively in this respect, but I do not see how any students could show more interest in their work than these did. It evidently was their whole life while they were there.

W: E. FOSTER, of Providence Public Library.—There is no more important matter than the training of library assistants. I have been three times to the school. It is a most impressive experience, and grows more interesting from year to year. Nowhere is a soberer view taken of library methods and responsibilities. The school has been fortunate in its material from the beginning. There is an intelligent set of minds, ability to learn, and the students show a perfect grasp of the situation. An important change puts it on a firmer basis, and I would suggest that we express recognition of this fact.

S: S. GREEN, Worcester Free Public Library.—I think it important to express our confidence in the value of the school. In my visits I have been struck by the intelligence and enthusiasm of the students and teachers. The admirable work done there is of the greatest value to the community. The experiment is now an assured success. The excellent assistants sent out prove that it has been of great advantage to have a course of technical education. There is good ground for believing that it is well that the library school has been transferred to Albany. There is hope that the scope of the work will be enlarged, that it will become a part of the normal education of the state, and that the school will receive students from outside the state. We ought to give formal assurance of our interest in the school to the regents and encouragement to the secretary. I therefore move that the Executive board of the A. L. A. add to its standing committees one of three or more on the library school.

After further approval from prominent members the resolution for a standing committee was adopted unanimously.

Later in the session the committee on resolutions introduced the following which was also unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the American Library Association hereby expresses its high appreciation of the action of the regents of the University of the State of New York, in continuing the School of Library Economy; and, with a desire to aid in securing the greatest efficiency of the school, the Library Association appoints a committee of three as a committee of correspondence with the authorities of the school. Said committee is hereby instructed to inquire in what way they can be of service in promoting the objects for which the school is conducted, and to render such service to the extent of their power.

The committee elected was:

Prof. R. C. Davis, Librarian University of Michigan.

Rev. E. C. Richardson, Librarian Hartford Theological Seminary.

Miss C. M. Hewins, Librarian Hartford Library.

The school is no longer an experiment but a conspicuous success, sure, if properly maintained, to accomplish great good and to win widespread approval for the practical work of the regents. It is to meet no prospective or imaginary demand but one that is already real and beyond its capacity to supply. Still more important, its development does not involve the labor and mistakes incident to most new enterprises, for its period of first experiments has been successfully passed at Columbia and it is our good fortune to have with us on our staff nearly every person who contributed in any considerable degree to that success.

Finally, so long as necessary, the school can be creditably carried on without special appropriation from the legislature, though of course it is desirable that a small sum should each year be placed at its disposal so that it shall not be wholly dependent on the gifts and gratuitous services of its friends for necessary expenses above the payments of its pupils.

In view of these unusual facts the director of the library feels it his duty to urge on the regents, through their Library committee, the wisdom of such action as shall insure a healthy, normal growth of the important educational interest which has thus been committed to their care.

Your honorable committee was directed by resolution of Jan. 12, 1889, to submit to a later meeting a complete scheme for making the system of training librarians a permanent feature of the state library. After very careful consideration and consultation with many eminent librarians specially interested in the subject, the director recommends the following plan for your approval:

PLAN RECOMMENDED.

1. That the system of training maintained by Columbia College for the past few years under the name of the Columbia College School of Library Economy, which, under the authority of the regents, was on April 1 transferred to the state library, and which has been successfully carried on during the few months past, shall be made a permanent feature of the state library to be known as the "library school."

2. That the school may occupy, for needed instruction or other purposes, so much as may be needed of the director's room and the room adjoining on the third floor of the library, or, at the option of the Library committee, any rooms on the fourth or fifth floors, occupancy of which will not interfere with the rights of readers or with the regular work of the library.

3. That the money paid as tuition fees or given to the school, shall be devoted solely to its use and special expenses, and that no charge be made for the use of the rooms, the books or other facilities provided for officers and readers of the state library; but that so long as the legislature makes no appropriation for the support of the school, its pupils are to expect no further expenditure, and only such time from the officers of the library as may be a fair equivalent for the services rendered the library by the pupils in their work under supervision.

4. That the director be authorized to arrange for such lectures and other instruction, outside that given by the library staff, as may be volunteered or paid for out of the money received from the pupils or other sources for the benefit of the school.

5. That, inasmuch as the school is not a charge on the treasury of the state, pupils from other states who pass the examinations for admission required from residents of this state, may be admitted on the payment of such fee, not exceeding $100 a year, as may be necessary to cover the special school expenses of the year; for residents of this state, the annual fee shall not exceed $50, and both these fees may be modified or remitted in special cases by the Library committee.

6. That instruction be given for five days of each week from October to June of each year except legal holidays, and Christmas recess.

7. That the subjects studied be as follows, subject to modification for reasons satisfactory to the director:

JUNIOR YEAR.

1 Oct.—23 Dec. Twelve weeks' instruction in cataloguing, shelf listing, accessioning and elementary library economy. One lecture daily.

24 Dec.—2 Jan. Ten days Christmas recess.

January. Four weeks on dictionary cataloguing, with one lecture daily.

February. Four weeks on classification, with one lecture daily.

March and Apr. Two months on library economy, with three lectures daily.

May and June. Apprenticeship work in state library and visits with teachers to other libraries.

July, Aug. and Sept. Vacation.

SENIOR YEAR.

During 9 months, Oct.—June. Two hours daily work for state library under supervision. Also, one hour daily, as follows:

Mondays. Seminar, under M. S. Cutler.

Tuesdays. Bibliography, under W. S. Biscoe.

Wednesdays. Cataloguing, under M. S. Cutler.

Thursdays. Classification, under W. S. Biscoe.

Fridays. Library economy, under director.

Also special instruction as follows:

October. Advanced classification.

November. Advanced library economy.

December. Advanced classification.

January. Advanced cataloguing.

February. Advanced dictionary cataloguing.

March and April. Advanced library economy.

May and June. Advanced work in library.

8. That the department of Regents' Examinations shall, at such intervals as may seem to the officers expedient, conduct examinations in bibliography, library economy, cataloguing and classification, and shall award to those who satisfactorily pass the same, suitable pass-cards, certificates and diplomas, generally corresponding to those awarded for other studies.

9. That there be established by the regents, to be conferred only on conditions to be hereafter prescribed, the degrees of B. L. S. and M. L. S. on examination, and causa honoris, D. L. S., for bachelor, master and doctor of library science.

10. That the secretary be authorized, on application from any school, library or museum which either is or applies to become a member of the University, to detail one of the staff to visit and give needed advice and assistance in starting or reorganizing the same, provided that the necessary traveling and hotel expenses shall be borne by the institution asking the service.

11. That the office include in the annual report full information as to the library school, and reprint in separate form, such parts as are needed for wider circulation.

12. That the receipt of gifts to be disbursed as fellowships, scholarships or otherwise, to deserving students in the library school, be authorized, provided that such receipt and distribution shall be in accordance with the rules made by the regents or the Library committee.

13. That for the double purpose of securing better services for the state library, and to encourage higher attainments among library pupils, the Chancellor be authorized to appoint the most successful students from the school as junior assistants in the state library, so far as the needs of the library may require and the appropriations for salaries allow, and graduates so appointed may be reported as holding state library fellowships, and undergraduates as holding state library scholarships. At least one fellowship yielding $500 a year, shall be assigned to that graduate standing highest and passing the best competitive examination therefor, and at least one scholarship of the value of $100, $150, $200, $250, or $300, as may be determined in each case, shall be assigned similarly each year to that undergraduate in the school, who, beside excelling in scholarship, can render, in addition to school duties, services in the library of the value of the scholarship assigned.

After discussion of the above report the regents unanimously

Resolved, That the board has heard with satisfaction the report of the director, touching the school for the education of librarians in connection with the state library, and without committing itself to the details set forth in the report, approves the general action of the director in the premises as well as the continuance of the same, provided no financial liability on the part of the state be incurred.

NEW YORK STATE LIBRARY

REPORT OF DIRECTOR

To the Regents of the University of the State of New York

I have the honor to submit the following brief report of progress in the library during the year ending September 30, 1890.

Size and growth: summary

Building. I regret that I cannot report the completion of the library rooms already in active use. The magnitude of the building and the unsurpassed beauty of the work which Commissioner Perry is doing for us, demand much time and patience. We are forced to defer much work which we confidently expected would be well started before this time. On the other hand, this delay has given more time for general preparation.

During the year considerable additions were made to the shelving, 10 new oak desks were supplied for the staff, and one of the 11 reading rooms were furnished with oak tables and reading chairs. The three southern rooms which were not tiled have been covered with parquetry floors of quartered oak laid in blocks five inches square, thus securing greater beauty and a cleanliness impossible where carpets are laid in a public building to which, as the attendants report, there is an average of 1000 visitors daily. The cost of the oak was no more than that of the carpets supplied to other departments while it will outwear them a hundred fold. By this departure a great ultimate economy is secured.

Books. The detailed statistics given by the catalogue librarian show where the additions of the year have been made. The obvious lack of balance is due to the necessity of filling many gaps, as we are placing the library on a broader plane and planning to keep up departments which have been before neglected. Large additions in certain subjects are due to gifts and exchanges. When these are deducted the distribution of the available money for buying books will be found very satisfactory to those interested in the library as a whole.

A marked improvement has been made in the printed list of additions to the library for the past year. To be of value to those who use the library throughout the state it is essential that these lists shall be placed in their hands earlier than has been found practicable to secure the printing of the annual report. We have therefore issued in advance of this report "State Library Bulletin: Additions no. 1" containing 204 large octavo pages. This gives under a minute classification a carefully edited title of each book, prefaced by class and book numbers which show its exact position in the library, and being much briefer and more accurate than the title are used in all references to the work. A summary of this classification precedes it and it is followed by an author index, arranged in a single alphabet and giving the number of every book. At the end there is a subject index which refers with a single numerical reference to the list of all books added to the library on that subject during the past year. The bulletin has not only the added value of fuller information, better arrangement and prompter issue, but it will be of the greatest service to the large number of smaller libraries in the state who wish an authoritative guide as to the classification of the new books of the year.

This feature will be more prominent in succeeding issues when some of the most marked gaps in the library have been filled and a larger part of our annual income can be spent in adding the most desirable books promptly on their appearance. This volume having been distributed to those who have heretofore depended on an appendix to the report for this information, that appendix is omitted from this report.

A very full list of continuations has been prepared during the past year and will be used in manuscript till the printing of the next report. The revision of another year's use, will add greatly to its value as a check list in other libraries of the state which have long felt the need of a catalogue of this kind by which to check up such continuations as they specially value.

Rules. On April 9, 1890, the library committee adopted the following code of rules, which actual use has proved admirably adapted to the requirements for which they were intended:—

[Any suggestions for making the library more useful are invited and any reader having cause for complaint will greatly oblige the director by reporting the facts personally or by note.]

1. These rules shall be publicly posted in the library and a copy given to every borrower, and no violation of them will be excused on the plea of ignorance.

2. No suspension of a rule shall be made except by the library committee on a written statement of satisfactory reasons.

3. All departments of the state library shall be kept open from 9 A. M. to 5 P. M. daily, except on Sundays and legal holidays. On holidays when its business departments are closed, the reading-room shall be open, and books shall be supplied to readers during the usual hours of opening.

4. Members of the legislature, judges of the court of appeals, justices of the supreme court, heads of the several state departments, their deputies and clerks officially resident in Albany, donors to the library to the amount of $100, all institutions of the University, such other libraries as may be approved by the library committee, and, by written permission of a regent, others having special claim on its facilities, may borrow books, subject to recall if specially needed. Books shall be lent only to registered borrowers, and delivered only on personal application or on a written order, by which full responsibility for books so delivered is assumed. No book shall be lent by a borrower.

5. The reading-rooms and reference library shall be free to all persons conforming to the rules; but no reader shall be entitled to retain for use in the library any book required for immediate official use by any state officer, court, department or committee in the capitol.

6. Readers shall not, without special permission from a librarian, accumulate on their desks law or other reference books, but all volumes not in actual use shall be promptly returned to the shelves.

7. No one but officers of the library shall have access to its private rooms, unless with an attendant or a written permit from a librarian.

8. No one shall keep from the library, without special permission of the director, more than three volumes at a time, nor any volume longer than two weeks without renewal. A book renewed after being out one week may be kept only two weeks from the date of such renewal. Books may be renewed any time during the second week of loan, either in person or by note addressed "State library loan desk, Albany," but the sender must take all risks of the mail.

9. No borrower shall keep a book more than two days after notice from the library that it is wanted. Thus notice sent May 7 allows May 8 and 9 in which to return the book. If a note requests renewal of a book "reserved under rule 10, notice of recall will be sent and two days will be allowed for its return.

10. No book shall be renewed if the word "reserve" is on its register card. A book which has been lent will l reserved for the applicant for two days only after its return, if he leave, on the blank provided at the loan desk, his address and the title of the book. This "reserve" will be dated and sent him immediately on return of the book.

11. Books marked on the book plate and in the catalogues "REF" are for reference only, and will not be lent. Those marked "ref" will be lent and those marked "per" can be consulted, only on written permit from the librarian in charge.

12. No book shall be removed from the room in which it belongs without permission of the librarian in charge.

13. Books issued on call slips are for use in the reading rooms only. To be taken away from the library they must be charged at the loan desk, and any person taking from the library a book without having it so charged, will be fined 50 cents for each offense.

14. Any book, unreturned after one week's notice, may be sent for at the expense of the borrower.

15. Any book, unreturned after one month's notice, may be considered lost, in which case the borrower shall pay its value.

16. No reproductions by photography, tracing, etc. shall be made without permission from a librarian.

17. Notes, corrections of the press, or marks of any kind on books belonging to the library, are unconditionally forbidden. Any person violating this rule or otherwise injuring a book shall pay a fine satisfactory to the library committee or take the book and pay all costs of replacing it. The borrower is responsible for all injuries, however caused, to any book while charged to him, and if he finds a book mutilated or defaced should report the fact without delay to the loan desk. Books are assumed to be in proper condition when issued, and the borrower will be held responsible if a book be found mutilated or injured on its return.

18. Silence and decorum must be strictly observed in the reading rooms. The use of tobacco, all conversation except necessary questions, begging, circulating petitions, offering articles for sale, or any act that may annoy readers is forbidden. Dogs must be left outside.

19. For wilful violation of any library rule the director may suspend the offender from all use of the library till the case is considered by the committee.

20. No person, except the director, superintendent of the building, and designated members of the library staff shall have a key to the library, and no key shall be lent for any purpose whatever.

Loans from the New York State Library outside Albany
Since the state library, founded for the benefit of the whole state, contains many books not readily accessible in other parts of the state and not so much used at Albany as to make their brief absence from the shelves a serious consideration, and many professors, teachers and others connected with the institutions of the University would find it of great advantage to have access to these books without incurring the serious expense and loss of time for the journey to Albany now necessary; and since the library by the new law is an integral part of the University, and ought so far as practicable to supplement the individual libraries of all the institutions as their University library, it has therefore been decided to lend books from the state library to institutions belonging to the University or to their officers or accredited representatives for temporary use outside Albany, provided:

1. That such precautions be taken, in packing, as to guard against any probability of injury in transportation.

2. That the state library shall not pay postage or express either way.

3. That borrowers at a distance shall not be entitled to retain books as long a time as is allowed borrowers in Albany, where the books can be sent for if specially need by the library. but shall return the books at the earliest practicable day after the temporary use for which they were lent.

4. That no book shall be lent except on condition that it shall be returned within 24 hours after notice received from the library that the claims of other users require its recall.

5. That this permission shall not be construed as giving borrowers at a distance any claim on books, which, from their cheapness, or wide distribution, can easily be obtained nearer home, nor on books which because of cost, rarity or constant use in the state library can not properly be allowed to leave it even temporarily.

6. That any rules necessary to protect the state library against loss, injury or inconvenience to readers may be enforced, and that any borrower refusing or neglecting to conform to any of these rules or failing to return promptly and in good order any book lent, shall forfeit all privileges in the state library.

Bindery. The library committee after careful consideration of the difficulties and objections decided to resume the practice of previous years and do certain parts of the library binding in the building. The destruction of the old library building to make room for the new capitol made it necessary to suspend binding operations and store the machinery. A suitable room being now available, we have prepared to bind hereafter in our own fireproof building all books which from their rarity or intrinsic value it would be unwise to send out to the ordinary bindery where the risk of fire is abnormally great, and also books which are in constant demand for state officers and others, who are seriously incommoded if they are withdrawn from the library for four to six weeks, or even longer when rebinding becomes necessary. Similarly most of our repairs will be made in the building to avoid sending out much used books. The cost will probably not be materially reduced, but greater convenience and safety from fire will be secured and the very best materials and work on our choicest books is thus assured. Only a single sewer, binder and finisher will be employed, while such work as this small force is unable to do will be sent out under contract as heretofore. In this way the advantages of both systems are united.

Staff. The table below shows that the only change is of a single page. Increase of salary was coupled with a requirement of more hours of service during the year, so that it is more apparent than real. There has been again unusual earnestness and loyalty on the part of the library staff, which gives the best of promise for the future success of the department.

Library School. Pages 26-35 of the last report recorded the working of the Library School during its first year under the regents. The hopeful promise of that year was more than fulfilled in the year just closed. Further advance in the grade of candidates and of the work accomplished was noticeable, and with the added experience of another year the methods of instruction have been improved at many points. Public appreciation of the work of the school seems steadily to grow, as evince<sup>d</sup> by the increasing demand from libraries for our pupils to fill important positions. As a full circular of information giving the history of the school and its methods, a register of the students in attendance and of graduates and of positions filled, with other information has been ordered printed and will be in the hands of the regents as early as this report, the Library School bulletin is referred to for details instead of repeating and summarizing its information in this place.

New York Library Association. The most significant step of the year in advancing the library interests of New York has been the formation of the New York Library Association to give organized assistance to the University in its new effort to make the libraries of the state more useful. Its purpose and method will be best shown by reprinting in full its circular just issued for general distribution to those interested. My opinion expressed some years ago that such an organization in this state would be recognized as so important a factor in library work that other leading states would soon follow our example has already been strikingly confirmed. It will take several years to get the new organization into thorough working order, but I am confident that the regents will find in it their most powerful helper in all their library work.

N. Y. L. A. CIRCULAR

Origin. July 11, 1890, in response to a growing demand, there met in the New York State Library on call of the Director, 43 persons specially interested in promoting the usefulness of New York libraries. The Chancellor and other regents of the University, the state Superintendent of Public Instruction, college professors and academy principals joined with librarians in consulting how to free New York from reproach for neglecting library interests and to bring it fully abreast of states foremost in library progress.

Chancellor George William Curtis presided over a three hours active discussion of the following topics:

1. What changes in library legislation should be asked at the coming session of the legislature?
2. What changes should be made in the state district library system and in the expenditure of the $50,000 a year now granted for it?

3. Can a state clearing house for duplicates be maintained at the state library free to all libraries in New York ?

4. To what extent can the state library assist other libraries ?

5. What relation should our libraries hold to the state school system ?

6. The need of pedagogical and reference libraries in the school houses of the state.

7. Should the state have a public library society to foster its library interests as it had a public school society before the organization of its school system was completed ?

8. Should such a society be organized at this meeting ?

It was unanimously voted to organize, and the following constitution was adopted :

Constitution. 1. The association shall be called the New York Library Association.

2. Its object shall be to promote the library interests of the state of New York.

3. Any person interested in promoting the object of the association may become a member, by vote of the executive board, on payment to the treasurer of a registration fee of one dollar.

4. The officers of the association shall be a president, vice-presidents, a secretary, and a treasurer, who shall together constitute the executive board, which shall have power to act for the association in intervals between its meetings.

5. A regular meeting of the association shall be held in the New York State Library during the week of the annual University Convocation and at such other times and places as may be fixed by the executive board.

In September, the association voted that the members present at the national meeting of the American Library Association should regularly hold at least one session of the New York Library Association.

6. No officer, committee, or member of the association shall incur any expenses in its name, nor shall the tr urer make any payment unless authorized by specific vote of the executive board.

7. No member shall be liable for any dues beyond an assessment for necessary expenses, which shall not exceed one dollar per year.

Objects. 1. To stimulate library interests in the state of New York by means of addresses, articles in the press, circulation of printed matter, action of educational and other bodies likely to be interested, and by all other proper means at its disposal.

2. To secure the fullest possible cooperation with the American Library Association in promoting general library interests which apply as well to New York as to other states.

3. To organize and promote among New York libraries exchange of duplicates, inter-library loans and other forms of cooperation, specially such as concern the University of the State of New York, the Department of Public Instruction, the State Library and New York colleges and academies.

4. To secure from the legislature in harmony with the broad basis of the new University law, a consolidation and revision of the many existing laws affecting libraries, with any needed new laws in regard to founding libraries, exemption from taxation, subsidies, mutilation of books, distribution of state money to district libraries, or other matters affecting the relation of the state to public libraries.

5. To enroll all whose interest can be depended on and then step by step to work toward the ideal when the libraries of New York shall, in educational efficiency, be second to those of no state or country in the world.

Cooperation. To accomplish this great work, we must have active cooperation. New York has unequalled opportunities. Of the 5,338 libraries reported for the United States, New York has 880. It led all other states in establishing the district library system, has done vastly more for its support, and has made it more of a success—or less of a failure—than any of the 17 states that copied its system. In the $50,000 appropriated annually by the legislature, and in the almost equal sum appropriated for the state and various law libraries, it stands far at the head in financial provision. New York is the first and only state to make its state library an integral part of the University and available to college and academy officers and other scholars throughout the state. New York leads in its liberal subsidy law for encouragement of local libraries, allowing $1,000 for each 15,000 volumes circulated. We grant also to the 320 academic libraries, as much money from the University as each raises outside its regular income, for adding books. The national body, the American Library Association, in the first 15 years of its history has met five times within our borders—in New York, Buffalo, at Lake George, the Thousand Islands and in the Catskills—while no other state has had more than a single meeting. The first and only school for training librarians for their profession was established in New York four years ago, and with rapidly increasing success is now maintained in connection with the state library, where it attracts the most promising candidates from all parts of the country, and gives every promise of doing for librarianship what the normal schools have done for teaching. When Horace Mann started the first American normal school, July 3, 1849, with three pupils, it required great faith to see as the acknowledged result at the end of the first half century, an increase of four-fold in salaries of teachers, with corresponding improvement in efficiency of schools, and, through imitation which is the sincerest flattery, instead of one normal school with three pupils, 123 schools with 26,116 pupils.

After looking at these things, of which New York may well be proud, one who has studied the subject is forced to admit that we have by no means lived up to our opportunities, and that New York is at present shamefully behind in the matter of free public libraries to serve as people's colleges throughout the commonwealth. We have the best contunities, the largest financial support, the broadest basis in our state laws, and lack only the earnest efforts of those who wish to see New York take her rightful position in this great educational movement.

The first work to be done. 1. To complete a reliable list, with brief statistics, of all New York libraries. Blanks with instructions have been sent to each of the 880 libraries, and a careful revision of the tentative list printed in Regents' Bulletin no. 3, and sent in August, 1890, to all New York libraries, is in preparation.

2. To supplement this list with as complete a collection as possible of all catalogues, reports, bulletins, and other printed matter issued by any library in the state. This will be carefully classified and kept, each library by itself, in the fire-proof rooms of the capitol, open forever for consultation and study to all interested.

3. To make a complete list of librarians, trustees or committees in charge of each library, in order that printed matter may be sent them, urging their active cooperation.

Till we have a reliable list of libraries, library officers and a reasonably complete collection of the publications of all New York libraries, we are not prepared to study the great questions intelligently or to lay out the campaign. These preliminaries we expect to complete at an early day.

Membership. The next and all important step without which little can be accomplished is to secure a large membership.

At the interesting and profitable second meeting, held in September in the White Mountains, in connection with the American Library Association, where, among 241 delegates from 25 different states, New York had 55, it was decided to see every librarian, library trustee, or other person specially interested in improving New York libraries to join the new association without delay.

Every librarian who has any interest in his work should find it a privilege to accept this invitation. The initial expense is but a single dollar. While the constitution allows an annual assessment not exceeding $1, it is confidently expected that expenses will be covered by contributions and that no assessment will be made, so that $1 probably represents the total expense of membership for a series of years.

New York started this association in July '90. Iowa in August, New Hampshire in September, Massachusetts in November, have already organized similar associations. New Jersey completes its organization in December and a half dozen more of the most progressive states in the Union have already partially completed plans for organizing similar state associations. New Yorkers must bestir themselves if they are to hold the position of leadership. Every earnest librarian ought not only to send his own name, but to interest others to join the association. And this not to roll up a long list of members, but to enable us to know in every community on whom we can depend for active interest, to whom we shall send publications, and information of progress that will be an inspiration and encouragement, and practical help in aiding local work.

Interested list. As a necessary basis for the great library work needed in this state a list of all specially interested in it is kept at the state library. To these will be mailed free, various circulars and pamphlets pertaining to the work. In no other way can we be so sure that the limited number of documents we have to distribute will be placed where they will be likely to do most in promoting the library interests of the state. Many who may not yet be ready to become members would like to receive these publications. By keeping these "interested" people informed of our progress, we shall sooner or later secure most of them as regular members.

It is earnestly requested that any such addresses be sent to the state library, marked "Interested in New York libraries."

What to do: summary. 1. If connected with any library see that our statistics, list of officers and collection of publications are completed.

2. Send your name as a member with $1.
3. Secure and send the names and fees of as many other members as possible.
4. If you cannot secure as a member, be sure to send to the state library the address of every man or woman who shows special interest.
5. Give yourself, if you can afford it, or get from others who can, contributions to the treasury of the association to meet necessary printing and incidental expenses. Members who can give labor only are as cordially welcome as those who can also give money; for both kinds of service are equally needed.

Library statistics. In August, 1890, Regents' Bulletin no. 3 was issued on "Libraries in New York." It included in tabular form a list of the 880 libraries recorded, with place, name, date of first organization, whether free or subscription, class of library (law, medical, college, school district, social, etc.), number of volumes and name of librarian or reporting officer. This was the best list to be made by revising those published by the general government, and by the Library journal in 1887, with their various supplements. Over 100 corrections and additions were made, but even then the list was far from satisfactory as a basis for the study of library problems in the Empire state. The earnest request prefixed to the list, that each library should send promptly any corrections, was, as is the common experience in such matters, unheeded by more than nine-tenths of the list, though some of these very libraries were free to complain that they had more volumes than placed to their credit. This matter was held in type for three months, waiting for such corrections as would make possible a thorough revision. This experience has proved two things.

1. That no reliable list can be made while the libraries are not required by law to make any report, unless something more be done than has yet been attempted by the United States bureau of education or other agencies that have tried to collect library statistics.

2. That no study of the great library problems of this state, satisfactory as a necessary basis for intelligent legislation, and for such assistance and guidance as is contemplated in the newly organized state library, can be made unless there is available a reliable list with information up to date on the most important matters.

As the first and most important step in this library work, we have therefore undertaken a careful revision of this list on a plan which promises success. To each of the 880 libraries we send a printed letter (briefly explaining the importance of the work and how easily each library can complete its own statistics), and a postal card, already directed to the state library, and having on the back a compact outline for the needed statistics. The printed letter explains what is wanted under each head, and so far as information was at hand from other sources, we have filled the blank in advance, leaving the librarian only the labor of inserting the omitted items and posting the card. To make it still easier we have printed in columns under "class of books," "ownership or control" and "terms of use," all the probable answers, asking the librarian only to underscore the word in each column which properly describes the library. By doing so nearly all the work ourselves we are likely to get statistics of libraries in this state with a fulness and accuracy that has never been attained. No room is left for the common complaint of school and library officers that they are overworked and have no time to answer the questions that are so easily asked. We could do no more to reduce the trifling labor unless we sent an agent to each librarian to lay the card before him and hand him a sharpened pencil. The information to be carefully given is as follows:

Place, name of library, year founded, volumes added from August 1, 1889-July 31, 1890, total volumes in library, Jr 31, 1890, hours open weekly for lending and for reading August 1, 1889-July 31, 1890, for books, serials & binding, for salaries, and for all other expenses.

Most important is the entirely new plan of compact description of the library. Previous reports have made a coarse classification, mixing the character of the library as to its books, its ownership or control and the terms of use. We have made three distinct columns. The first headed "class of books" refers only to the prevailing subjects, and a library is marked general unless devoted to a special class like law, medicine, theology, science, history, etc.

The next column, "ownership or control," is limited strictly to this phase. In it public libraries are divided into five classes, as follows:

1. "District" are school district libraries open to the public and supported by money from the department of public instruction.

2. "District-public" are district libraries receiving money also from local taxes.

3. "Trustee" or endowed are those open to the public but not controlled or maintained by the town or city; e. g. Astor library.

4. "Endowed-public" are "trustee" libraries receiving money also from local taxes.

5. "Public" are those wholly supported by local taxation.

Other libraries are classed as:

"Private," i. e., belonging to an individual, family or firm, the public having no rights in it.

"Proprietary," i. e. semi-private, requiring an election for admission; e. g., society, club and atheneum libraries.

"Business," i. e., libraries run as a business, open to any one on payment of a fee; e. g., "circulating," as maintained in many book stores, and many "mercantile," though some are proprietary.

"Government," i. e., owned by the state or local government; e. g. state, county law, court, garrison and similar rarities, but not including those classed as "public."

Parish," i. e. all church, diocesan and similar libraries, except Sunday school libraries.

"Institutional," i. e. libraries belonging to institutions not covered by the preceding classes; e. g. hospitals, asylums, prisons, Y. M. C. A., etc.

The third column, "terms of use," shows to which of the six possible classes it belongs as regards accessibility. That is

1. Free to all without restriction of any kind.
2. Free to all of a stated age and residence, as in most town libraries whose use is restricted to residents above 12 years of age.
3. Free to a limited class; e. g. a college or church library.
4. Subscription open to all, as in public circulating libraries.
5. Subscription limited, where only persons of a certain class, as members of a society, etc., may subscribe.
6. Private, that is, right of use limited to owner.

These facts will be printed for each library in the state, on the columns of a single page, and we shall then have a basis for intelligent study of the work needed to advance our library interests. The old statement of total number of volumes was worthless as indicating the character of the library, for some collections of a single thousand are more used and more efficient as an educational factor than others of 20,000 or 30,000 that are practically dead. By giving the hours open weekly for both lending and reading, the volumes added during the past academic year, and the amount of money paid out for books, salaries and other expenses, together with a full description of the library, indicated under "class of books," "control," "ownership" or "terms of use," we get a pretty clear idea of the working condition and practical efficiency. It is hoped to add another year the important item of the number of readers served by each institution.

Library lectures. At the last meeting of the regent July 10, 1890, the following votes were passed:—

1. That the secretary be authorized to have given in connection with the state library and museum, lectures scientific and other subjects as authorized by law, so far members of the University staff can give them and as demand warrants, special attention being given to such as can be made useful throughout the state by means of printed summaries or reports.

2. That the director be authorized to announce and maintain a course of free lectures in the state library on bibliography and library economy.

3. That any necessary expenses in securing lectures outside the University staff may be paid from the proper appropriation provided that the total expenses shall not exceed an average of $25 per lecture, and provided there are funds available.

This admirable and practical work can probably not begin till our rooms are completed but needed preparations will be made and the lectures started as soon as practicable.

Serials and binding. From the report of the sub-librarian in charge of serials and binding I extract the following facts:—

In May, charge of serials and binding of both departments of the library was transferred to the law sub-librarian, and the 549 files of periodicals were placed in the law library.

In June a check-list was started of all annuals regularly received. Each institution, department, etc. from which we receive yearly continuations is entered on a card, with the period covered by each publication and the date of receipt. The list now numbers about 600 cards and will be increased largely by sending to institutions, departments, etc. printed requests for such of their publications as they wish permanently preserved on our shelves. Date of receipt is stamped on the covers of all pamphlet serials and is useful in indicating about when the next number is due, specially in case of serials likely to be some months behind time.

From the records in three gift books, the check-list of annuals, a check-list of periodicals and the lists of books added to the library as published in the last three annual reports, has also been compiled another list of all continuations regularly received by the library; e. g. periodicals, annual reports of state departments, reports, transactions and proceedings of institutions, associations, societies, etc.

110 volumes of New York court of appeals cases and briefs of counsel have been received this year as a result of the establishment of a second division of the court, the previous yearly average being 55 volumes.

1396 volumes, of which 457 were law books, have been bound, and 138 law volumes repaired.

The reports of the three librarians and of the sub-librarian of the reference department are submitted as appendices.

In reviewing the work of the year in all parts of the library I find that the progress made is quite as great as could possibly be hoped under the circumstances. Our staff has worked under serious disadvantages in the unfinished rooms, and of necessity wastes many hours daily because of temporary substitutes in fittings and methods, made necessary by the slow progress of the great work on the building. Another year will be insufficient to remove these difficulties, but we now hope that by the end of the second year we can report the library in full working order.

APPENDIX 1: REPORT OF ARCHIVIST

TO MELVIL DEWEY, Director of New York State Library

Since the last annual report a more thorough arrangement of the manuscripts has been made. On a count of this collection made in November of this year, 1343 separate volumes were found. This number may be slightly diminished by the binding together of two or more thin volumes where these are now unbound and in long sets. In the first eight months of the current year I spent considerable time in the translation of some French manuscripts, lately acquired, for publication, but have temporarily laid them aside for other work. This work is the preparation of another volume of the New York colonial history, which, it is expected, will be ready for publication during the coming year. About one-third of my time is occupied in library correspondence, assisting readers to books or information, and in searching catalogues for the purchase of books on American history and genealogy, or other employment in the general library.

APPENDIX 2: REPORT OF CATALOGUE DEPARTMENT

Dec. 5, 1890

TO MELVIL DEWEY, Director of New York State Library

I submit herewith, the report of the cataloguing department for the year ending 30 Sept. 1890.

Accession.—The detailed statement of work is given in table A, and the number of books added in each of the 100 divisions of the classification is recorded in table E. 904 orders were sent to our agents, 710 received, and four canceled; this does not include the orders from auction sales of which hundreds are sent, but many lots are sold to higher bidders. Of the 7590 volumes added, 3817 were bought and 3177 were given; 257 volumes were received from the collection formerly kept at Geological Hall and 1348 from the Regents' office. The special effort to obtain all the serials indexed in edition 3 of Poole and its supplements has added many sets of periodicals, among the more important of which are Bentley's miscellany, Contemporary review, London quarterly review, Macmillan's magazine, Saturday review, Nature, Popular science review and Journal of the Anthropological institute of Great Britain and Ireland. Other important sets added are Heinsius, Allgemeines bûcher-lexicon; International cyclopedia; Larousse Dictionnaire universel; Brockhaus, Conversations lexicon; Century dictionary; publications of the India geological survey; Tryon, Manual of conchology; Sangster, Niagara river and falls; Allgemeine deutsche biographie; and the publications of the Chetham society. The number of serials recorded in table E includes reports of societies and institutions as well as other annual publications, magazines, etc. This list will probably be largely increased during the coming year as the result of systematic effort to obtain similar publications.

Card catalogue.—The rules for the preparation of the card catalogues were discussed and settled and the work begun 1 Nov. 1890. Table C shows the number of cards placed in the catalogue each month; 19149 cards have been written; 9263 author, 1490 title, 8396 subject cards. The number of subject cards in each of 100 divisions is shown in table E. Besides regular additions there were classified, catalogued, and numbered all books on education, class 370, except college and school catalogues; the local histories of the New England and middle states, class 974; and most of the genealogies, class 929. These are three of the more prominent subjects in this library and were catalogued first, that users might have the advantages of a consolidated catalogue and of close classification on the shelves and be able to see just what the library had; also that the library might know more accurately what deficiencies it needed to supply.

Shelf department.—The total number of volumes now on the shelf list as shown by table D is 89050 an increase of 30701 from 1 Oct. 1889. There still remain about 7000 volumes which are grouped mostly by subjects and which for various reasons it has seemed undesirable to move till they could be finally classed and assigned their permanent location. Among these are the newspapers and other large folios which are waiting suitable shelving; the college and academy catalogues which will be catalogued and finished gradually during the coming year; the U. S. documents, the books in the ms. room, etc. The number of volumes in each subject is shown in table E; this does not include the law library which would give a large increase in the subjects of Political science, 320; Law, 340; and Administration, 350.

Most of the duplicates are now stored in the fifth story, over the library, and will be classified and arranged as soon as shelving is provided. The statistics of duplicates in table D includes only those collected during the year from gifts, exchange and careful collation of books in the library.

APPENDIX 3: REPORT OF REFERENCE DEPARTMENT

Oct. 1, 1890

To MELVIL DEWEY, Director of New York State Library

I herewith submit reports and statistics of the reference department of the general library for the year ending Sept. 30, 1890.

The library was open to readers every day, except Sundays, from 9 a. m. till 5 p. m., and during the session of the legislature till 6 p. m.

It is impossible to say how many people have visited the library for the purpose of consulting its books, on account of the large numbers who come to inspect the capitol building; but it is certain that our readers have very much increased during the year, and to such an extent as to tax the space now available for reading rooms.

We have been unable this year to collect accurate statistics of the number of volumes used in the library, but statistics taken from time to time of the books furnished readers by members of the staff show volumes thus furnished to average a little less than 150 per day or in round numbers 40,000 per year. This estimate does not include the volumes which readers are able to take from the shelves without the aid of a librarian, which would at least double the number.

The number of volumes drawn out from the library under authority of rule 4, for the different months of this year, and for corresponding months of the year 1888-89, so far as taken is as follows:

		1889-90
		October	1889 .. 65
		November	" .. 87
		December	" .. 56
1888-89		January	1890 .. 164

March	" .... 30	April	" .. 268
April	" .... 56	May	" .. 296

1888-89			1889-90

September	"	82	September	"	216
<hr/>			<hr/>
469 for 9 mo.			2120 for 12 mo.

We have during the year added a large number of volumes of the sets of periodicals which are indexed in Poole's Index, the Supplement to Poole's Index and the Cooperative index. These volumes have been much used by us in aiding readers to articles bearing on the subjects in which they were interested.

 Total 1,344 volumes

The general library has had bound during the year, a much smaller number of volumes than we can expect to bind in any ordinary year. The reason has been that many books which should have been rebound and many new books which should have been bound, have been kept in the library until we could make some satisfactory arrangement for good binding, at reasonable rates, to be done in a short time and in some way which would not require us to send from the library shelves samples for each book to be bound.

The following are the numbers of the various sizes and styles of binding done during the year.

By size:		By style:
16° and smaller .....	26	½ morocco .....	629
12° .....	30	Cloth .....	251
8° .....	619	Duck .....	59
4° .....	184
1° ..	40		939
Folio quartos and larger....	40
	939

Our binding machinery is in place, our help engaged and we hope to start work by Nov. 1, 1890.

Some of the machinery now in hand was formerly used in the old library bindery and is in need of repairs, but can be put in good working order for much less than the cost of new machinery. Experience may prove it economy to increase our plant, but with the appliances now in hand we can work to good advantage.

Respectfully submitted

APPENDIX 4: REPORT OF LAW DEPARTMENT

ALBANY, Dec. 3, 1890

To MELVIL DEWEY, Director of New York State Library:

During the year ending Sept. 30, 1890, 1568 volumes were added to the law library, of which 850 were bought, and 718 were gifts or exchanges.

A large part of the additions were continuations of sets already on the shelves.

Deficiencies have been supplied in the collections of reports and law periodicals to the extent of over 200 volumes, among which are the following:—

American and English corporation cases .....	28 v.
American and English railroad cases .....	41 “
American corporation cases .....	10 “
American railway reports .....	20 “
American criminal reports .....	7 “
American probate reports .....	6 “
Myer's federal decisions .....	30 “
Pittsburgh legal journal, n. s. ....	19 “
Revue légale .....	19 “

Orders are now out for volumes, which, if secured, will supply nearly all of the existing deficiencies in the collection of law periodicals.

Fifty-eight volumes have been added to the collection of proceedings of boards of supervisors of the various counties of the state, each volume containing the proceedings of two or more years. The power of local legislation now vested in these boards, renders the preservation of their records of much importance; and it is a fact of some interest, that this library has the only general collection of such records in existence.

The following is a list volumes sent from the library under the system of exchange, to the states and territories and to various institutions in this and other countries:

N. Y. court of appeals reports .....	299 v.
“ supreme court reports .....	123 “
“ session laws .....	26 “

N. Y. legislative journals and doc's .....	1972	v.
“ state library reports .....	269	“
“ state museum reports .....	167	“
Other vols. and pamphlets .....	218	“
		<hr/>

There is a pressing necessity for fitting up rooms for storing the large stock of duplicates belonging to the library and now piled in confusion in the attic of the capitol.

Until rooms are provided in which these duplicates can be assorted and properly arranged, they must remain practically inaccessible. This operates as a serious restriction on the department of exchanges.

Respectfully submitted

STEPHEN B. GRISWOLD

<sup>a</sup> This large increase in the working force has been absolutely necessary because of the remarkable growth in the use of the library and the fact that it is now kept open twice as many hours during the year as formerly.

Divisions of library work. Besides general supervisory and executive duties, the work of every library divides itself into three main classes, acquisition, utilization and preservation; the three great functions of the librarian being, to get, to use, to keep. In the older conception of librarianship the librarian's chief duty was to preserve safely the volumes committed to his care. To that has been almost universally added the business of acquiring new books for the collection, and many of the most earnest librarians were content to follow the motto "get all you can and keep safe all you get." But the modern librarian recognizes that of these three, to get, to keep, to use, the greatest is to use. That is, not only to use himself, but to make as useful and accessible as possible to others. Following these plain divisions I shall, from year to year, lay before the regents in the annual report such records of our doings and statements of our aims and methods as seem worth attention and preservation.

Acquisition

Selection. In buying a book, it is not enough to decide whether it is a good book for the library, but also whether, all things considered, we could with the same money buy another book that would be not only good but better. Yet we believe it wiser to add to the library a second best book that some reader will use than one which, though intrinsically better, may possibly stand on the shelves for years unused.

We invite all interested in the library to indicate their judgment as to the most valuable additions. Readers are supplied free with printed recommendation blanks of the following form:

New York State Library		WRITE LEGIBLY
Author's surname, followed by given names or initials	.....
Title	.....
Edition	Place	Publisher
Year	No. of Vols.	Size
Total Price	NOT in great haste
I recommend the above for the library. Notice of receipt is NOT asked.
Signature	.....
Address	.....
Fill above fully as possible. Cross out NOT, if notice is wanted, if in great need or special haste.
Put a ? before items of which you are not sure. Give reasons for recommending ON THE BACK.

Brief reasons for recommending are specially esteemed. Last or best edition is understood if none is specified. At least indicate whether published here or abroad. Give your idea of price, with a ? before it if only an estimate. Do not put dashes or "Don't know" in spaces you cannot fill, but leave for others to fill. Write legibly. Careless writing or incorrect or insufficient data may delay or prevent ordering or finding, or may result in getting a wrong book. First see whether we have the book. If a duplicate is wanted, clearly indicate why needed. If others wish the same book it will increase its claims for approval if they add their signatures. Foreign books, ordered from abroad to save 25 per cent duty, arrive in 6 to 8 weeks. "Out of print" books often require much time to find.

The circular below sent to each of the 410 institutions of the University illustrates our effort to use the money at our disposal in buying the books that will really be of greatest service to the state :

BOOKS FOR THE STATE LIBRARY

CIRCULAR LETTER TO PRESIDENTS AND PRINCIPALS

Each of the 410 institutions of the University is entitled as such to borrow books from the state library on the same terms as state officers, and we are anxious to make the library each year more practically valuable to all parts of the University and the state. I enclose a package of the library rules calling special attention to the supplementary note on loans of books outside Albany.

Our book appropriation is largely consumed in keeping up the great line of law books, serials and various sets and in doing needed binding; but after paying these fixed charges, we have a few thousand dollars for buying, and are anxious to spend this in a way to help most the largest number of those entitled to use the library. I enclose with return envelopes blanks on which books are recommended for purchase, and will gladly send as many more as you and your faculty may need. We suggest that this letter be read in faculty meeting and that the recommendation blanks be distributed to those interested. It would probably be more convenient to arrange that the recommendations should be handed in to some one person or dropped in a box provided and be forwarded from time to time in one package, than for each one to send his own. Orders are sent at least every week from the library, and every day if there are books for which there is special haste. Obviously we cannot promise to buy every book recommended, but we will undertake to select from these recommendations so far as our appropriation will allow, and make the additions that will best serve the largest number of institutions. Printed bulletins of books added will be mailed three or four times each year. If indicated on the recommendation blank, prompt postal notice of the receipt of any book, or, if specially requested, the book itself will be sent to the library of an institution or to the president or principal.

We believe it better to buy a second choice book that some professor or teacher needs and will be unable to see unless he gets it from the state library, rather than buy a book in itself better but which may possibly stand on our shelves for years before it is actually used.

These recommendations should not include books which the institution itself can buy. The State Library should supplement local libraries by owning books that only a few wealthy individual institutions can afford. Of many works, a single copy in Albany lent as needed from college to college may properly supply the wants of the state.

Your cordial cooperation is invited in selecting the most desirable books thus to supplement the libraries of local institutions.

Each librarian and senior aid is responsible for being well abreast of some specific subject, for seeing that the best books are recommended, and for giving personal attention to selecting from the titles submitted those most needed in our collection.

In this way we get a consensus of judgment enabling us to make a much better selection than would be possible for any librarian or library staff without such cooperation.

Buying. Most of our American books are bought from a single agent at wholesale prices, and each week's list of publications is regularly checked up for those that should be added promptly. On foreign books we save the twenty-five per cent duty and get them promptly by having our European agents ship a package by fast steamer each week. Foreign periodicals come also in this way, with the result of receiving them quite as promptly, while they are clean and flat instead of crushed and soiled by the ocean mails. We also less often miss a number by this system, and the total cost to the state is less than three quarters of what it had been; for, though we sometimes pay our agent more than the old net price, we have eliminated entirely agents' commissions and charges for packing, cases, consul's certificates, custom house fees, postage and other incidentals which in the aggregate largely increase the cost of foreign books for which the bill may name a moderate price, and on which there is no direct duty.

Orders for which there is no haste are held back and from time to time, when found by the reference librarian in any of the hundreds of auction and second-hand catalogues which he scans yearly, are bought for a fraction of what they would otherwise cost. In buying large sets and filling gaps, we also utilize largely the principle of competition by sending to several prominent dealers the lists of our wants and ordering of the lowest responsible bidder. The records show that the new system is effecting savings in cost of several thousand dollars yearly, and at the same time raising the average character of our additions.

Exchange. As nearly our whole collection of books available for exchange (100,000 volumes) is in boxes, or wholly inaccessible, this source of additions from which we should have several thousand volumes yearly is practically closed to us till we can get the needed shelves for arranging our duplicates. We have many opportunities for such exchanges already registered, and as soon as our duplicates can be handled shall make important additions to the library without other expense than the labor of sending books for which we now have no use.

The law librarian, who is in charge of exchanges, reports the following books and pamphlets sent out as exchanges :

	Vols.
New York court of appeals reports.....	264
New York supreme court reports.....	126
New York session laws.....	163
New York legislative journals and documents.....	1704
New York regents reports.....	160
New York state museum reports.....	207
New York state museum bulletins.....	584
New York state library bulletins.....	335
Other volumes and pamphlets.....	114
Total.....	3,657

The following provision in 1779 shows how early the need was felt of such a system of exchanges as our duplicate department now provides.

FIRST PROVISION FOR INTERSTATE EXCHANGES — 1779

Whereas an interchange of the laws passed and to be passed from time to time, in the several United States, may be of public utility;

Be it enacted, etc., That the person administering the government of this state for the time being, shall be, and is hereby authorized and required to transmit, from time to time, three copies of all the laws passed and to be passed by the legislature of this state, to the honorable the congress of the United States, and to the executive authority of each of the said United States, and to request a reciprocal interchange from each of the said states. (Laws of New York, 2d session, ch. 11, 17 Feb. 1779.)

As the largest of the states New York of course gives much more than it receives. We publish ten or twenty times as much as some of the smaller states, yet in exchange we get only a full set of their publications for a full set of ours.

Gifts. Reference to the year's statistics will show remarkable increase in gifts received. This is due not to accident or to an abnormal desire on the part of publishers, authors and book owners to give something to the great state of New York, but to our persistent search for gifts and the systematic use of 17 different blanks, by means of which, at trifling cost, we are able to show these publishers, authors and book owners the advantage of sending copies to our collection. This represents not only a great saving to the state of books which might otherwise be bought, but, more important, it represents acquisition in our fire-proof library of an immense mass of literature otherwise unobtainable; for many of these gifts are books privately printed and others not in the ordinary channels of trade, and many find their way only to a few permanent fire-proof repositories. Persistence for a series of years in our present plan will make this library famous for its resources in legislation, law, public and social institutions, education and our other specialties.

The following forms, omitting usual heads and signatures illustrate the system.

REQUEST FOR GIFTS OR EXCHANGES

DEAR SIR: We are making as complete a collection as possible of books and pamphlets in all branches of ..... and find that we lack of your publications all except those noted on the back of this sheet. Will you kindly complete our set to date, and put us on your distributing list for future publications. We should also be grateful for any other material on this subject that you can send us.

Pamphlets are specially desired; for not only are they more difficult to obtain than books, but frequently they contain more valuable matter and our system makes them almost instantly available.

The state has provided for the library unexcelled quarters in absolutely fire-proof rooms having every comfort and convenience for readers, to whom they are always open freely from 8 A. M. to 10 P. M. throughout the year, including vacations and holidays. In the departments in which we are making special collections, the library will afford unequalled facilities to students, and obviously books and pamphlets on these subjects can nowhere be more widely useful to special investigators than in such a library. We hope for the active cooperation of all scholars, and all interested in these subjects, not only in giving such books, pamphlets and other material as they may individually be able to send, but in enlisting the cooperation of others interested in providing the best possible facilities for those who wish to study broadly and deeply these important questions.

We send our own publications, postage and express paid, to libraries wishing to catalogue and preserve them. When there is no provision for such expenses, packages may be sent to us by express unpaid, or we will send stamps to prepay postage on notice of the amount.

When more convenient, foreign packages may be sent, marked New York State Library, to our agent Gustav E. Stechert, 30 Wellington street, W. C., London, or Hospital Strasse no. 10, Leipzig, who will forward them weekly.

POSTAL CARD REQUEST FOR GIFTS OR EXCHANGES

is one of the many desirable publications which our appropriation does not allow us to buy. If you are willing to give it, we shall be glad to catalogue and permanently preserve it.

The library is fireproof and is open daily from 8 A. M. to 10 P. M., including Saturdays, holidays and vacations.

If requested, we will send an equivalent of our publications.

REQUEST FOR GIFTS TO EDUCATIONAL LIBRARY AND MUSEUM

DEAR SIR: If you can give..... or any other similar works that you wish brought to the notice of educators, we shall be glad to give them a place in the new state educational library.

A permanent pedagogic exhibit has been begun, closely classed by subjects to show side by side textbooks of different publishers and, also various forms of school appliances. This exhibit will always be open to any one interested, and publishers and manufacturers are invited to cooperate in making it as complete as possible, both for their own advantage and that of the rapidly increasing number of students of educational methods wishing to examine it.

The state has provided for the library unexcelled quarters in absolutely fire-proof rooms having every comfort and convenience for readers, to whom they are open freely from 8 A. M. to 10 P. M. throughout the year, including vacations and holidays. In the departments in which the library is making special collections, it will afford unequalled facilities to students, so that obviously books and pamphlets on these subjects can nowhere be more widely useful to special investigators than here. We hope for the active cooperation of all scholars, and all interested in these subjects, not only in giving such books, pamphlets and other material as they may individually be able to send, but also in enlisting the cooperation of others interested in providing the best possible facilities for those who wish to study broadly and deeply these important questions.

If requested, we will send an equivalent of our own publications.

University Publications

TERMS OF GIFT, EXCHANGE AND SALE

By a new law the regents maintain a duplicate department, which includes not only the publications of the five departments of the University, aggregating several thousand pages a year of reports, bulletins, memoirs, etc. of which the editions are insufficient to meet the demands, but also surplus copies of publications of other state departments, bureaus, boards and commissions. Therefore many hundred different works are available for exchange, ranging from small pamphlets to large scientific quartos costing many dollars each.

1 Substantial equivalents must be had for publications exchanged. We interpret this liberally, but can not send a dozen equivalents for one book or pamphlet received; nor can we, under guise of an exchange, send costly works for those of little value.

Constant calls come in about this form: "Please send ——— by early mail, to John Smith." Sometimes John Smith is an earnest student, who needs and will make the best use of what he asks. In other cases he is perhaps a street boy who has learned that state and government departments often find it easier to send what is asked for than to inquire whether it ought to be sent, and that a dollar's worth of post cards shrewdly distributed will bring him post-paid a quantity of documents which he can sell for old paper at a large profit. Sometimes he is a book dealer or his tool, who, by urging how much he needs the volumes in pursuit of his studies, etc. finally secures a set more complete than that of many large libraries, and then offers it to them at a high price. Sometimes John Smith asks for a five cent pamphlet, sometimes for a valuable set of reports.

Obviously a clearly defined system is imperative to prevent reckless distribution of costly publications to those who really care little for them, with the result of leaving no copies to complete sets in great libraries to be preserved for centuries, available to all scholars.

2 We maintain a large exchange list and readily send corresponding publications in return for those sent the state library from all parts of the world; but in view of these difficulties and abuses, and to enable those really needing our publications to secure them, they are now sent (preference always being given to New York institutions or citizens) only as follows: — a To leading libraries at home and abroad which agree to catalogue and preserve them permanently for public use;

b To educational and scientific institutions engaged in similar work, and sending us their own publications;

c To individuals who have given us such books, pamphlets, specimens or services as merit recognition by complimentary copies;

d To others having nothing suitable to offer in exchange who value the publications enough to pay the nominal price charged to protect against waste.

This price covers merely cost of paper, printing and postage, no allowance being made for cost of original preparation. Editions printed are only large enough to meet the special claims above and probable sales. When the number printed for sale is exhausted, copies will be supplied, so far as they can be secured, at such prices as rarity and demand may determine.

Certain volumes are specially difficult to obtain because a smaller edition was printed, or because part of the edition has been destroyed. Applications for these are all filed, and as fast as we secure copies from gifts, auction or other sources, they are supplied to applicants, preference being given to libraries that preserve complete sets for public use.

Those having any New York state publications which they no longer require, are urged to send them to the State Library to be used in completing sets. Due credit will be given and the sender will be entitled to other books of similar value from the duplicate collection now numbering about 100,000 volumes.

REQUEST FOR EXCHANGES

DEAR SIR: We should be glad to receive..... in exchange for an equivalent in publications of the University of the State of New York.

State medical library. The legislature at its last session passed the following:

Laws of N. Y. 1891, ch. 377, approved May 21, 1891

To provide for the acceptance and care, by the regents of the University, of the medical library donated to the state by the Albany medical college.

§ 1 The sum of $5,000 is hereby appropriated out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, to be paid by the treasurer on the warrant of the controller, on vouchers duly authenticated by the regents of the University, for the necessary expenses of providing suitable shelving and furniture to receive the medical library offered to the state by the Albany medical college, and for the necessary expenses of shelving, arranging and cataloguing the said library.

§ 2 The said medical library shall be a part of the New York state library under the same government and regulations and shall be open for consultation to every citizen of the state at all hours when the state law library is open and shall be available for borrowing books to every accredited physician residing in the state of New York, who shall conform to the rules made by the regents for insuring proper protection and the largest usefulness to the people of the said medical library.

§ 3 This act shall take effect immediately.

By request of the governor before he signed this law, we examined the library of the Albany medical college and were gratified to find in it many large and valuable sets, which, in connection with the great medical indexes, have the highest value for research. We hope, as soon as the needed new shelving is built, to receive the books and start what gives good promise of being one of the most useful divisions of the library.

It is worthy of record that old school, homeopaths and eclectics joined heartily in urging the passage of the bill. In the hearings granted they proved to the ways and means and the finance committees that every citizen of the state had a direct interest, because his family physician might at any hour have need of the assistance which the medical library offers to every registered physician in the state. The request was for $5,000 for removal of the gift as a nucleus and for equipment, and for a second $5,000 to buy the new books without which the library will have little practical value. Leading members of the finance committee assured the physicians that when the books were received and in order there would be no difficulty whatever in securing an annual appropriation of $5,000 for additions and maintenance. As the present library is almost wholly of older books, including many valuable sets, it is useless as a general medical library till the gaps are filled. We shall, therefore, not expect any use of the library to begin till after the next appropriation has been made and expended.

Utilization

This includes not only the catalogues, classification and other aids to making a library valuable and useful, but also reference and home use.

Bulletin of additions. While the number of persons coming to the library has greatly increased, yet to reach the state at large much of our work must be done through printed agencies. We are, therefore, maintaining a series of publications worth preparing and printing simply for use in the library, but becoming more than doubly valuable since they can be placed in the hands of people interested all over the state. The improvement in the form of printing the lists of books added to the library each year, fully described on page 8 of the last report, has proved even more useful than anticipated. We propose, therefore, to print in October, January and April each year shorter bulletins of the latest new books omitting gifts, old books bought at auction or secured by exchange, binding, etc. These lists will serve a double purpose: smaller libraries throughout the state will learn from the carefully edited titles which are the latest and best books, and will also get the exact classification in the full scheme as here used and now adopted by nearly 300 different libraries. In this way a single publication will announce important new additions to the state library, and suggest to libraries and readers throughout the state the best recent books from which to make their own selections. As all these bulletins, like the one already issued, will be closely classed and indexed by recognized experts, they will have a value far beyond anything else available.

Index to law periodicals. We shall also print a classified index, calling attention of the courts and bar to such articles in the great mass of leading periodicals received in the state library as are likely to be of special value. The number of law serials has become so great that neither judges nor practitioners have leisure to search them through, with a chance of occasionally finding something wanted. We are assured that our proposed index will be of great practical service to both bench and bar.

Law books of the year. This state has so large a body of lawyers, and they use the state library so much, that we shall, for their convenience, issue an annual list, not only of the law books which we add, but including all others published in English during the year, indicating such as are not in this library. Competent judges have pronounced the New York law library the best in the country in American law; and we are compelled, in meeting the demands and maintaining our reputation, to buy so large a portion of all that is published each year that it will not be a serious matter to enlarge our plan and make the bulletin an annual bibliography of law, which will be of great service to all other libraries.

Subject catalogue of law. There is need of bringing down to date the admirable subject law catalogue of this library, which includes books to December 31, 1882. Nothing else will help our readers more, or be more useful in the various law libraries in the courts and state departments, or owned by the state. We plan to print this supplement as soon as practicable after December 31, 1892, when the 10 years are completed.

Necessary delay. I report these plans matured for bulletins, annual law index, annual law bibliography and 10-year subject catalogue. Any visitor to the library, however, sees in the great growth in duties how difficult it will be to get an extra hour from the present staff. Unless we should ask an added appropriation it will probably be two or three years before it will be possible to get these needed publications started. Meantime, we are adjusting our work with the knowledge that we shall, at an early day, have these important aids.

Law division. The following statement is from the report to me of S. B. Griswold, law librarian :

During the year ending September 30, 1891, 1,510 volumes were added to the law division, of which 872 were bought, and 638 were gifts or exchanges. 958 were continuations of sets already on the shelves.

The most important purchase was of British parliamentary papers for 1860 to 1867, consisting of 517 folio volumes. The library now has these papers for 1811 to 1832, 1842 to 1890, making over 3,000 volumes. As these papers prior to 1860 are out of print it will be exceedingly difficult to fill the gap from 1833 to 1841, except at the sale of the library of some member of parliament of that period. For such an opportunity we are watching.

The effort to supply deficiencies existing in the collection of American statute law has resulted in the following additions:

	Vol.
Alabama. Acts, 1819 .....	1
Delaware. Acts, 1792, 1793, 1794.....	3
Florida. Acts, 1828.....	1
Georgia. Laws, 1801, 1802, 1803, 1805.....	4
Indiana. Laws, 1807.....	1
Missouri. Laws, 1804-35.....	2
New Hampshire. Laws, 1799.....	1
New Mexico. Laws, 1866-7.....	1
Ohio. Acts (local), 1831-2.....	1
Pennsylvania. Acts, 1813-14 .....	1
Rhode Island. Acts, 1745-52.....	1
—— Public laws, 1817-19.....	1
South Carolina. Laws, 1782.....	1
Wisconsin. Acts, 1837-8, (original ed.).....	1

Important additions have been made to the reports and law periodicals among which are:

- Am. and Eng. patent cases. v. 1-18, Wash. 1887-90.
- Cape law journal. v. 1-7, Grahamstown 1885-90.
- Gibson's law notes. v. 1-8, Lond. 1882-89.
- Law students' journal. v. 1-11, Lond. 1879-90.
- Pump court. v. 1-9, Lond. 1884-89.
- Southern law journal. v. 1-2, Nashville 1881.
- Texas law review. v. 1-5, Austin 1883-85.
- U. S. treasury decisions, 1865-90. 24 v. Wash. 1869-91.
- Weekly jurist. v. 1-2, Bloomington 1880-81.

The present annual book appropriation will not permit extended additions on foreign law. Among the years additions are:

- Germany. Bundes Gesetzblatt, 1867-71. 5 v. Ber. 1867-71.
- Reichs Gesetzblatt, 1872-90. 19 v. Ber. 1872-90.
- Code de commerce, Par. 1881.
- Code d'org. judiciaire. 2 v. Par. 1885.
- Code de proc. civile, Par. 1887.
- Code de proc. pénale, Par. 1884.
- Hungary. Code pénale Par. 1885.

Italy. Code pénale Par. 1890.
Netherlands. Code pénale Par. 1883.
Zurich. Code civile Par. 1890.

Manuscripts and archives. George R. Howell, archivist, reports as follows :

Since the last report from this department I have finished the revision of the manuscript for another royal octavo calendar of the archives of the state, being a calendar of 32 volumes of manuscripts of much interest to the student of the early history of New York. These volumes cover the period from the surrender of the colony to the crown of England in 1664 to the revolution in 1776. They contain records of the official transactions of the governor and council, decrees of courts, and give details of the transfer of the colony from the Dutch to the English power.

Six volumes of land papers, mostly the original drafts of land patents, have been indexed by name, date and locality.

As a beginning, two volumes of the important Clinton papers have been indexed.

A list of the manuscripts has been made.

Copies of the original Dutch records of land patents with translations are occasionally needed, and have been furnished for evidence in court.

Nearly one half of my time has been spent in necessary work in the general library, chiefly in attending to the wants of readers who express a desire for my assistance, or in preparing answers for letters sent to me or referred to me for information, or in selecting accessions to the library on American history and genealogy.

Besides publishing the calendar volume before mentioned, it would seem to be desirable, if not a duty, for the state to publish at least a calendar with index of the Clinton papers, which cover the time of the revolutionary war and the formative period of the state, continuing through the first quarter of the century.

There is a very urgent need of setting up the permanent shelving for the manuscript volumes, both for their protection and for their accessibility and convenient use.

Catalogues. We have kept up, in its most approved form, the accession book, which belongs, of course, in the accession department, but is often spoken of as a catalogue. In this the last entry is no. 156,056. We have also the shelf list or inventory which, since the books are closely classified on the shelves, makes the best possible brief subject catalogue in book form.

Our catalogues proper are :

1 The author or name catalogue, arranged in a single alphabet and including authors, titles of anonymous books, subjects of biographies, criticism, and other entries that are most conveniently and readily found when arranged alphabetically by definite names. It is chiefly an index of authors and editors with biographies, bibliographies and criticisms indicated by entries on green, blue and yellow cards respectively.

2 The subject catalogue closely classed and used by means of the full printed index of about 20,000 topics, each followed by a simple number referring instantly to the place in numerical order in the catalogue where all entries under that subject will be found. Fifty copies of the full scheme of classification with its index were given to the library by the author in order that they might be freely provided at the catalogue cases and in each room.

The form of these catalogues has been determined after careful study of scores of methods, and it is believed that they are the best known for the uses of this library. As to their execution it is the common remark of visitors familiar with catalogues that in beauty and legibility of handwriting, in number and convenient arrangement of guides by which the labor of consultation is reduced one half, and in details of arrangement and storage they are unsurpassed. Hurriedly written cards could be made with much less labor and cost, but it is wiser to secure the maximum of legibility, thus increasing the labor of the cataloguer who makes the card but once, but greatly lessening the labor of every consulter of the catalogue, many of the cards of which will be read thousands of times.

Classification on shelves. Our books, pamphlets, newspaper clippings and other material are all arranged on the shelves by the same minute classification used in the catalogues, bulletins and indexes. As fast as time can be found from the rapidly increasing daily work of meeting demands from readers, labels and guides are being placed freely on the shelves showing the position of each division and section. There is growing appreciation among users of the library of the great advantage of finding together in one place its resources on the subject in which they may be interested, and an increasing number are coming from distant points to avail themselves of the advantage of working in a large library so arranged. When our plans are fully carried out, we can give any applicant access to what the library contains on any subject with the least possible delay. To enable the reference librarian to give at once to any reader the book, pamphlet, article or chapter, which then and there and for him is the most valuable thing the library contains, requires a very carefully organized system carried out with great intelligence and skill. The labor involved in making the necessary catalogues and indexes to meet this ideal is beyond the conception of any one who has not made a special study of these problems, but once done on the new plan adopted it is done permanently; the work stands as long as the library lasts, and obviously it would be false economy to do this work hastily and imperfectly so that it would have to be done over again in the future. Compared with the few libraries in the world doing similar high-grade permanent work, it will be seen that the progress made by our limited cataloguing force is most creditable to their industry.

From the report of W. S. Biscoe, catalogue librarian, I extract the following:

Accession. 476 orders were sent to agents, 534 orders received and five canceled, leaving 127 orders outstanding October, 1891. This does not include orders sent to auction sales.

Card catalogue. Beside the regular additions of the year, the books in the class 929, genealogy, were finished and those in 920, biography, 930, ancient history, and 940-43, history of Europe, Great Britain and Germany, were also catalogued.

Shelf department. Of the volumes reported as not on the shelf lists last year, about 5,000 are still unmarked. They include the folios, newspapers, a portion of the U. S. documents, patents, etc.

Reference use. The rapidly increasing number of readers coming to the building has forced us to occupy the central room before completion. Desks of the reference librarians are placed in each end with an attendant at the entrance in the center. Though our rooms are unfinished and it requires a guide to find the way through the scaffolding and masonry outside the library door, and though as yet we have made no effort to increase the number of readers, a steady and substantial growth has filled our available rooms on busy days, and we have been compelled already twice to increase permanently the number of tables and chairs. The library has been ready since October 1, 1890, to keep open until 10 p. m., but suspension of work on the building for a year and delays in completing the electric-light plant have made it impossible. It is only the present week that we are promised early opportunity to open our doors. There is every indication that when we are fully in operation the use of the library will be several times greater than in the past.

Loans. As we circulate no popular books and do not undertake the functions of a public library for Albany and vicinity, a comparison of our circulation with that of an ordinary library is as misleading as to compare the circulation of a scholarly book with that of a great daily newspaper. For a reference library to supply a score of earnest students with books without which their studies might have been largely fruitless, is a greater work than to supply 1,000 volumes of popular novels. An increasing number of institutions of the University are using the library to supplement their own collections. Fears expressed by some that this might seriously impair the usefulness of the library at the capitol have been found almost groundless. We do not send away ordinary reference books or others in constant demand. Each institution is supposed to have the more common books at its disposal, and we find in practice that the books called for from various points throughout the state for use for a day or possibly a week or two, are seldom called for in Albany during their absence. Of many books a single copy which can thus be lent to one library and another about the state will supply the whole demand, and in no way can the same money do so much to encourage libraries and education as to provide that single copy in the state library to be lent as allowed under present rules.

From the report of D. V. R. Johnston, reference librarian, I quote:

The library has been open to readers every day, except Sunday, from 8 A. M. till 6 P. M., except during the months of November, December and the first two weeks of January, when the absence of artificial light made it necessary to close at 5 p. m.

Early in the year the pressure of the public in the smaller reference rooms forced us to move into the large central room before it was finished. The occupancy of this room in its unfinished condition has led to some inconvenience to readers as well as to staff; but constantly increasing use has more than proved the wisdom of the step, without which we could not have accommodated our readers.

It has not been found practicable to record the regular use of the library for reference, but its incidental use for lending is readily tabulated from the loan desk records.

The number of volumes drawn from the library under rule 4, are by months, as follows:

October, 1890 .....	456	June, 1891.....	464
November, 1890.....	547	July, 1891.....	338
December, 1890.....	539	August, 1891.....	292
January, 1891.....	730	September, 1891.....	264
February, 1891.....	695
March, 1891.....	675	Total, 1891.....	6,176
April, 1891.....	537	Total, 1890.....	2,120
May, 1891.....	639

Under authority of rule 4, 31 institutions have drawn books during the year, and 55 persons have been registered as special borrowers. Beside books sent to institutions, a number of books have been sent out to special students; but as all books sent from the city are transported at the borrower's expense, the books have been such as were impracticable for the persons or institutions to procure at home. This use, though of great service to the public, has not impaired the use of the library for official purposes in the city.

The percentage of books drawn from the ten main classes has been approximately as follows:

0 General works.....	33	7 Fine arts.....	2
1 Philosophy.....	1.25	8 Literature.....	20.4
2 Religion.....	2.5	9 History.....	19
3 Sociology.....	15.75
4 Philology.....	1.2		100
5 Natural science.....	3.2
6 Useful arts.....	1.7

Preservation

This head includes such matters as pertain to the safe keeping of books, pamphlets and other library property.

Binding. The experiment of the year has proved the wisdom of doing much of our own binding. We submitted to the library committee a collection of books as bound for the state by various firms, and beside them samples taken entirely at random from the work done during the past year in our own bindery. The improvement in appearance, strength and in every element that makes up a satisfactory book was evident to a layman and experts recognize that our binding is equal to the best, no effort being made for decoration, but simply for a maximum of durability with plain finish and lettering. We have gained in safety from fire, as our books have not had to leave this thoroughly fire-proof building; and in the very great convenience of having the books at hand so that, as often happens, a reader in haste to see a volume may have it brought from the bindery and make his reference within ten minutes, when under the old system he might have to wait for weeks. When to these advantages we add that the state would have paid for the inferior binding as much as this has cost, it is evident that this use of rooms and facilities can well be continued, while the record of the last few months shows that we shall be able to maintain this standard and make a saving sufficient to cover use of machinery and other incidental expenses. For details of the experiment I refer to the full records of the work done, with its value as estimated by the lowest contract prices which were offered us outside for satisfactory binding.

By the change made in terms the binders acquire a direct interest in doing full work and in saving all waste. Unless there is a clear profit in the bindery, they must work the longer hours and go without vacation, as do binders employed in private shops. Every employee is thus personally interested that the bindery shall be made a financial success.

D. V. R. Johnston, in charge of bindery, reports:

Though when work was begun on November 1, all machinery was in place and stock on hand, yet it was found that almost all the time of the binders for the first month was consumed in adjusting machinery, preparing materials and completing the organization of the shop, and in this month there was a loss in round numbers of $80. At the end of January a rough estimate was made and an approximate loss of $114 was found. A careful examination led to the conclusion that the only way to make the bindery a success was to introduce a closer subdivision of labor. Accordingly an apprentice was secured who was to give general assistance in all branches of binding. Since that time the bindery has shown a better statement.

On July 1, an inventory was taken and a balance sheet made as below:

EXPENSES
Total cost of stock .....	$580 34
Less on hand .....	280 95
Net cost of stock .....	$299 39
Wages.....	1,338 00
Repairs to plant .....	33 35
Total cost.....	$1,670 74
RETURNS
New binding .....	$1,268 70
Extra work, etc.....	302 43
Total return .....	$1,571 13

This shows a net loss of $99.61 for eight months.

As this loss was larger than there was reason to expect, a new agreement with the binders was made whereby instead of 48 hours per week they agreed from October 1, 1891 on to give 54 hours, and instead of 50 weeks the bindery was to run 52, closing only on the full legal holidays. On the other hand it was agreed that out of any profits made over and above expenses one-half should be divided among the binders either in the form of shorter hours, vacations or money, as they might elect. Moreover, the binders, on their own suggestion, surrendered one week of the vacation to which they were entitled.

On November 1, at the end of a full year, a complete inventory was taken and the account balanced, showing as below:

EXPENSES
Total cost of stock.....	$1,088 27
Less stock on hand.....	597 82
Net cost of stock.....	$490 45
Wages .....	2,094 00
Cost of repairs to plant.....	93 33
Total cost.....	$2,677 78
RETURNS
New binding.....	$2,139 10
Extra work, etc.....	459 32
Total return .....	$2,598 42

Thus, in the last four months, only one of which was under the new schedule of time, the bindery paid its way and reduced the loss on the preceding eight months $20.25, besides paying $59.98 for repairs and taking a week's vacation. Though in the preceding schedules "repairs" have been in all cases computed among running expenses, yet since $68.33 of the total of $93.33 has been spent in putting old machinery in condition to do good work, in justice to our workmen, this $68.33 should be charged to the equipment and not to running expenses. This would reduce the net loss to $11.03 for the full year. Having carefully studied the subject of library binderies during the year, it seems to me from all data collected that so long as we do work of the character now done to the amount of $3,000 per year, we are likely at least to cover expenses. During the year we have had $763.85 in work done outside, which added to work done in our bindery makes a total of $3,362.27. We are now doing work at the rate of from $3,200 to $3,400 per year, and this amount each year for many years to come can advantageously be done without loss, though it can hardly be expected that we shall absorb the whole cost of our plant.

Further details of work are shown by the following table, which is consolidated from similar reports submitted to the Director each month:

Shelving. We have secured during the year a few cases of shelves for patents in room 34<sup>3</sup> and four cases in the center, room 35. Most important is the shelving sufficient to make room for the new state medical library gained by moving out the library partition to include 30 feet of the dark corridor extending from the senate cloak room to the toilet room. The new shelving which is simply an extension of that already filled with history, will accommodate the history now stored in the two rooms south of the great central reading room, thus making them available for the medical library, besides bringing all the history together. The medical library will therefore be as well placed as the law, which occupies the corresponding rooms north of the center, and will be available evenings and holidays when only the central part of the library is open. The physicians of the state will thus have what they have so strongly urged, a room for their medical library on the legislative floor and near the main entrance. With the approval of the trustees of public buildings, Capitol Commissioner Perry cut a new door to the senate toilet room from the cloak room so that, while the senators have no further to go, their room will no longer be overrun by the general public, for whom ample provision is made elsewhere on the floor.

Taking in this space which was useless for any other purpose enables the senators to get any needed books from the state library directly through the the senate library by going only one fifth the distance heretofore necessary. While the new arrangement will be far more convenient for everyone than the old, fire-proof shelving for 25,000 volumes has been secured without building a new room or cutting off any part of the corridors useful as a passage. The objections to the use of corridor space in other places, that the partitions cut off light and give an appearance of temporary occupancy of the end of a corridor, do not apply as this corridor was already entirely cut off by the old arrangement. The evils were further modified by making the partition of glass and setting it so that it is not seen by those passing through the building.

There is pressing need of shelving on the fifth story for the 100,000 volumes of duplicates now boxed or piled in disgraceful heaps like so much fuel. The books are being seriously injured every added month that they are left in this condition, and as the only thing needed is plain shelving in the upper story, it is hoped that the next legislature will provide for arranging the duplicate department and putting in operation the system of exchanges, which will at once add largely to our own collection and place our state publications in many libraries where they will be permanently preserved and become useful to the public.

Building. It is quite impossible to give satisfactory supervision or to keep the various rooms in satisfactory condition till the workmen have entirely finished and removed their tools and materials. Constant confusion, dirt and litter are inevitable where mechanics are at work or almost daily passing through the rooms. As I reported last year, we are patiently enduring these annoyances trusting that the public will understand that it is not in any sense our fault, and that we are doing all in our power to lessen the discomfort to readers. New fireplaces have been put in during the year, adding greatly to the appearance of the room and improving ventilation. The new system of ventilation just starting, promises to give the library the best air in the capitol.

For a year we have suffered the severe annoyance of having no cleaners for our books, but within a week the superintendent of the capitol has again assigned to duty women who have begun removing the accumulated dust of the past year.

We hope in the next report to announce that the greatly needed elevator inside the library has been completed and is running.

LIBRARY SCHOOL

The special bulletin of 70 pages already printed gives so full a report of the school that only a word of summary is needed here. There is entire agreement among the faculty and visitors to the school that the last year has been an advance on any preceding. Each year the standard required for admission to the school is raised, for the number of applicants increases so that we are able to maintain the full number that we can accommodate while exacting annually higher requirements. A candidate for a degree in the Library school is required to have three years more of general education than is required by the best law and medical schools for their degrees, and the standard of work exacted in the two years of residence is also much higher, for we require 90 per cent in three fourths of all work of the course for a degree, and a minimum of 75 per cent for certificates and diplomas without the degree.

The growing respect for the standards of the school is shown in the number of applications made two, three, and sometimes five years in advance of entrance. Within a few days a promising student, whose friends thought him well fitted for librarianship, filed his application, saying that if in due time he could be received into the Library school, he would on completing his academic course next June, enter Cornell university, take its four year's course, and then complete the preparation for his life work in the Library school. We find in such cases our strongest encouragement for the future, for our need is of bright men and women, with broad general education supplemented with technical training, to fill the many positions now opening where good salaries will be paid if competent librarians can be found. As in university extension, this provision of trained workers is at the corner stone of any abiding success. It is useless to spend the state's money in elaborating plans of organization, erecting buildings, collecting libraries and museums, laying out extension courses, examinations and credentials, unless we can find competent workers. It is like building elaborate engines when there are no trained engineers available, or spending large sums on great organs with many keyboards and pedals and a wilderness of stops when the only performers available can handle only a single bank of keys.

As having a greater value to the regents and to the legislature than my own report I refer to that of the committee of the American library association, which annually appoints a committee of three disinterested experts to visit the school, study its workings and give to the profession their frank and unbiased opinion.

This report will be found in the Library journal for December 1891, p. 85-87.

[FROM PROCEEDINGS OF SAN FRANCISCO MEETING OF AMERICAN LIBRARY ASSOCIATION, 1891. Library Journal 16:C 85-87.]

Frank P. Hill, librarian of the Newark (N. J.) Public library reported as follows for the committee:

“What the school does

1 It offers the aspirants for library honors the same opportunities granted the lawyer, the doctor, the minister, each in his chosen profession. The students have a well-defined purpose in view and intend to carry it out.

2 It brings together those who are completely interested in the subject. The very elect go there. No drones are admitted, or, if they do get in, soon find the pace too fast and quietly retire.

3 It starts and educates the pupils in the right way, and prepares them for the real work which begins in the library proper.

4 The course of training gives the pupils an insight into the most approved methods of management and systems of classification adopted by the larger libraries in the country; and by occasional visits to the library centers they are enabled to see how the work is carried on. So when the graduates go forth, they are not wedded to one particular theory, but are prepared to grasp any. I am aware that some librarians prefer to train their own assistants, feeling sure then that they will be brought up in the way they should go. In the long run this may pay, but I doubt it. Exceptions only prove the rule. If I had my way every recruit should come from another library or the Library school, in order that new ideas might be brought in, fresh inspiration infused into the old soldiers, and a higher standard set for their emulation; just as one returns from a conference of the A. L. A. quickened by the intercourse with brother librarians, and ready to keep in line with all that is best in library work.

5 It keeps librarians and assistants on their mettle all the time. They don't want the school to get ahead of them. One good library school girl will put more snap into a staff than any amount of scolding, flattery, or A. L. A. conferences.

6 It places library work on a more elevated plane, by making it a recognized science.

7 It teaches trustees and the public to have greater respect for the calling of a librarian; for they find at the school not mere enthusiasts, but earnest, thoughtful, far-seeing students fully alive to the requirements of the times, and prepared to enter whole-souled into this great educational work.

8 It shows trustees where they can find competent employees. I do not mean to say there isn't good material in the libraries of to-day; but I do contend that there is a surplus of poor stock among us, and whatever can be done to improve the quality merits approval.

9 It has resulted in giving to new libraries trained and competent people, who could lay a good foundation and build upon it; and where a library school pupil has been put in charge of an old library better service has been the outcome.

10 Wherever its existence is known would-be applicants [for library positions] are deterred from becoming candidates. Boards of trustees now recognize the fact that local talent is not always the best. Really, the people do not care whether or no an employee is a resident — what they want is the service. Trustees no longer find it necessary to select a local candidate whenever a vacancy occurs. They can look only to the good of the library.

The time will come, and that soon, when trustees will no more think of taking an inexperienced person for librarian or assistant, than they would of engaging the services of a mining engineer to erect their building. Before the school was established, trustees seldom thought of going outside the city for library help. They felt they must select some local man or woman. Times are better now.

Finally: Every graduate is a living example of the usefulness of the Library school.

Rapid strides have been taken since 1887. Every year adds to its reputation, and in this success librarians rejoice. The school has settled down to staid, definite work. The hurry and drive, accompanied by high nervous tension, are gone. There is still plenty of interest and enthusiasm left, but one no longer notices that attempt to do too much in a short time. This year the instructors, not the pupils, seem to be the ones who need restraint.

From inquiries made of other librarians, supported by my own experience, it is conclusively proven that the pupils, as a rule, underrate rather than overrate their own ability.

A few words in the way of criticism: If anything, the entrance examinations are too severe. Perhaps not too much so to secure the best material; but it seems to me that just as good results might be obtained with a little lower standard. For instance, applicants who have had library experience, and appear to be imbued with the "proper library spirit," might be taken on trial even though they fail to pass the examinations, for it isn't always the best educated person who makes the best librarian. It is quite as necessary to know how to meet and treat people who visit the library as to know books; and the former is as hard for some to learn as is the latter for others. A happy medium is desirable.

The pupils should not be rushed. It were better to lengthen the course and not make them think they can learn everything in two years.

To librarians I would say: Steer clear of the Library school unless you are as enthusiastic as the instructors and pupils, and are fully prepared to answer all manner of questions.

It is a mistake that the name of the school should be confined to a single state; and I hope the board of regents having control of the school will consent to drop the words New York state from the title, and let it be known as "The Library School."

In my judgment the school is here to stay, and will continue to increase in usefulness until it shall be recognized and accepted by the great brotherhood of librarians and the community at large, as the most powerful agent in shaping successful library work."

This report is one more in the long series of testimonials to the practical wisdom of the regents in giving systematic training to librarians as an essential part of their duty in promoting library interests. Few new movements in education have received such warm commendation as has this, from every qualified person or committee that has examined it. In spite of its value and remarkable success, neither the length of the course nor the number of students can be increased, for the state has never been asked for a dollar for the expenses of the school. The director has from the first given his services outright, beside paying privately each year considerable expenses for which there was no other provision. Nearly a score of the foremost librarians of the country have generously shown their interest in this careful preparation for the profession, by giving their services as lecturers, and several of the state library staff has given much valuable labor outside official hours. As authorized by law, the regents conduct library examinations, which are open not only to the school but to the state at large, and employ for this work a single library examiner. All other expenses of administration and instruction are met by voluntary service or private gifts, by the $40 paid each year by every student, by the tuition fees paid by all non-residents of the state and by the systematic services rendered by the students to the state library in return for assistance from members of the staff. This great work has therefore been carried on without any state appropriation and justly deserves the high praise it receives from all those who take pains to understand it.

The appended statistics of the state library show compactly its increase in additions, in use and in work accomplished in the cataloguing department. If we are able to make as good a record of growth and increased usefulness in each coming year, we shall be abundantly satisfied.

Respectfully submitted

APPENDIX 3: SUMMARY OF SUBJECTS AND ENTRIES IN BULLETIN OF STATE LEGISLATION NO. 2

A detailed summary and index of legislation showing the scope of each law, the page where it will be found and the date of its passage was printed as a State Library bulletin, and furnished to all members of the legislature and to the state departments at the beginning of the session of 1892, and was also placed in the libraries of the state. The whole document edition having been destroyed by the fire in the state printing office, it is therefore thought unnecessary to reprint it, but the classification with number of entries under each topic showing the trend and character of legislation for the year is reprinted below.

FINANCES

Appropriations. There are granted annually $19,900 for salaries, $15,000 for books, serials and binding, and $3,000 for expenses. Beside the $15,000 the regents are also authorized by law to expend for books money received from the sale of duplicates or state publications. Several hundred dollars are now sent in each year for bulletins and other pamphlets thus showing conclusively the esteem in which they are held. In proposing this system of charging a small price for our publications, I predicted that it would result in showing what was really valuable, for people will not pay even a small price for anything they do not appreciate.

PAYMENTS 1891-92

	$37329 26	$36627 05

Detailed reports of all these payments have been submitted each month to the finance committee and are on record in the regents' office and also at the state controller's.

Salaries. Full details are given both in the regents' report and in the preceding tables. These will, however, mislead unless it is borne in mind that for convenience and economy of administration the regents include in a single staff all those employed in the half dozen different departments closely allied to the state library proper. The list is also larger, because under the law by which the regents assist in starting and reorganizing libraries throughout the state it is often necessary to detail members of the state library staff for temporary service elsewhere. As these services are paid for by the local libraries the state's payments are by so much reduced. If all on this list gave their entire time to the state we should greatly exceed the annual appropriation for salaries, but in fact so many give only partial time that, as shown in the financial tables both in the library and regents' reports, we each year have a small balance left over.

The list of promotions seems formidable till the system is understood. Only four of the 18 promotions are such in the ordinary sense and these are due to assumption of extra duties. The rest are merely the routine increase for each added year of experience. Instead of filling a $600 position with an untried assistant at $50 a month, as formerly, it is now given if possible to some one already in our employ who began at $20 a month with the understanding that if services were satisfactory there would be an increase of $5 a month up to this point for each year as long as there were vacancies. Thus, before the permanent salary was reached this name would appear six times on our lists of promotions when by the old system it would not appear at all. Yet by the new plan we have reduced our average expenditure for services over 30 per cent and secured a better grade of assistants than ever before. The usual increase in salaries is $60 a year. Under this system while we have added several senior assistants the average annual salary for the 11 additions to the staff is only $305.45.

The total cost of changes and additions represents not an increased cost of running the state library proper but that of vacation, holiday and evening opening, duplicate and public libraries departments, bindery, and law and medical and education libraries. For this extra work an estimate was made and the record shows that we have succeeded in keeping expenses something below what was appropriated for the purpose. Owing to the low salaries paid for the high grade of services required we each year lose several members of our staff who accept positions offering a large advance. By employing junior clerks to assist librarians and senior aids a given expenditure is made to yield its maximum, for often a librarian with a bright junior clerk can accomplish as much as two librarians. Every appointment is made in strict conformity to civil service rules, and in no department is more continuous and faithful service rendered. Total payments for salaries for the year have been $20,860.04.

Books. Tables B, D, and E, appendix 1, show in great detail how the $15,000 for books, serials and binding has been used. These are by months, by the 100 subject divisions, by size and style of binding and by frequency of issue of serials.

Under "Finances" above we give the actual payments during the fiscal year, as recorded by the bookkeeper. Table D gives the cost of the books added to the accession book during that period. As the dates of cataloging and the payment of bills do not agree, the totals for each year must of necessity vary in the two tables; though in a series of years they balance each other.

The library records show the cost of books added to be $9273.27; serials $1801.48 and binding $3387.09.

I propose with the coming year to organize five of the most efficient advisers on the staff into a book board to pass on every book recommended in order that we may, to the extent of our means, select exactly the books most needed in our library. A year's trial of the book board will probably show a still farther gain in this important matter.

Incidentals. While work on the capitol is in progress many expenses which would be paid from this fund have been borne by the construction department. As a result we have been able to turn back into the treasury an unexpended balance and hope to do the same for the coming year. On completion of the building, these expenses will be sufficient to use the entire appropriation of $3,000 a year.

Buying supplies. While the amount is small we have strictly observed the same rule explained on page 11 of the last report. No patronage is dispensed, but everyone is told that we always buy from the lowest responsible bidder that will fill orders promptly and satisfactorily. Whenever we find it possible to get lower prices the bookkeeper, by a standing rule, orders the next supply from the new source. The effect of this policy, approved by the finance committee and the regents before its adoption, could have been predicted, prices in some cases having fallen over 50 per cent below those previously charged; but while it has saved us thousands of dollars in the past four years, it has cost us the enmity of certain interested parties who had formerly supplied the departments at much higher prices.

There has been but one exception to this rule of buying from the lowest responsible bidder. Some articles have been made in Albany that could have been bought cheaper through the cooperative supply department of the American Library Association. This agency was started in 1876 by its cooperation committee, which, after comparing different appliances used by perhaps a score of libraries selected the best patterns and from these had made a supply large enough for 100 or more libraries instead of one. Making in large quantities and by special machinery in many cases reduced cost more than half while the quality was materially improved. After several years this business grew so large that the association transferred it to a corporation formed by several librarians for this purpose under the name Library Bureau. Your director was the originator of this cooperative plan and as secretary of the national association of librarians had direction of it. From 1880 to 1883 he was manager of the bureau, but is now only nominally connected with it as consulting librarian. Though the library committee and officers of the regents recommended that the state library should get from the Bureau any supplies which could be had there cheaper, I have thought it wiser because of former active and present nominal connection not to make such purchases.

By courtesy of the Bureau and because of assistance and advice in library matters, they have given me permission to use for the state without charge, any of their patterns or models even though covered by patents or copyrights. I have therefore had various makers in Albany duplicate, from models borrowed from the Bureau, articles which we needed. The cost of making in small quantity has been larger than to have bought them direct, but it precludes criticism. When we found that some articles for sale only by the Library Bureau and necessary for the most economical management of the library could not be made without an investment so large as to be prohibitive, the matter was submitted to Controller Wemple, who solved our difficulty by undertaking to have made or to buy for us whatever was necessary. In buying large quantities of supplies for the state offices he was able to command wholesale prices and also unusual facilities. As a result nearly every thing used by the library has been ordered by the controller from those who supply the state offices, and the prices have been approved by him before bills came to us for payment. Though at first there were many little things which could not be made at home, different Albany firms have now arranged for their manufacture so that there is little left which we need to get through the controller.

The demands of the library requiring numerous classifications and indexes of which your director is the author, he gave abundant copies for its use amounting at wholesale price to $200. These details are reported to the regents because it seems proper to record the extreme care which from the first has been taken by the new administration in expending state appropriations. Though our total expenditures for the year for supplies have been only $208.13 the principle is the same that has governed the expenditure of the nearly $40,000 used for books, salaries and other expenses.

PUBLICATIONS

As our library is the property of the whole state its proper work can be done only by the large use of publications which can go cheaply to all parts of the state. In order to save means for printing the most valuable we have begun by omitting from the annual reports much matter for which few people cared.

We shall hereafter print in compact form much detailed information as to the workings of the library and add other matter thought most valuable to library interests.

New York libraries. Last year we gave the fullest and most reliable statistics yet published of the 568 libraries which reported to the regents. These included location, name of library, year founded, volumes added during the past year, total volumes in library, hours open weekly for lending and for reading; expenditures for books, serials and binding, for salaries and for all other expenses, with totals; class of books if the library is not general, its ownership or control, terms of use and names of librarian or person in charge. Next year this list will be again revised to date and printed, still further improved in form. These statistics will appear in condensed form each year, and each five years a fuller report will be made so that the history of the libraries of the state can be fully traced through this annual bulletin.

Bulletin of additions. The list of state library accessions which was prepared promptly for publication is still unprinted, the pressure of work at the state printing office having crowded it over from month to month till finally its destruction by fire has still further postponed its appearance. The new University law now authorizes the printing of this and similar bulletins in advance of the annual report, and we can put before the libraries, institutions of the University and others specially interested, the lists of additions to the library without annoying delays. We propose to publish about January 1, and April 1 of each year a bulletin of important additions, including new books and important old ones, but not including unimportant old books received by gift and exchange or bought from auction or second-hand lists. These bulletins will be of the greatest practical value to the libraries of the state in advising them not only of what has been added to the state library but in giving them a carefully selected list of the best new books with catalog titles prepared by expert catalogers and with class numbers attached showing the scope of each book and guiding to its proper location on the shelves in any of the nearly 300 libraries using the state library system.

Law library bulletins. The subject catalog of additions to the law library for the past 10 years is in preparation and will be issued late in 1893. The law bibliography of each year will be begun as soon as the printers have caught up with the arrears caused by the fire.

Annotated reading lists. Next year we shall publish in compact form for wide distribution a dozen short annotated lists of the best reading, thus beginning one of the most important practical series possible to a state library department.

Bulletin of comparative legislation. The annual summary of comparative legislation continues to increase in public appreciation and is sought for all through the country and also by prominent scholars and libraries abroad wherever there is study of comparative legislation. We maintain this in the form of a card catalog for immediate reference during the year and thus are able to print promptly at the opening of each legislature. As all the states except Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, Rhode Island, South Carolina and Georgia now hold only biennial sessions, most of them coming on the odd year, we give the full charts of funds and expenditures only for the alternate years.

Library school bulletin. The Library school handbook has been called for so much more rapidly than was anticipated, many requests having come from abroad as well as from every state in the union, that the entire edition of 2000 copies has been already distributed and another edition must be prepared.

Printing. The typographic improvement in our recent publications has been generally and generously recognized. We hope by constant attention to make the publications of the state library models of their kind as is fitting to the place of peculiar eminence which our library occupies.

Since the invention of the linotype I have hoped that we might adopt it for catalogs and indexes to be used by various libraries in the state, thus effecting a great economy. Plans are nearly perfected and within a year or two we hope to use extensively this new method of printing which promises to solve the problem over which librarians have struggled so many years, how to secure printed catalogs well up to date without prohibitive cost.

LAW DIVISION

The law library now numbers 47,341. During the year, 1894 volumes were added, of which 901 were bought and 993 were gifts or exchanges, 1013 volumes were continuations of sets already on the shelves.

The character of the additions has not varied materially from that of former years, a large part being continuations of American, British and colonial reports, statutes, state papers, law periodicals and standard elementary works.

The following rare volumes have been added to our American statute law, and British and colonial reports :

Court of appeals cases and briefs of counsel. 156 volumes have been added to this set which is in constant use and highly prized, as there are but five full sets in the state and copies are not for sale. The style of binding has been changed from full law sheep to half goat, and in spite of the prejudice of the bar for the conventional law sheep there seems to be almost unanimous preference for the new binding, which is not only much handsomer but at least twice as durable for the same cost.

Prior to 1891 these much used cases were indexed by court terms and at the end of the year the six or eight small indexes were copied into a book. The card system, adopted for the next year, making it possible to find any case by a single reference was so much liked that the sub-librarian (H. E. Griswold) is now consolidating the old index with the new on standard cards uniform with the main library catalog. As few lawyers remembered the year of cases, without which the old index could be used only with very great labor, the advantages of the new system are highly appreciated by the courts and members of the bar.

Supreme court cases and briefs of counsels. As many cases decided by the supreme court never reach the court of appeals there has been a strong demand for a similar supreme court index. Hon. Marcus T. Hun, official reporter of the supreme court, has given the library his complete set of cases and briefs from 1874 to date in 30,000 pamphlets. Of the 1450 volumes which these will make 450 have been already bound uniform with the court of appeals set and the rest will be bound as fast as regular work allows. The cards for the court of appeals contain also an index form for the supreme court cases, and the single index will thus make almost instantaneous reference possible to any cases in any year in either court. For this important card catalog a case is to be built under the staircase in room 39.

The rapid increase of law publications renders it certain that a much larger allowance of money for buying law books than has hitherto been made, will be required to maintain the law library at the standard which it has held for many years past. The demand on our funds for new books and continuations leaves little money for supplying deficiencies.

EDUCATION DIVISION

Since the reorganization in 1889 we have kept steadily in mind the duty of the state library as a department of the University to develop one of the best educational libraries in the country. In 1890 we added 454 volumes, making a total of 1961, with 304 serials and 1158 subject cards. Last year we added 177 volumes, increased the serials to 384 and the subject cards to 1370. This year our total volumes have been carried to 2350, serials to 609, subject cards to 1618. In addition to this we have collected about 2387 valuable educational pamphlets. Now that Miss May Seymour has been transferred from the classification department and made sub-librarian for education, we shall make more rapid progress in this important department, though as she gives much of her time as secretary's assistant we are by no means doing all we ought for education. The west side of the south stack (room 44) is to be fitted up for an educational reading room, which the increasing use of the division demands.

MEDICAL DIVISION

In March, 1891, an appropriation of $5000 was made for providing necessary shelving and for other expenses attendant on the gift of its medical library by the Albany medical college. The rooms were duly fitted up, but it was found that there was need of farther legislation to enable the trustees legally to make the transfer. That legislation was secured as part of the University bill, which was not signed till a few hours after the trustees' annual meeting. The books are therefore not yet moved, but the final vote is promised soon. When this is passed the books will be promptly put in place, and we shall begin what we are confident will prove a most useful and satisfactory experiment. The plan has been widely and warmly approved by all who understand it, but the appropriation was only for initial expenses so that farther provision must be made before active work can begin.

MANUSCRIPTS AND ARCHIVES

The manuscripts, estimated at 250,000, can never be properly arranged till the manuscript-room (31a<sup>2</sup>) is completed. We have this year transferred to that room the large oak case formerly in the regents' office, and originally built for some of the valuable bound manuscripts, but during the coming year the four walls of the room ought to be shelved to the ceiling, with a gallery to reach the upper half. Not till then shall we be able to make the great manuscript riches of the library properly available to students.

Pressure of other duties connected with the reorganization has made it impossible to give any personal attention to this department beyond planning the thorough equipment of the room which is promised for the coming year. When that work is completed we can greatly increase the efficiency of this very important part of the state library work.

George R. Howell, archivist, reports:

The many calls for assistance in the library from people from all parts of the state as well as from Albany, and the search for information to give in answer to letters of inquiry referred to me or sent to me directly, have taken much of my time. The reading of catalogs of genealogy, local history and early American history and discovery has also occupied me to such an extent that less than half of my time has been devoted to index work on the Clinton manuscripts. Still I have completed the calendars for 12 of these volumes added a few years ago, and the whole series has now, written in each volume, a calendar or brief statement of the subject of each separate manuscript therein contained. I have also indexed six volumes of the Clinton papers. This index gives the important subjects of each paper and names of persons mentioned by volume and page. Some discrimination is needed in this work, as for instance, no separate record is given to each farm deed in the Oriskany patent, except that the name of each owner is indexed, but a paper describing the location and boundaries of this patent would of course be indexed under the name of the patent. It is intended to give the name of the principal in each transaction and of every one who is there represented by an autograph. Indeed in the management of the whole collection of the archives something more than mere clerical work is demanded. Judgment and discrimination and experience in index work and search for information are needed at every move. There are 24 bound volumes of translations of the Dutch records involving transactions of the governor and his council from 1638 to 1664 and a portion of the year 1673, and criminal and civil actions, and titles to lands. These translations do not follow the order in the volumes of original manuscripts. There is a printed index and calendar to the 21 volumes of original papers in the Dutch language, known as "N. Y. Colonial mss," but when a translation of a Dutch paper is required much time is liable to be lost in finding the translation. What is needed is to go over these volumes with the printed calendar and write in the margin of the latter the correct reference to the volume and page of the translations. The translations are not exactly helter-skelter, for 50 or more pages may be found in the proper sequence, and then there is a jump to some other volume. The order is not chronological nor entirely by subject matter, so that in the long run time would be saved by the proposed indexing of these volumes. Believing that it was for the best interests of the state I have actually at odd times thus indexed six of these volumes of translations. They assist in reading the Dutch manuscript, much of which is written very badly and in an alphabet of its own or rather in several alphabets. But even these translations have to be verified in many places where some later hand has written "incorrect" or "wrong" on the margin. As papers are liable at any time to be needed in court the necessity of finding them quickly and of absolute accuracy both of the copy of the Dutch and the translation, is very clear. One hour a day might be profitably given to completing this index.

In order to know substantially what had been committed to my care I have been obliged to examine carefully each book or set of books, and have arranged them so that any one can easily be found when wanted, and placed titles on many that had lost or never had them.

Autographs of the signers. Some 30 years ago by the advice of the regents the legislature appropriated $800 for a collection of letters and autographs of the signers of the declaration of independence. This collection is known to be one of the best and most valuable one of the signers in existence and it has been strengthened by several additions since the purchase. It contains also engraved steel portraits of most of the signers and an autograph letter of Washington. The collection, in the opinion of a gentleman well informed in such matters, has now a commercial value of $20,000. As a safeguard in case of loss by theft or otherwise I have thought it prudent to copy in a book provided for this purpose every letter in this collection and to make a record of each portrait, and of each document signed, therein.

Clinton mss. While the Clinton mss were out of the custody of the library for purpose of indexing, two of the 38 autograph letters, therein contained, of Washington were stolen. I have tried three several times to secure copies of these from Mr George Bancroft who in 1877 had copies of them made for his use, but so far have been unsuccessful. Besides the number above given there are four other Washington letters in the Clinton papers which are copies.

Columbus portraits. As everything pertaining to Columbus is of interest to the public this year, I deemed it important to be prepared to answer questions as to the portraits of the discoverer. I therefore made a list of all the portraits of Columbus contained in books or elsewhere in the state library. Then by correspondence and otherwise ascertained information and from various quarters secured copies of nearly all other portraits of Columbus of any value in existence in form of photographs or engravings. They number over 40 and I have made a card catalog of these showing where the originals may be found, their value and characteristics.

Land papers. There are 12 volumes of land papers, being the original drafts of patents for land in the state. These form two series but are similar in contents and acquired at different times. Three of the first series were indexed many years ago. The later series of six volumes I indexed in 1891, making two separate indexes in each volume, one of the patentees and the other of all other names of persons mentioned in the grants with the local geographic names all in alphabetic order. These volumes are valuable in tracing titles to large areas of lands in the state and some time the remaining three should be indexed.

Future work. As to future work several suggestions are offered:

- 1 Finish the index of the Clinton papers and then prepare the calendar and index for publication in one or two volumes. This will take considerable time as 41 volumes remain to be indexed and the calendars of the whole 47 volumes would need to be copied for the printer.

- 2 Publish the calendar and index of the 26 volumes of the Sir William Johnson papers, which cover the same period as the Clinton mss, the period just preceding and during the revolution. This volume would not take as much time to prepare for publication as that of the Clinton papers.

- 3 Publish as v. 16 of the Colonial history the calendar prepared by Mr Fernow, which is ready for publication whenever an appropriation is made by the state for that purpose, printing consecutively in this calendar the most important papers referred to. By this means, useless expense in publishing papers of little importance will be avoided, and the state will present to its citizens in accessible form, the substance of these valuable records. These papers cover the colonial history of the state from 1664 to 1776, and would prove of interest to historical students and a valuable addition to the series of colonial history.

- 4 Publish translations of the French archives copied for the state library a few years ago.

- 5 Publish the most important of the Clinton and of the Johnson papers as another volume of the colonial history.

Unless otherwise directed I propose to go on with the work of indexing the Clinton papers, as I understand that to be the wish of the regents, and that I devote most of my time to work on the manuscripts in the library.

There is urgent need for the completion of the shelving in the room occupied by the manuscripts. The upper portion of the west wall resting on a proposed gallery if provided with pigeon holes and boxes would accommodate all the bundles of loose papers on file that have been deposited here by the legislature since the formation of the state, and with something to spare. Only when all the shelving in the room shall have been completed can the books all receive their permanent location and then might be made a card catalog which should also designate their position on the shelves.

PROPOSED DIVISIONS

Military and agricultural libraries. The state library should give special attention to collecting military and agricultural books. The ordinary public library has little in this direction, but the state because of its own military department and the great agricultural interests, should naturally make these subjects prominent as it does legislation, law, and education, and its own local history. I therefore recommend, if we can secure from the state agricultural society and from the adjutant general and the G. A. R. the cordial cooperation necessary to complete success, that we establish military and agricultural divisions as we already have for law, medicine and education.

ACQUISITION

Accessions 1818-92, by five-year periods. Before the regents became trustees of the state library no record appears of the annual additions, but there was a total of 11,058 volumes in 1844. The figures below are given for the beginning of each half decade. Even the remarkable gain shown in the last line does not do justice to the saving in buying under the new system, for during these years we have been completing many expensive sets which, while adding greatly to the value of the library, make much less showing in the total of additions. In succeeding years there will be much greater gain, though this short period now shows more additions than any of the preceding five year periods.

This record of 7242 bound volumes represents really only about half our additions for in all 13,029 volumes and pamphlets have been added to our shelves and catalogs and 2,534 to our duplicate collection, beside about 50,000 publications in parts.

Order department. 967 orders were sent to agents ; 849 orders were filled and 24 canceled, leaving 221 orders outstanding October 1, 1892. Many orders have been sent to auction agents, not counted in the above statement.

Character of additions. The full tables appended show compactly and clearly how the expenditure has been distributed over the 100 divisions of the library. As is fitting for a state library, political science, economics, law and American history are the leading subjects, while others for which there is less demand have been represented only by a few books which every reference library must have for its general work.

Some of the most important additions of the year are :

Gifts. The remarkable increase in gifts is most gratifying. The list appended to the last report included the gifts of two years, as the list did not appear in the report for 1890 with which it was submitted, the copy having been accidentally detached and the report bound before the omission was discovered. Evidently we can rely on gifts for very large annual additions if we continue our present policy of systematic canvassing. The various great subjects are assigned to members of the staff according to personal interest, and each is held responsible for publications in his own subject and for sending the proper request form wherever a gift can probably be secured. The system used was fully illustrated in the report for 1891, pages 12 to 16.

Periodicals. Last year we were taking 863. This year 203 more have been added, making a total of 1066. Many of these are given outright by publishers who appreciate the desirability of having complete files in this great reference library free to all parts of the state. It has involved much correspondence and personal effort on the part of the librarians to secure all these but it makes our list one of the largest in the country.

The receipt of each number is checked the same day on the record blank. Every two months the entire list is examined and anything in arrears is secured, or if publication has been stopped the fact is noted.

Sequents. Besides these 1066 periodicals we have also a card catalog of other sequents or publications appearing at intervals, like reports of institutions, proceedings of societies, etc. There are now received 3121 sequents, and for the convenience of our own and many other libraries the full list will be printed as an appendix to the next report. Once each year this list is checked through and delinquents are followed up till our sets are completed. At the time this involves some labor but little or no expense. A few years later money often can not buy the missing numbers which have gone out of print.

Special appropriations. The appropriation of $15,000 a year for books seems a considerable sum. As explained in my report for 1891 page 11, we have secured lower prices than ever before and by careful watching of auction sales and old book lists are still further increasing average returns for each dollar of state money. We have also made a phenomenal increase in gifts secured. But when we have paid for the regular continuations of sets already started, have bound the 3121 different sequents that we are regularly receiving, spent some hundreds of dollars more in binding that represents annual wear or deterioration of our 162,109 volumes and in binding selected volumes from our 250,000 mss, and have bought the most important of the new publications, we find our money entirely exhausted. It is therefore necessary, if we are to fill in the large gaps, that special appropriation should be secured for the purpose. We have done much in the last three years, but only by buying less than we ought of new books. Hereafter we must secure either a larger annual appropriation or must get special grants for filling gaps.

Our law library to maintain its present leading position must add largely in foreign law and spend more than heretofore on American departments. In legislation and education we also need several thousand dollars to fill important gaps.

UTILIZATION

Catalog. Besides caring for the regular additions to the library, we have cataloged and rearranged the remainder of European history (944-949) and the history of other foreign countries (950-972, 980-999). A large part of sociology (300) has also been finished. All books added since 1888 and nearly half the older books are now in the new catalog.

The admirable card index to cases and briefs of the New York supreme court and the court of appeals is described under the head "law division," and other work under the head "publications."

Printed titles. This department has before it some serious problems. No item of expense so often troubles trustees as cost of cataloging. We have studied the subject with unusual care for many years and believe our catalog is being made as economically as possible consistently with the quality which the position of the library demands. Without doubt the catalog card of the near future will be written on machines or printed. We are conducting experiments and awaiting experience elsewhere, but are not quite ready to start the new system. The upright, uniform, disjoined library hand adopted by us gives the legibility without some of the difficulties of typewriting. When we abandon writing cards by hand it will probably be to print them from linotype blocks.

The state library is the natural center for issuing to the other libraries of the state printed titles of the best new books ready to drop immediately into the local card catalog. Of these the most important feature will be carefully prepared but very compact annotations. The American library association is at work on this problem through its publishing section and subcommittees, and we think it so important to start the new system so that it shall not be necessary to change it later that we have delayed action.

Our new form of catalog drawers or trays adopted last year have been much admired and copied, and for large libraries promise to replace the common drawer of much less capacity. Our peculiar form of shelf list has also been widely copied and is known as the New York shelf list. Our geographic index to all places on which books will be found in the catalog has proved a valuable supplement to our general printed classification indexes.

Reference use. The growth in reference use, which has been from the first the great function of our library, is so remarkable that it is unfortunate that the exact figures can not be given. A turnstile or count recorded at the entrance would show on some days 1000 mere visitors, perhaps not one of whom used a book. We can only judge from the number of books replaced each day on the shelves, from increasing calls on librarians and assistants and from the number who are working at the shelves and using many books which they themselves replace, thus leaving no record. It has not seemed worth while to annoy readers by making them report the amount of their use for the sake of giving exact statistics. To those visiting the library daily the justice of the estimates of the reference staff is evident.

In 1890, statistics taken from time to time indicated a daily reference use of 150 volumes supplied to readers and as many more used at the shelves, or about 80,000 volumes a year. This use has steadily increased and is now estimated by the reference librarian to be at least three times as large, reaching probably 250,000 volumes yearly. The largest of the state libraries is therefore now fully justifying the money spent on it since its establishment in 1818.

We are still embarrassed from unfinished quarters. Our library elevator is not running and workmen make the rooms less attractive. By carpeting the stairs and the 300 feet of vista through which the crowds of visitors march in almost endless procession, noise is reduced to a minimum so that readers are little disturbed. As the library is known to be the most beautiful part of the famous capitol, even the rights of readers to absolute quiet have not seemed sufficient to justify shutting the main rooms. While we lose some readers on this account, the great increase is evidence that the usefulness of the library is not seriously impaired, and it is fairly the part of a great library so magnificently housed to impress chance visitors with the dignity and importance of such collections. There must be a distinct though small educational value to many thousand visitors each year in seeing what intellectual riches New York state provides for its citizens and how nobly it has installed them, as if in recognition of their importance to the welfare of the commonwealth.

The library has been open for public use every day, Sundays excepted, from 8 a. m. till 6 p. m. whenever there has been light sufficient for reading and for guaranteeing proper protection to state property. From November 15 to January 15, there being no artificial light, it closed at 5 p. m. On March 7 electric light was furnished and till May 18, when the electric current was cut off for repairs to the plant, the library was open till 10 p. m., except Saturdays, when the engineers are off duty and there is no artificial light in the capitol after 5 p. m. So long as there was natural light, though nominally the library closed at 6 p. m., readers were allowed to remain and continue work till it became dark, and considerable numbers used this privilege.

During the year effort has been made to increase the usefulness of the library to educational institutions in the vicinity and to persons pursuing courses of study. Lists of books have been prepared, some with the aid of those interested, and books have been conveniently placed in the main reading-room, properly labeled, for the use of students, just as is done for university extension courses. This experiment has been so successful that at times there have been as many as seven collections in use at once, all on courses of serious study. This plan, while adding nothing to the labor of our attendants and perhaps even lessening it a trifle, seems to have decided educational advantages to students, since it gives them facility in consulting and comparing authorities which they could not get if forced to consult books through the intervention of a catalog.

The number of registered borrowers and books lent has also greatly increased, as the accompanying tables show, though by no means in proportion to growth in reference use.

Reference lists. The following blank is used to prepare for the bulletin board or press brief reading lists on timely topics. The best books, pamphlets and articles on subjects under discussion in the legislature, are duplicated on blanks and sent to those most interested, as well as posted in the library. Pressure of other work has forced us to use this admirable method much less than we hope to after completion of the building. Obviously lists thus made, often with help of experts outside the library, become of great practical value for future reference whenever any one may again wish to look up that subject. Reference is made to them in the subject catalog so that they shall not be forgotten.

[FORM]

For convenience of legislators and state officers the library issues a series of reference lists on topics of current interest. Books in constant demand are kept in the library for reference during all hours of opening. Others are lent under Rule 4, viz:

Members of the legislature, judges of the court of appeals, justices of the supreme court, heads of the several state departments, their deputies and clerks officially resident in Albany, donors to the library to the amount of one hundred dollars, all institutions of the University, such other libraries as may be approved by the library committee, and by the written permission of a regent, others having special claim on its facilities, may borrow books, subject to recall if specially needed. Books shall be lent only to registered borrowers, and delivered only on personal application or on a written order, by which full responsibility for books so delivered is assumed. No book shall be lent by a borrower.

Evening use. For the short time that the library was open evenings, the public used the opportunities offered more than we had reason to expect, considering that the plan had hardly time to advertise itself and work its way into favor. Evening readers were rather different in character from ordinary day users, being composed largely of those occupied during the day and so cut off from library privileges. I append the number of readers for each evening that the library was open, in order to give every facility for studying this experiment, on which we entered with some hesitation. It is so contrary to tradition to have rooms in the capitol open evenings that many doubted whether any would come. So far the experiment has been more successful than we hoped, and when the opening becomes regular, the library elevator and entrances available, and the fact known, the use will doubtless abundantly justify the extra cost, though this is not as large as would be supposed. No extra heat is required, and we light not the entire 20 rooms but only enough tables in the center to accommodate the readers present. The other rooms are closed to the public and only one sixth of the day force is needed. Some of these evening users are citizens from a distance whose time is valuable and who by having five extra hours after public offices close can often get home a whole day earlier. Lawyers with important cases in the courts and legislators with important bills in hand find a great advantage in having the reference rooms so constantly available. We shall carefully observe and record the evening use after the completion of the building gives it fair trial.

Silence and decorum in reading rooms. In every large library this is a serious problem. In ours it is doubly so. While some readers can work amid confusion others are totally unable to do so and justly complain bitterly of the management if their day's work is largely spoiled by the carelessness of others. So far as possible tables in the stacks or private reading rooms are given to readers needing a quiet place for study, our rooms having been planned specially for such cases. Our greatest embarrassment comes from careless visitors and officials, who being at leisure themselves forget that others are studying, and talk as freely in the library as in the corridors. Some readers insist that visitors should be shut out, but as the library is conceded to be the most beautiful part of the capitol, and as it is the property of the entire state, it seems necessary to continue the welcome we have always given even to visitors who wish merely to walk through its splendid vista from street to street. By heavy carpeting on this pathway of the sightseers and by courtesy of the orderlies, who speak only in the lowest tones and thus set an example to the visitors, the noise has been reduced perhaps three fourths. In the law division, rule 18 has been enforced to the great comfort of lawyers who have in past years been seriously disturbed by law students who carelessly discussed their cases audibly.

The difficulty is illustrated by cases where the librarian in charge has been bitterly censured by studious readers because he did not insist on greater quiet from careless visitors and state officials who ruined the room for study, and at the same time he was complained of by the careless because of the partial restraint which he had exercised. In this as in many other parts of our work I conclude that we are taking a safe middle course when we are criticized by extremists on both sides. Certainly every reasonable man will recognize that it is a duty, however unpleasant, of the librarian in charge politely to restrain any visitor from annoying the entire body of readers.

We shall make no serious effort to attain an ideal standard of quiet in the reading rooms till the workmen have left the building and we are free from the dirt and noise which are inevitable even with the most careful employees. The improvement in this respect however is gratifying. The greater quiet is doubtless partly due to the presence of many ladies, who more and more use the library for study. In the past year we have had but one noticeable case of discipline. A law student annoyed by the entirely unjustifiable liberties of a fellow who seized him from behind threw an inkstand over his shoulder at the offender and spattered two or three shelves of books. He however promptly paid the expense of restoring their bindings, about $30.

Loans. On page 24 of the last report I pointed out the significance of the comparatively few loans and the folly of comparing them with the totals of a circulating library. The exact statistics kept at the loan desk show a five fold gain from 1889 to 1890, another three fold gain in 1891, with a still further increase of 40 per cent in 1892, or a total gain in the four years of .833 per cent.

Loans to institutions and special investigators. Continued experience shows that we can safely lend books to libraries and institutions of the University throughout the state and to special scholars without materially injuring the state library for use in Albany. There is growing appreciation of the value of this service throughout the state, and our successful experience seems to justify its still wider extension.

In 1891 only 31 institutions availed themselves of the privilege. This year eight colleges, 14 libraries and 40 academies, or just double the number, were thus materially accommodated, receiving in all 256 volumes. In 1891, 50 special orders were granted to students having special claims on our facilities. In 1892 there was a gain of 122 per cent, 122 orders being issued.

This work is in its infancy. Most of those who ought to benefit from these privileges have not yet learned that they are available. Students frequently express surprise and delight at the new system and regret that they had not learned of it earlier when they needed it so keenly. Just as the railway altered the character of higher education by making it easy to travel long distances to reach the best schools, so the cheap and prompt transportation afforded by modern mails and express and the ingenious devices of metal corners, corrugated paper and special boxes for protecting books from injury in transit will mark a new era in usefulness of libraries like our own.

PRESERVATION

Binding. The report this year from our continued experiment in binding our own books is most satisfactory. The principle of employing a cheap helper to work with a trained expert is applied there as in the regents' office and literary work of the library. In many cases a master mechanic with a good helper can do as good work and about as much of it as two master workmen. On this principle two apprentices have been added to the binding force, one to assist the sewer, the other to assist the forwarder and finisher. The result as shown by statistics is most gratifying. In estimating value of work we take the lowest and not the average prices that we are charged for similar work outside. Our figures are therefore very conservative.

On page 26-29 of the report for 1891 a full statement of the advantages of the new bindery were given, with note of the change in hours required. During the year the bindery has worked under this new schedule and has converted the loss of $79.36 existing on November 1, 1892, to a profit of $300.45. As the bindery started November 1, 1890, and the last report was for a full year to November 1, 1891, the accounts are given for the whole time as well as for the past 11 months, thus making the bindery year agree with the fiscal.

This profit of $300.45 shown as the result of a year and 11 months' work, is based on actual outlays and cash values received, liberal allowance, 20 per cent, being made for deterioration in plant and interest on investments; supervision and use of room are not counted, nor, on the other hand, are any of the indirect advantages to the library figured. On the other hand, some idea of the indirect pecuniary advantages derived from our bindery may be had from the fact that at present we are having a set of about 1500 volumes bound outside by contract at a rate 15 per cent less than we were ever able to obtain before our library bindery was started.

As a convenience to the library and its public the bindery is worth a very considerable sum. Books no longer have to be long withheld from use for rebinding, and periodicals and books issued in parts can be placed on our shelves for consultation at least a month sooner than when bound outside. Moreover there is no longer danger of loss or destruction in transportation or while stored in outside binderies.

As our figures are conservative, the bindery has clearly proved the wisdom and economy of its establishment.

Building. Substantial progress has been made during the year in the completion of quarters which will be more magnificent than those of any other large library. We have suffered patiently the same embarrassment as in previous years. For the past month work on the great library staircase, which the architects assert is the grandest ever built, has filled the main approach to the library with stones and workmen, so that entrance has been through a temporary door put in place of a window at the end of a dark alley. This must serve for a year or more while the splendid work is in progress.

New shelving. Statistics show that we have added this year 13,029 books and pamphlets, which have gone on our regular shelves and catalogs. When the 2534 that have come in to the duplicate collection, and the thousands of volumes of state publications are added, room for 25,000 volumes a year will plainly be a low estimate for the new shelving required. Other departments may from time to time reduce the number of publications on hand to make room for new ones, but it is the duty of the library to keep its books forever. Our annual additions alone will thus equal five town libraries of 5,000 volumes each, and only those who have studied this problem can appreciate how liberal must be the provision and how skilful the planning for so great an increase. We have planned the space not for the needs of a year or a decade, but of a century later. Each year we must build new shelving enough to hold at least 25,000 volumes, but we must find a place to put that shelving within our own territory. Our rooms are capable of holding 3,000,000 volumes, and competent judges say that no library in the country has shown greater skill in utilizing all available space in order to guard against the most serious difficulty that besets libraries in all parts of the world, that of being smothered in their own riches and crowded out of buildings which were thought to provide them permanent homes.

Electric light. It was determined a year ago to insulate more thoroughly all the electric light wires which had just been laid, in order to insure the greatest possible safety from fire. As a result the library was closed in the evening for over six months, but the new system is now in working order in most of the rooms. The lights are controlled at the entrance of each room and in the center from the reference librarian's desk, and also on each gallery and table by separate buttons. The tables are provided with electric student lamps adjustable in height and with green porcelain shades to afford the best possible protection to the eyes.

Improvements. The glass floors have been completed in the iron stacks, a new toilet room built in room 44, 20 new oak tables have been added, a window has been cut through the granite wall into the toilet room opening off the center, giving much needed light and ventilation; a large locked closet for supplies has been built at the entrance to the director's room; in room 31 the chandeliers have been lowered and the east and north walls have been covered with oak shelving with two galleries broad enough for reader's desks. These desks project 25 centimeters beyond the rail, forming a series of curves, and by ingenious use of space we get 16 desks on the galleries and thus double the capacity of the room. A door filled with clear glass has been cut from the center through to room 36, making a needed connection on the first level above the main floor and carrying out the policy of opening long vistas, which, beside adding to the attractiveness, are of great practical value in bringing several rooms under direct supervision of one person. The 40 speaking tubes which run from the loan desk in the center to the various University rooms have been inclosed with a beautifully carved oak and glass closet so that readers are no longer disturbed when the telephone, tubes and bells are in use, as they are almost constantly.

Card catalog drawers. The remaining space on the east wall has been covered with pockets and drawers for the new card catalog. These were designed specially for the state library and will accommodate in the given space five times as many cards as ordinary drawers. This case has a capacity of 600,000 cards, and when this is occupied, as it probably will be in about 20 years, a similar case will replace the shelves on the north side of the entrance furnishing accommodations for over 2,000,000 cards.

Electric clocks. We have this year put in a system of electric clocks, connecting 15 large dials in the rooms where they are most needed with the fine regulator already owned by the library and famous as one of the best time keepers in the city. Accurate time is now promised, agreeing in every room absolutely with the standard clock.

Ladies room. A novel feature in the equipment of a library is the small room cut off from the coat room 34a, exclusively for the use of ladies. Opening out of it are the ladies' coat and toilet rooms, while in it are ample provisions for cases for umbrellas, rubbers and personal packages. There is also provided a couch, suggested by two or three cases of fainting on the part of ladies while in the library; a small family medicine chest containing a dozen things most likely to be needed, and to complete the equipment, a workbasket with a score of little conveniences which a woman oftenest wants.

These details are mentioned to illustrate the spirit of the library, which is to try to make it attractive and convenient for readers, so that students shall find themselves able to accomplish more work in a given time than in any other place. At the new loan desk will be found time tables, telegraph-tariff books, long distance telephone, messenger call, postage stamps, ordinary stationery, and, chiefly, a polite attendant specially trained to answer the thousand and one questions which are likely to come from a library full of readers representing every class of people.

LIBRARY SCHOOL

Again we can report the best year in the history of what is no longer an experiment but an institution with a position recognized by the leading libraries both at home and abroad. The school has so grown in popular estimation that we have been compelled every year to raise our standards for admission in order to keep the number of students within manageable limits. This year we were forced to omit the fall entrance examination entirely and to reject candidates who in previous years would have been admitted. Still higher requirements have been announced so that the school may limit itself to advanced work which can not be so well done elsewhere. Last year attention was called to the library training class at Pratt institute in Brooklyn, conducted by one of the early graduates of the school. This year a similar class has been opened by the Drexel institute in Philadelphia, where Miss Alice B. Kroeger of the class of 1891 and Miss Bessie R. Macky of the class of 1892, are librarian and assistant. In Los Angeles, Cal., there is a class which follows the general methods of the school. It seems to the faculty wisest that this system of branch schools or of classes more or less closely affiliated to the original school should care for the increasing numbers who wish instruction, and for whom we have not room without danger of inconveniencing readers. While no such criticism has been made, it has been our policy to guard against it by keeping the school strictly within the limits originally planned.

On page 34-35 of the last report attention was called to the fact that the school is supported without appropriation from the state. To the acknowledgments there made for cooperation, gifts and services, should be added thanks to the many publishers and others who have made unusual concessions to the students in appreciation of the importance of their work and the fact that the school had neither endowment nor state appropriation. Some publishers have given copies of needed books outright, some have furnished them at special rates, often below the lowest wholesale terms. The labor and cost of caring for the supplies and keeping the accounts is borne by the students themselves, who thus get the full benefits of cooperation. This enables them to buy at wholesale and to have various technical articles made which could otherwise be obtained only at the cost of much time and labor. The school is specially indebted to the Library Bureau of Boston, which for 16 years has been the cooperative supply department for the American Library Association. It has given much to the students outright, much else at less than prices to dealers, and the rest at lowest wholesale price, thus enabling them to save a considerable sum each year. This is the more worthy of acknowledgement since the state library and regents' office buy none of their supplies from the Bureau because of the director's former active and present nominal official connection with it.

As having greater value to the regents and to the legislature than my own report I refer to that of the committee of the American Library Association, which annually appoints three disinterested experts to visit the school, study its workings and give to the profession their frank and unbiased opinion.

Their reports will be found in the Library journal for August 1892, p. 31-34. The following extracts are made, one from each of the three reports:

"The missionary spirit of the school has evidently not died out, for the students have undertaken the support of a very praiseworthy enterprise in a "home library," perhaps the first of a number.

"As a finish to my visit I was taken through the rooms at the top of the capitol building which are to be devoted to the use of the Library school, and having seen these, with their magnificent outlook on all sides, I felt more than ever that the first class ought to go back and take their course over again. Each year shows an advance on the year before as the best of the old features become established and new and desirable ones are added."

"1 The managers of the school are improving it, as experience teaches them where improvements are feasible.

"2 The standard to which applicants must attain is made higher from year to year.

"3 There seems to be a successful attempt to give a broader range to the interests of the pupils.

"4 The broadening of the course of study so that it is not confined so closely to mechanical methods as it was at the beginning is also commendable."

"The standard of library spirit and enthusiasm is, I feel sure, as high as ever, and the intellectual grade that of a picked body capable of post-graduate work. Their degrees show this, as they are only conferred for higher work than is done in a large per cent of the incorporated schools of the state."

Graduates and students. The closing exercises of the Library school for the year 1891-92 were held in the state library July 5, preceding the session of the New York library association. An address by Regent William Croswell Doane followed an address by the director of the school. Bishop Doane, in behalf of Chancellor George William Curtis whose serious illness caused his absence for the first time, conferred the following degrees and diplomas: —

Degree of B. L. S.: William Reed Eastman, M. A. (Yale).

Elizabeth Louisa Foote, B. A. (Syracuse).

Mary Letitia Jones, B. L. (University of Nebraska).

Bessie Rutherford Macky, B. A. (Wellesley).

Katharine Lucinda Sharp, Ph. M. (Northwestern).

Diploma with honor: Mary Louise Davis.

Diplomas: Mary Ellis, Mary Esther Robbins.

Every member of the class is now engaged in library work as follows:

PUBLIC LIBRARIES DEPARTMENT

From my acceptance of office I have given special attention to the claims of public library interests in this state. Increasing calls led two years ago to printing the following which has been sent to all inquirers with such written supplement as each case required.

[CIRCULAR]

In response to frequent letters from librarians and others interested in improving their library facilities, the following notes are printed:

1 It is of the first importance that the person making these inquiries should be familiar with recent library work and ideas, or the advice given will be only partially understood or appreciated. We are glad to send circulars and pamphlets giving these general ideas briefly, but these should be carefully read before undertaking any definite plans or asking many questions.

2 When it is really determined to found a new library or to make an old one more efficient, the first step is to educate the community as to the great practical value of the modern library and to make them understand how much more it means than the library of a generation ago. To this end the local papers should be supplied with short articles and notes which will stimulate public interest, so that when the second step is taken and the right speaker can be secured for a public address which shall kindle interest and enthusiasm, you can be sure of a good audience. After this the press must be constantly utilized to keep before the public the results of similar efforts in other places till the community is convinced beyond doubt that the new library will be not only a good and pleasant, but as profitable a thing as good school houses, which even land speculators with no interest in education for its own sake find it wise financial policy to build and support liberally, because it increases the value of their real estate by far more than the cost.

The teachers and clergy must also be specially interested so that in week day lectures, in literary clubs and in all proper places the idea will be presented in its manifold lights.

3 With such a beginning it will not be difficult in any intelligent community to get the necessary votes and an appropriation for a creditable beginning. Then it must be remembered that without thorough knowledge of the subject, no community or board of trustees ever appreciates the labor and necessary cost of proper preparation for the work. They must be taught first by submitting the theory and then proving it by practical results in other towns, that everything depends on the adoption of right methods, and that $5000 handled in the wisest way will do a great deal more good than $10,000 as it is often expended.

The spirit of the present administration of the state library is seen in the following resolutions unanimously adopted by the regents:

"That the secretary be authorized, on application from any school, library or museum which either is or applies to become a member of the University, to detail one of the staff to visit and give needed advice and assistance in starting or reorganizing the same, provided that the necessary traveling and hotel expenses shall be borne by the institution asking the service."

"That a series of Library bulletins similar to the Regents' and Museum bulletins be printed to contain the records of additions to the state library, bibliographical and other matter which it is most important to circulate in advancing the library interests of the state of New York."

Proper advice at the beginning saves serious mistakes and often, also, very unwise expenditures.

4 As soon as our work can be reorganized and the state library itself freed from the mechanics who are completing the rooms, we plan not only to issue at frequent intervals bulletins with lists of books and any other matter found to be needed by any considerable number of libraries, but also to give advice and answer questions so far as is in the power of the library staff.

Our friends must remember, however, that the whole force in the regents' office and library is at present overworked in completing our organization and getting settled in our new quarters, and that many of these things for which we have definite plans will take considerable time to set in full operation. Meanwhile we shall be only too glad to do all we can for any community interested in improving its library. But in order that we may have time for the most essential matters, we can not undertake to write individuals letters answering exactly the questions that are more fully and carefully answered in print, if inquirers would take the time to read it. We will, however, make time on our busiest days to help any New Yorker who has shown his real interest in the subject by reading what is already available in print, and by placing himself in touch with other library workers in the state.

Melvil Dewey, Director

The Library school has from the first done much admirable work in encouraging and helping public libraries in New York but the time has come when a distinct organization of this work is imperative if we are to do our full duty to the state. The new library legislation has made this doubly necessary and has also made it possible. A library inspector has already been appointed to give his whole time to the interests of public libraries throughout the state. In the last report we began a series of condensed reports from New York libraries which will be continued each year hereafter. We must now approve books for buying, circulation and for subsidies, prepare annotated lists of the best reading, lend traveling libraries to communities either not yet strong or interested enough to tax themselves for a local library, and in various ways stimulate public interest in this essential part of general education.

This new and important department really begins its work with the coming year so that I have to report simply the legislation and preliminary plans. We expect to make only a beginning in the first year for the new plan differs so radically from the old that it will be two or three years before most of the communities will understand or appreciate it enough to secure the formal vote for establishing the needed library. We esteem it better to give ample time for a slow healthy growth of public interest rather than to attempt to show earlier results by a forcing process from which there might be a reaction.

In response to urgent demand the three following circulars, setting forth the present state of the work, have just been printed for distribution.

[CIRCULAR 1]

New library laws

The legislature of 1892 passed three laws pertaining to libraries, all of great public interest and importance.

1 A general library law. Sections 35-51 of the University law, ch. 378, signed April 27, give New York the distinction of having the best laws of any state in the Union for establishing and maintaining free public libraries. This law was drafted with great care after comparing the laws of all the other states and taking the suggestions of numerous library associations and clubs who discussed its provisions point by point.

2 Authorizing library trusts. Ch. 516, signed May 12, provides with great care against such calamities as the loss of the Tilden library bequest. It authorizes the creation of trusts and provides in a score of ways that when a public spirited citizen shall undertake to give his wealth for the benefit of his fellows it shall not be lost on some legal technicality.

3 School library law. Ch. 573, signed May 14. In 1838 New York started a system of district public libraries which gave great promise of usefulness. 17 other states copied the plan, but for lack of proper supervision and central administration it has proved largely a failure. The state has spent about $3,000,000 on this plan, and instead of the best makes one of the poorest showings among the prominent states. The new law entirely does away with the abuses and faults of the old system. The district libraries were never intended to be school libraries, but were for the public and were administered by the school authorities merely as a matter of convenience. This has resulted in much confusion in the public mind, many people thinking of them as school libraries. The new law transfers the supervision of all public libraries to the regents of the University, to be carried on in connection with the state library. It leaves the old appropriation of $55,000 a year with the department of public instruction to be used for libraries of a new type which shall be part of the school equipment kept in the building and shall be strictly school libraries.

The following summary will be useful in preventing confusion of the various departments, funds, and kinds of libraries:

Departments. The state has two departments with which libraries are connected, the University of the state and the department of public instruction.

Funds. There are three state funds from which aid is granted to libraries:

- 1 The annual appropriation of $55,000 for school libraries administered by the superintendent of public instruction.

- 2 A part of the academic fund of $106,000 which the regents annually apportion for the benefit of academies.

- 3 The public library money (this year $25,000) to be apportioned by the regents for the benefit of free libraries.

Kinds of libraries. There are six distinct types of libraries which receive money from one or more of these funds:

- 1 School libraries. Consisting of pedagogic and reference books for use of teachers and pupils of the public schools; not to be used by the public, as the law makes them a part of the school equipment.

- 2 Academy libraries. Owned and administered by any academy in the university. There are at present no ordinances limiting their use or the character of books, except that the books bought must be approved by the regents' office.

- 3 District libraries. The old school district libraries turned over to trustees and thereafter entirely independent of the school authorities and designed to circulate books among the general public.

4 Public libraries proper. Established by vote or by the proper local authorities, and owned, controlled and supported by the public.

5 Joint libraries. Maintained jointly by two or more districts, villages, towns or other bodies, each of which might legally maintain a library independently.

6 Subsidized libraries. Not owned or controlled by the public, but maintained for its welfare and free use. Under the new law these may receive assistance if the tax payers so vote.

With two supervisory departments, three state funds and six kinds of libraries, there will be more or less confusion in the minds of people interested as to their duties and privileges. The notes below are made after a careful study of the laws, and it is hoped will be helpful.

1 The school libraries and the school library fund of $55,000 a year are wholly under the direction of the state superintendent of public instruction. The state library and regents' office have nothing whatever to do with the school libraries or the school library fund. The academic fund and the public library money, with the other four kinds of libraries, district, public, joint and subsidized, are all under the supervision of the regents and are related to the state library as a department of the University of the State of New York, and the department of public instruction has nothing whatever to do with them. All library correspondence and inquiries except that pertaining to the school library and school library money, should therefore be addressed to the state library.

The school library money is apportioned to cities, union school districts and school districts. Academic departments of union schools and high schools supported by public taxation as a part of the public school system, may properly claim a part of this money, but private and endowed academies and other schools have no claim whatever on it.

2 The money apportioned for books from the academic fund of $106,000 can be drawn by any academy, high school or academic department of a union school which is admitted to the University, and can be spent only for books approved by the regents' office. Neither district, public, joint nor subsidized libraries have any share in this apportionment unless the academy shall have transferred its library and its right to the apportionment to a public library by permission of the regents, as provided in § 45 of the University law.

3 The public library money can not be used for the school libraries nor for the academy libraries, unless the latter should be open to the free use of the general public. The public library money will be apportioned by the regents as they shall think most useful in supplying free public libraries to the people of the state. Only books approved by the regents can be bought with it. The locality must raise an equal amount from taxation or other local sources, and the books paid for by the state are subject to return to the regents to be used for the benefit of the public whenever the library neglects or refuses to conform to ordinances under which it secured them. This money becomes available October 1, 1892, and to any community starting a public library the regents will probably apportion not to exceed $100 for the first year; i. e., the local authorities may receive $100 from the state if they raise that or a greater amount for themselves.

The main benefit to be derived from the state aid will be through the traveling libraries or loans. To any public library duly chartered by the regents and conforming to certain simple ordinances, will be loaned select collections of recent desirable books, about 100 volumes in each, to be retained not exceeding six months, without charge beyond a nominal fee of $5 to cover cost of transportation both ways, suitable cases, printed catalogs and necessary blanks and records. These traveling libraries may also be secured by communities that are trying to establish a public library but have not yet got it in operation.

Public library law

The full text of the law can be had on application to the regents' office. Some of its important features are as follows. All provisions apply equally to reference and circulating libraries, reading rooms, museums, or any combination of these institutions. The establishment of a library is made comparatively easy. 40 years' experience in New Hampshire and Massachusetts, the first states to adopt library laws, has shown that there is no danger whatever in giving full local option and allowing each community to vote whatever tax it is willing to pay for this purpose. Most limitations have been found needless, as no community has been found willing to tax itself unreasonably. If the city common council or village trustees decline to establish or maintain a library, any 25 taxpayers may on petition require a vote at the next election. The library may be with or without branches, and may be maintained independently by any city, village, town, district, or other body authorized to levy taxes, or may be established and maintained jointly with any other body authorized to maintain a library. This enables adjoining districts, villages or towns to combine in the support of a single library when neither could afford the entire expense, or enables the public to join with any associations or other body having a library, thus uniting the interests and getting better results than would be possible without the joint action here authorized.

Public money may be voted to libraries not owned by the public but maintained for its welfare and free use. This law has been working successfully for several years in New York; e. g. in New York city the four free circulating libraries have all been built and equipped by gifts from generous citizens. They are doing exactly the work of a public library, being as free to all the inhabitants as if they had been founded and supported wholly by the taxpayers. Thus if an endowed library is willing to open its doors and perform the functions of a public library, the authorities may if they see fit contribute towards its support just as a city may pay a definite sum each year to a private water corporation for the privilege of attaching fire hydrants to all the water mains; such a course being obviously much cheaper for the public than to lay new mains for public use. If the subsidy is granted on the basis of circulation, it must not exceed 10 cents for each volume of circulation certified by the regents' library inspector as deserving a grant of public money. If the subsidy is granted for a reading room or reference library, it is left to the locality to determine how much it is willing to give.

Taxes in addition to those otherwise authorized may be voted and are annual till changed by later vote. While the city council or village trustees may vote to establish a library, the appointment of the library trustees who will manage its affairs must be made by the local voters, except in cities, where the mayor appoints with the consent of the common council, but the law requires that the appointees shall be citizens of recognized fitness for such position. The trustee must promptly apply to the regents for incorporation with a charter in accordance with the vote establishing the library. When this is granted they have all the powers of trustees of colleges and academies as set forth in the 10 sub-sections of § 34 of the University law. Some new features in these powers and duties are that a trustee failing to attend three consecutive meetings without written excuse accepted not later than a third meeting, is deemed to have resigned, and the law requires the vacancy to be filled. The regents can authorize such trustees to hold property beyond the charter limit, so that if a library as a residuary legatee should discover that its property exceeded the amount authorized in the charter, it may within one year get from the regents full authority for receiving the additional funds. No trustee can receive compensation as such, and any ordinance or rule by which more than a majority vote is required for any specified action can be amended, suspended or repealed only by a similar vote.

All libraries receiving state aid or exemption from taxation must make a brief report each year to the state library, which includes a summary of all such reports with its own annual report to the legislature. The trustees, if they think expedient, may extend the privileges of the library to persons living outside the locality. Intentional injury or willful detention of library property is made punishable by imprisonment or heavy fine.

On approval of the regents, any corporation, association, school district or combination of districts, may transfer its library to any public library in the University, and with it the right to receive any money, books or other property from the state or other sources. If it is believed that the purposes of the library can be better accomplished by combining it with another library, it is manifestly unfair that money or books which were designed for the benefit of that community should be lost to it because it has taken the most efficient and economical method of supplying its inhabitants with the best reading. Under this section (§ 45) many boards of trustees will find it advisable to merge their libraries with others, thus getting better results for the public from the same expenditure.

In cases of local neglect to provide for the safety and public usefulness of the books, the right to state grants is forfeited and, after 60 days' notice from the regents without the needed action being taken, the library property may be put in the hands of new trustees or otherwise used as the regents shall think best for public interests. Definite authority is given to the regents to lend (from the state library, the duplicate department, or from books specially bought) traveling libraries, which will carry at frequent intervals 100 choicely selected volumes to the public libraries of the state and to communities about to establish them. The regents are authorized to give, on request, instruction on organizing or administering a library either through the state library staff or otherwise, and to aid localities by selecting or buying books and arranging exchanges and loans.

Finally, while the establishment of a library is made easy, its abolition is made difficult, as it requires a majority vote ratified by a second majority vote at the next annual election, thus making hasty or ill-considered action impossible. (If a library is abolished, its property must be used first to turn over for the benefit of other public libraries in that locality as much as it has received in gifts for public use.) It is made impossible for a community which has received gifts for a library to reduce its own taxes by voting to sell the library. No library can be lawfully abolished till the regents grant a certificate that its assets have been properly distributed in the interests of the public.

School library law

The $55,000 a year first voted in 1838 as public library money to be distributed by districts through the state, is made by the new law school library money, to be apportioned by the state superintendent of public instruction, who makes all needed rules. It can be spent only for approved books, which must be reference or pedagogic books, or suitable supplementary reading for children, or books relating to branches of study pursued in the school. The locality must raise an equal amount. The library must be kept in the school building at all times, but teachers and school officers or pupils may, if the state superintendent allows, borrow one volume at a time for not more than two weeks. A teacher must be made librarian. While the old laws were repealed, the former rules hold good so far as they apply till they are changed by the state superintendent. Each city and school district in the state is authorized to raise money by tax for a school library as it may do for a school.

Any of the old district libraries may be given to any free public library under state supervision, or to aid in starting such a library if it is free to all the people of the district. This will encourage and make practicable the establishment of public libraries throughout the state by the union of two or more district libraries. The old unit was so small that successful administration was impossible. It is expected that most districts will welcome an opportunity to contribute their library toward a central library for a town or a considerable section of a town, as by such a union of forces all will get much more for the money expended.

District libraries which have been practically abandoned by the authorities may, by permission of the regents, be taken by a public library for the use of that locality. In thousands of districts the libraries on which the state spend a part of the $3,000,000 used since 1838 have fallen into disuse and finally have ceased to be remembered as public property. The books are scattered in private bookcases and attics and exert a demoralizing influence because their marks show that property belonging to the public is in private hands. It is made a misdemeanor for any person wilfully to neglect or refuse to deliver any books of this kind to the legally appointed librarian who is authorized to collect them.

At the request of the state superintendent, the law includes a provision that the public shall not be entitled to use any library now or hereafter in custody of the school authorities. It was felt that only confusion and a repetition of the old mistakes would result from any attempt to have a public circulating library conducted by public school officials. The school officers are under the direction of the state superintendent and make all their reports to him. The circulating libraries by the new law are related to the state library and are under the direction of the regents. A sharp line is therefore drawn between the two kinds of libraries. The school libraries are a part of the equipment and under the entire control of the local school authorities, but they are not allowed to circulate the school library books or make the school library in any sense a public library. This however does not mean that the many district libraries which were from the first intended to be public libraries, and have been so maintained, must hereafter change their character. The same section authorizes the school authorities to appoint three library trustees (who have all powers, duties and responsibilities of trustees of public libraries incorporated by the regents) and to transfer to them, for the purposes of a circulating library, any of their library property, as provided in § 5. The present circulating district libraries will thus continue their good work, but the school authorities must appoint a separate board of library trustees. The new board will receive a charter from the regents and become thereafter a public library entirely independent of the school authorities and entitled to various rights and privileges and to a share in the public library money. The school authorities may retain any pedagogic or reference books specially adapted for the technical school library, turning over to the new trustees such books as are adapted to a public circulating library.

This transfer of the old district libraries, so far as they have life enough to be of any service to the public, one by one to public libraries by action of the local school authorities, is the most important work to be done under the new law.

To insure observance of the new law, the state superintendent is to withhold the public school money from any city or district which uses school library money for anything except books approved by the state superintendent, or that violates any rules regarding the school libraries.

The result of the new law is to establish the new school libraries as a part of the schoolroom apparatus, and to consolidate the little district libraries into practical working public libraries. Instead of the state's paying the whole expense, the locality benefited must raise as much money as it asks from the state, and the provisions for supervision and reports are such that infinitely better results are assured than were secured under the old system. Suitable blanks are in preparation for taking action under the new laws, and when the new appropriation goes into effect on October 1, the regents' office will be ready to give its active assistance to any community desiring to improve its library facilities. In the meantime one of the state library staff, Mr W. R. Eastman, has been assigned to this special work, and will be glad to give information either personally or by correspondence to any one interested in the public library movement of the state of New York, which promises to do more in the coming academic year than in a whole generation before.

How to obtain a share of the public library money

1 The trustees of any free public library under visitation of the regents and having subject to their order any money raised from taxation or other local sources for buying books may receive from the public library money an equal amount not to exceed $200 for the first year of the library's establishment, or $100 for a succeeding year; the entire amount to be spent for books approved by the regents.

2 Any such library may also have the use of a traveling library not more than six months for general circulation. Several lists of about 100 volumes each will be furnished, from which one list may be selected and the books obtained in accordance with the regents' rules. These require a satisfactory guarantee and a fee of $5 in each case to cover a part of the cost of suitable cases, printed catalogs, necessary blanks and records and transportation both ways. This traveling library may be exchanged for another on the same terms and these exchanges may continue as long as the regents' rules are observed.

3 Free public libraries under visitation of the regents include all libraries incorporated by the regents, all libraries which have been admitted to the University, and all libraries connected with colleges, academies or other institutions in the University, provided that they are open to the public, without charge, for either reference or circulation.

Any other free public library in the state wishing to have these privileges may apply for a regents' charter or admission to the University.

In order to secure such admission the trustees must formally apply for it to the regents. The regents' library inspector will then personally examine the library and its work and, if he reports that the library in its administration and character of books is worthy of state aid, loans of traveling libraries and other privileges granted to accredited institutions, the regents usually grant the request. This involves no expense, but every library admitted must make annually a brief sworn report of its conditions and operations and must be open to official inspection by the regents or their officers whenever they may think it desirable to satisfy themselves that the library is maintaining the required standard.

4 If in any community the people are not yet ready to establish such a library, 25 resident taxpayers may obtain the use of a traveling library as provided in rule 2 for such libraries.

Since the appropriation for the fiscal year beginning October 1, 1892, is only $25,000 for the entire state, it is obvious that applications must be considered in the order of their reception, and prompt action may be necessary to avoid disappointment. Those interested, if they wish to make an effort this year, should send as early as practicable for the official application blanks.

Inquiries for information or advice will be promptly answered if directed to Public libraries department, State Library, Albany, N. Y.

[CIRCULAR 3]

Traveling libraries

Loans of books from the state. Under such rules as the regents may prescribe, they may lend from the state library, duplicate department, or from books specially given or bought for this purpose, selections of books for a limited time to any public library in this state under visitation of the regents, or to any community not yet having established such library, but which has conformed to the conditions required for such loans. (Laws of 1892, ch. 378, § 47.)

Under this authority traveling libraries of about 100 volumes each will be lent in accordance with the following rules.

Rules

1 On satisfactory guarantee that all regents' rules will be complied with, a traveling library may be lent for a period not exceeding six months to any public library under visitation of the regents.

This includes all libraries incorporated by the regents, all libraries which have been admitted to the University, and all libraries connected with colleges, academies or other institutions in the University, provided that they are open to the public, without charge, for either reference or circulation.

2 Under like conditions a traveling library may be lent to a community not yet having such a public library, on application of 25 resident taxpayers; provided that the applicants also agree that a petition shall be made for a popular vote to be taken within two years in their city, town, village or district on the question of establishing a free public library as provided in laws of 1892, ch. 378, § 36. The applicants shall specify one of their number, who must be a responsible owner of real estate, to act as trustee of said library and be personally responsible for any loss or injury beyond reasonable wear. This trustee shall designate a suitable person to be librarian.

3 A fee of $5 shall be paid in advance to cover cost of suitable cases, printed catalogs, necessary blanks and records and transportation both ways.

4 Such precaution shall be taken in packing as to guard effectively against injury in transportation.

5 Notes, corrections of the press, or marks of any kind on books belonging to the library are unconditionally forbidden. Borrowing trustees will be held responsible for all losses or injuries beyond reasonable wear, however caused.

6 The traveling library shall not be kept longer than six months after its reception.

7 The librarian shall care for the books while under his control and circulate them in accordance with the regents' rules, and shall make such reports respecting their use as the regents may require.

8 For wilful violation of any library rule the director of the state library may suspend the privilege of state loans till the case is considered by the regents' committee.

Selection of books. In our new system of traveling libraries and of supplying selected books to encourage the formation and support of public libraries as authorized by laws of 1892, one of the most serious problems which we have to face is that of the selection of books. The old system started by New York in 1838, and copied by 17 other states, broke down chiefly from lack of supervision in selection. Careful study led us to adopt the following principle :

Furnish either in the traveling libraries or in the selections sent to public libraries for permanent use, the best reading matter available for the amount of money spent. In carrying out this principle, all influence from authors, publishers or dealers must of course be ignored and only the book and its cost considered. At first it sounds plausible to say, select the very best book regardless of cost, but in most cases there is no absolutely best book. If we are to send 100 volumes to a village, probably the best selection that any expert could make could be equaled by another 100 volumes selected by other experts. While we aim to select the 100 best books for that time and place, we shall succeed only in sending 100 of the best, not only shutting out all bad or weak books but maintaining the highest standard in those chosen. If two books are pronounced by experts of equal value for our use, and one is supplied at half the cost of the other, it is clearly our duty to use the state's money where it will produce the best result. We would not send a second rate book in place of a better one because it was cheaper, but in choosing ordinary books of real literary merit we should consider the price.

Cheapness is not determined simply by discounts. Certain books are given a fictitious retail price in order to allow large discounts. Others are published at small discounts, or even at net prices. We therefor consider

- 1 The literary character of the book, and, if there be more than one edition, which is most desirable for our work;

- 2 Paper, type and binding. We have no right to send out books that will endanger eyes by too fine type or bad printing, or that because of poor paper or flimsy binding are really costly from lack of durability.

Having considered literary and physical qualities, final choice is then largely dependent on the price at which it can be secured.

DUPLICATE DEPARTMENT

After much persistence we succeeded in getting the 100,000 duplicates which were being ruined in the hot air chamber of the basement of the capitol moved to the fifth story, but not till this fall have we succeeded in starting shelving on which to arrange them. I am glad to report that the southwest pavilion, room no. 51, is being fitted up with iron shelving, so that within the next year we shall be at last able to unbox these books and begin the duplicate department, the great usefulness of which is already assured. The shelving now ordered will hold some 70,000 volumes. The entire room if filled would hold about 200,000. The plan of exchange adopted has been published and has met the warmest commendation on all sides as being the only satisfactory solution of one of the most difficult problems connected with library administration.

Exchanges. The following volumes and pamphlets were sent from the library under the system of exchange to the states and territories and to various institutions in this and other countries :

	1891	1892
Court of appeals reports .....	264	308
Supreme court reports .....	126	210

U. S. N. Y. convocation proceedings .....	....	455
Other volumes and pamphlets .....	114	160
	3657	11173

This remarkable growth from 3657 in 1891 (which was itself a large growth from previous years) to 11,173 in 1892 illustrates the new activity in securing gifts by exchange of our own state publications with various countries, states and institutions. Thousands of volumes which the state had printed at great cost were packed away in useless heaps or often sold for waste paper, when there were hundreds of libraries at home and abroad wishing copies to complete their sets. By our present system we are placing these publications where they will be permanently preserved and made most useful. It is clearly for the interest of the state to see that after it has printed valuable matter it shall do its proper work. With this threefold increase in the number of copies sent out there has been quite threefold care used. It would be easy to send out any number, but we have refused more applications than in any previous year and have taken more pains to distribute the available copies where they will do most good. The system was illustrated fully on page 15 of the last report.

LIBRARY ASSOCIATIONS

In 1876 was organized the American library association which from that time has been the recognized representative of the library interests of the country. Its monthly organ, the Library journal, and the large annual volume of proceedings fully record its work.

In 1885 the first local association was organized in the Columbia college library as the New York library club to promote the library interests of New York city and vicinity. Of this your director had the honor to be president when he was called from New York to Albany. This has grown in interest and usefulness and similar large and successful clubs have been formed in Boston, Chicago and other cities.

In 1889 was organized the Association of state librarians, of which your director has been from the first president.

In 1890 in our own library was organized the first state association. The New York library association is devoted to promoting the library interests of New York state and is therefore an organized supplement to our new public libraries department. Of this body also your director has been from the first president.

These four organizations are so closely connected with our work that, beginning with the next report, I purpose to give not only the minutes of the New York association but also a brief summary of the year for each of the other three. With the coming year I shall insist on retiring from the presidency of the Association of state librarians and of the New York library association, believing it better after the labor of organization to have others at the head; but I shall feel it my official duty to take an active part in their work. Similarly in 1890 I insisted on retiring from the secretaryship of the American library association after 15 years of active service in charge of its offices and business, but was then elected president. This office I resigned in 1891. At the recent meeting at Lakewood, N. J., the largest in its history, it was decided to have a great 10 days' meeting at Chicago in connection with the world's congress on education. The peculiar importance of this international meeting has seemed to justify my acceptance, with the arduous duties involved, of a second election to the presidency. The members of the library committee consulted, agreed that the interest of our own state in the work of the American association made it desirable to give the necessary time to these unusual duties.

New York Library association. In accordance with the original plan a meeting was held in connection with the national body at Lakewood and another at the time of the University convocation. The Lakewood meeting was well attended not only by New Yorkers but also by many from other states deeply interested in the problems which we are working out. No stenographic report was taken but the ground covered was substantially the same as in the convocation meeting, of which a full report follows as appendix 2. It is encouraging to report that there was warm approval by the most expert students of these subjects in the country of the novel plans adopted in New York. It is of great value to us to have the benefit of consultation with these librarians who enter heartily into the spirit of our work and gladly give us the benefit of their own experience and advice.

In reviewing the year as a whole we have much reason for gratification. It would be greatly to the advantage of the library if the building could be entirely completed and we could settle down to our permanent work. Also if we had larger appropriations with which to buy books and to undertake many important pieces of work deferred from year to year. But under the circumstances, and with the resources at our disposal, every regent will feel a pride that so much of credit and value to the state has already been accomplished and that there is so excellent promise for the future.

Respectfully submitted

MELVIL DEWEY, Director

APPENDIX 2

NEW YORK LIBRARY ASSOCIATION

MINUTES OF FIFTH MEETING

Held in the State library, Albany, N. Y., 5 July 1892

At 2 p. m. before the meeting, the director of the Library school made the annual address to the graduating class, the school and friends, beside the members of the N. Y. L. A. At its close Bishop William Crowell Doane, acting for Chancellor George William Curtis who was detained by illness, made a short address and conferred the degrees and diplomas.

Pres. Melvil Dewey called the meeting of the N. Y. L. A. to order at 3 p. m.

President — The object of this meeting is to compare notes and find out what can most wisely be done in carrying into effect the two new laws relating to libraries in this state. Many of you got a good deal of light on this question at Lakewood, at our meeting in connection with the national library association last May. We are specially glad to have with us to-day principals and college officers, as well as librarians who were not then present.

The past year has been the best in the history of this association, and of libraries in general; we made some progress in getting our building in shape; the Library school had a better year than ever before, the work settling steadily into more satisfactory form. We have had more inquiries from different parts of the state from people who have wanted to start libraries or put new life into old ones. We have collected more and much better statistics than ever before and have them in the hands of the state printer now. The lending of books from the state library has increased; we are sending more and more to scholars in different parts of the state. The use of the library has grown 400 or 500 per cent in three years, yet we can not feel that we are having a fair trial till our building is completed.

Gov. Flower personally sent word to the finance committee requesting an appropriation of $5,000 to enable us to put the duplicates, of which we have 100,000 volumes on the upper floor, in such shape that they can be made available for distribution to the libraries. But the great work of the year is in the new library laws. In the University law, sections 35-51, on public libraries, have already been pronounced the best public library law that has been passed in any state or country. We submitted every section of it to constant criticism and the law as finally passed unanimously was the best we could get.

The other law, called the school library law, is a solution of an old snarl. We have had since 1838, $55,000 or $50,000 each year for libraries, an appropriation capable of doing a great work, but that money had drifted into other uses, and while we have been adding at least $50,000 every year, statistics show that the district library system of New York lost about $50,000 worth of volumes every year. It was a reproach to the state. We have finally succeeded in getting the old laws repealed and this new school library law passed. We now have three sources of help for libraries:

This old appropriation of $55,000 was always a public library appropriation; it never was a school library appropriation, but it has been misunderstood because for convenience it has always been administered by the school authorities. The district system fell into disuse, and only a few places got any benefit from it. The law is now repealed, but the $35,000 is continued for pedagogic libraries and is tied up absolutely for buying suitable books for school room use. Communities desiring aid must raise an equal amount of money from local sources, and the books must be on a list approved by the department of public instruction. This is to do away with the abuse of spending state money for useless literature. This money is to be spent for libraries for the schools, to be kept as a part of its pedagogical equipment and to be used outside the school room only as a teacher or pupil may borrow a volume to help him in his studies.

The second source of state aid for libraries is in a part of the old academic fund of $106,000 which is distributed annually to the academies. Upwards of $15,000 of that is spent for books and apparatus.

The third source of state aid is the public library money for which the appropriation this year is $25,000, and that is to be apportioned as the regents shall determine, and they want the opinion of this association as to the best method.

Copies of the law were given each member and questions were submitted on the different sections as follows :

§ 37 What kind of books circulated by some public libraries should the regents refuse to certify for subsidy?

Miss E. M. Coe, lib'n N. Y. free circulating libraries—The old law provides that any library circulating 75,000 volumes a year may receive from the board of apportionment of the city or town $5,000 for the support of the library, without designating how it shall be used. Then $5,000 is given for every additional 100,000 volumes circulated. Under that law the New York free circulating library called three years ago for $15,000, two years ago and last year for $20,000. They have received on the first year $7,500, second year $12,500 and the third year $15,000. Another library in New York received $5,000, and the Apprentices library $10,000 the first year and $12,500 the second year. Our apportionment is not sufficient to pay the running expenses of the library. It is only about 2½ cents a volume for the circulation, as we are not allowed to count volumes used in reference work. The most important thing which we do we get no subsidy for. We might by law have received help perhaps to the amount of half our expenses but we actually received only about one third. The rest has had to be provided by private subscriptions and otherwise.

Pres.—Is it desirable to have the character of the circulation supervised by the regents?

Miss Coe — My own feeling about my own library is that we should receive the sanction of the regents as to the quality and quantity of books circulated. It is not unkind for me to say that some of the libraries of New York city that have received money from the city circulate books which I believe every one here would consider worse than useless; indeed most pernicious. We can not consider it right that public money should be used for books that certainly ought to be weeded out.

Pres.—The subsidy law is peculiar to New York state. Two or three years after Miss Coe's library came under the operation of the general law, through the efforts of Librarian A. L. Peck of Gloversville a similar law was passed applying to smaller towns. Under this old law difficulties were two or three fold.

1 If the library circulated 99,000 volumes it would not get a cent; it had to circulate 100,000 volumes. It is a very severe pressure on a librarian to see that by forcing up his circulation 10,000 he can draw money for 100,000. He is apt to circulate a poor class of books, because they can be rushed out faster. This temptation is removed in the new law by providing that the circulation shall be paid for at so much per volume leaving no excuse for forcing an abnormal use in order to reach a certain number by a certain date.

2 The new law provides for a subsidy of 10 cents per volume, or double that of the old which was $5,000 for 100,000 volumes. But to reduce this increase it also provides that it shall be paid only on books certified by the régents as of such a character as to merit a grant of public money. The old subsidy laws were not repealed, lest some library working under them should feel that its rights were interfered with. We hope every library will prefer to work under the new law and then we can have the old laws wiped out.

The question we want to discuss is, how rigid should be the supervision of the regents over circulation. Some say circulate whatever the public wants; others that only standard histories, biographies and books of that kind should be certified, throwing fiction out entirely. When the regents instruct their officers, how closely shall they direct them to reject doubtful literature?

Let us have our discussion sharp and to the point without any apologies for time, but calling out all the ideas we can as to what limits should be put by the regents on books certified. The regents do not forbid any library to get and circulate whatever books it wants, provided they are not a public injury; but the inspector will go into the library, study its charging system and the books on its shelves and satisfy himself how many books of the quality approved by the regents are in circulation, and subsidy will be paid simply on those.

Prof. J. Crane, Albany Y. M. A. library—Library work should be distinctly educational and should have the highest moral and intellectual force. The danger would be in adopting regulations which would in any way give currency to hundreds of volumes which are scattered here and there. Let every book which is objectionable and has not a high educational power be thrown out. If you discriminate in favor of some authors or against some, it should be for the purpose of giving strong emphasis to the educational powers of others. We must know to what extent certain authors are sought and how frequently many want the same authors year after year. Librarians and those in charge of library work should offer inducements leading up to a higher grade of work so that the library itself can be considered a power in raising the moral standard throughout the community.

W: Y. Foote, *Syracuse high school—What libraries have been working under the old subsidy law the past year?

Pres.—The four free circulating libraries, Apprentices and Aguilar libraries of New York, the Gloversville library and perhaps a few others.

W: Y. Foote—All these subsidy laws are permissive only and assume that the city fathers will be induced to contribute, a thing to be hoped for but hardly to be relied on. What basis of classification or discrimination is best?

Pres.—It is left to the regents to determine. This meeting is to discuss that question and see what we recommend the regents to do.

W: Y. Foote—The minute you make a discrimination the question is where shall you stop.

W: R. Eastman, *N. Y. state library—Have any cities come more nearly up to the limit than they have in New York? Miss Coe's library has had  $2\frac{1}{2}$  cents a volume on circulation. This new law will allow 10 cents, of which Miss Coe has only had one quarter. Three quarters of her books might have been vile, and yet under the new law she could receive for the one fourth as much as she did under the old for all. Is it worth while after all to spend a great deal of time in discussing the question unless it be of practical importance?

Pres.—Under the old law a library had to have a certain amount of real estate and to circulate a certain number of volumes. New York is poor in that kind of libraries; but the old law had the effect of making them raise their property and circulation. The new law applies to every library. We want to start right. If we leave the door open it will be much more difficult to close it. The law is permissive only. The regents feel that before deciding the matter they would like the opinion of the men and women most interested as to what is best to be done. They will approve a subsidy only on a report of good work done, and officially examined and approved.

R. B. Poole, *Y. M. C. A., N. Y.—This is a difficult question to decide. We all agree that if a book is immoral it ought to be excluded. French novels and all the low grade paper covered novels ought to be thrown out. Our library in the main should be wholly educational. But then there are books which are entertaining as well as instructive; they may not have the highest purposes of an educational work, yet a person may get a good deal of profit by reading them, though he may not get a great deal of information. Such a book if it is fairly well written may find a way into our library, but it is going to be a difficult thing to decide. Even if they are excluded, very many of them are published in paper covers and can be obtained for a few cents, and if they are not found in the libraries they can be had at little cost. There is a bill now before the congress to increase the postage on books published in paper covers and if this becomes a law it will tend to reduce the circulation of this class of literature.

Miss E. M. Coe — My libraries can not come under this law. My trustees would be glad if they could, but since it must be by vote we shall never get under it, as we are a private corporation. In the interest of library work in general I feel very certain that something must be done in the interest of libraries and public morality by somebody as well able to limit and discriminate in the matter of books circulated by public libraries as are the regents. The library managers can not possibly come to any agreement in this matter; they do not want to. We want the opinion of some board such as the regents, who shall say to us, you shall or shall not circulate such and such books. It would be necessary for some one to make out a list of books that should or should not be circulated.

Sup't Sherman Williams, Glens Falls — I have no thoughts on the subject except as regards libraries in smaller towns. The library should be an effective second school. An effective school must have students, and put something within their grasp. To get a large number of students you must have a large number of books that are not of the highest type. They certainly must not be pernicious, but if you get only books of a high class the great mass of the people will not be friends of the library. If you get books that are not pernicious, but not of the highest grade, you will get that class of people, and you can then lead them up to better reading. A liberal construction should be put on the use of books, provided they are not objectionable from a moral standpoint. We have made considerable use of a small school library. We have watched the reading for the last two years and I feel very strongly on this point. Books that I said three years ago ought not to be in the library have been read a good deal, but the readers do not stop there. You get a number of people reading those books and by a little skill and management they can be raised to a higher standard. I should feel sorry to see that class of books thrown out entirely.

Pres.— We want just such expressions of opinion from principals and superintendents of schools throughout the state as well as from librarians. This law does not prohibit having these books in the library. The question is whether we shall grant subsidies for all the books circulated or only for the higher grades. Shall we put 10 cents a volume on the higher grade books so the librarian will try to work his readers up to the solid books, or will you distribute that money over the whole circulation? I do not understand why Miss Coe thinks her library can not come under this law. § 36 provides that any city by its common council or any village by its trustees may establish and maintain a free public library. The law has been drawn on the principle of the old Massachusetts and New Hampshire laws that leave the communities local option. A town may vote all the money it chooses, or under § 37 may give all it wants to public libraries which like Miss Coe's are not owned by the corporation. It leaves each community to decide how much it will spend on a public library. It may be done by the tax payers, trustees of a village or common council of a city. Miss Coe's trustees can readily come under this law. Money given by the state must be spent for approved books only. My notion of this would be to make as good a select list as possible and send it to the libraries, and when a library wishes to buy any first-class books that are not on the list, add them. A library should be able to get the new books immediately on publication. If they are not good enough to go on the state list they will not be counted, but the library is free to keep them. The state simply does not recognize them in giving aid. This will put a safeguard on money of the state going for books that many think pernicious.

S. B. Griswold, *state law librarian—Who determines the amount to be given per volume, the state or local authorities?

Pres.—Local. The law allows the local authorities to give as much they will, not exceeding 10 cents for each volume circulated.

S. B. Griswold—Why would it not be a good thing to have a sliding scale; say about two or three cents for the lighter literature and 10 cents for a solid book? Some libraries would not get much money if we should pay on only the highest literature.

Bishop Doane—As a regent I feel a very strong interest in the character and condition of the libraries. A library will get any books that it wants whether we give them 10 cents a volume or not. It seems to me that the standard for the regents should be both a moral and literary standard, beneath which no books should be paid for with state money. There is a tendency in human nature to get books that they are told not to read. If the libraries put cheaper books on their shelves it is their own lookout. But I should be sorry as a regent to fail to vote for the light literature.

G. R. Howell, *state archivist—I think the only solution of this question is that the regents should publish a list of books on history, standard literature and novels for which they can conscientiously vote the state money. I should not quite agree with Mr Griswold in having a sliding scale, for the boy who reads a second-class novel is just as much assisted on his way toward a higher standard of understanding as a man is carried on his way by reading a better book. In other words, the second-class novel helps a boy in his career. It is just the advice that old Dr Franklin gave in one of his essays; give your boys novels and after they have once formed a taste for reading they will ask for something better.

S. B. Griswold—I agree entirely with Bishop Doane. I simply suggested a sliding scale. If the regents recommend books they should recommend books that are worth something. As far as the state money goes, pay 10 cents a volume for the circulation of that class of books.

A. L. Peck—In Gloversville last year I circulated 43,000 volumes. A member of our common council told me that whatever number we circulated, we could not get more than $2,000, which is just about half our running expenses.

A vote showed two to one in favor of limiting the amount of 10 cents per volume to the highest grade of books, as against those that would pay it practically to everything except positively vicious books.

§ 39. When it is wished to use the names of numerous prominent citizens, is it better to enlarge the board of trustees or to create a council?

Pres.—In starting a town library it is desirable to get the names and influence of a large number of distinguished citizens. The experience of the world is that small boards of trustees work better, so our regular charter provides for only five. If more than five trustees are wanted they must be specially asked for in applying for the charter. When we organize a library we wish to identify with it many eminent citizens. To do this, shall we have a large board of trustees and then appoint five of them an executive committee, to do the real work or shall we have five trustees and put the other people needed on an advisory council?

R. B. Poole — In the Y. M. C. A. in New York we have a small board of trustees with an advisory board. On any extra occasion when we need advice we call together that advisory board and get their opinion. Their names go out to the public as associates of the trustees. I think it better to have a small board of trustees and this council who can be called on for advice.

Pres. William Preston Johnston, Tulane university, New Orleans — We have never considered this question with reference to libraries, only with reference to colleges and universities. In regard to colleges, the danger of a very small board is that it will degenerate into a clique and be run by patronage and for personal ends. There is danger that one or two or more of these persons may either not take interest or from some other cause — possibly sickness or absence — not do their full share, so that one or two men manage the whole board. The University of Texas had a board of five. They were selected from different parts of the state by law. A man would consider it a high honor to be elected. The secretary was obliged to be a resident of the city; the others were distributed through the state. They would probably come together about once or twice and about that time they would be very tired; about the third time they would resign, so that they would continually have a new board and the University would be run by one man.

On the other hand, there is difficulty in having too large a board. The University of Georgia had 45 trustees. They were generally selected on account of some particular church. When they met there was always a contest in the election of officers to see which church would get the upper hand. That resulted in a great many evils, which I think injured the influence of that university very much. Some years ago there was a trade by which they elected a president from one denomination and other officers from different denominations, and so on.

In a small board a personal interest would arise, while on the other hand in a large board there is the danger of falling into factions and log-rolling. We have been very fortunate in our own university. We have a board of 17. Its work is broken up into committees on finance, education, real estate and one or two more committees of less importance, but they are large enough to have different sorts of men. Bank presidents were on the finance committee, book men were on the education committee. What I say does not absolutely apply to a board of library trustees. Why not have all of them as a council and have an executive committee of five?

Prin. Jos. E. King, *Fort Edward—In starting a library in a small town, it is my opinion that the number of trustees should be larger and subsequently reduced. I have noticed that the average citizen likes to be appreciated, and is much more likely to open his purse if recognized. 15 to 20 men representing the various sects, parties or professions, conspicuous merchants, etc., if appointed on the board would go a great ways toward capturing public opinion. I would suggest having a board of say 15, 21 or 25 and let them elect an executive committee of five by ballot. Of course each of the 25 would first vote for himself and then for four others, but you would be very sure to get a representative, compact, working body. Later on it might be convenient to reduce the board to 15, 11 or to 9, but I think a large force to begin with would be sure to arouse more interest.

Pres.—Would you prefer to have them all trustees rather than five trustees and a council?

Prin. King—Make them a board of trustees and let them elect a council or executive committee.

Prin. A. C. Hill, *Cook academy, Havana—Nobody should be appointed on a board of trustees simply because he likes to be conspicuous, but the best men in the community for the office should be appointed. Then the executive committee, which will have the work to do, should be appointed by the board and be responsible to it. That is the best form of government for a corporation of this kind. One man power is the best kind of power providing you have the right kind of a man, but human nature being what it is that seems to be next to impossible in this country, where everything is governed by politics.

§ 41. What facts should be required in the annual report to the state?

Pres.— It is our plan to have the first report a very simple one. The question is, does it pay to insist on a very full report, once in 5 or 10 years such as the University made for 1890, and afterward make simpler ones.

Prin. A. C. Hill — If the regents are capable of getting out a simpler report they ought to do it. This matter of making out reports has got to be a mania in this country and it takes half a man's time to fill out the different statistics. If we can have it simpler, let it be simpler.

Prin. F. L. Gamage, *Oxford academy — I was about to make that very suggestion ; but if somebody besides the principals of the state of New York have to make it, let us have a long report.

Pres.— Suppose you want to start a library in Havana or Oxford, how much would you care for full reports of other libraries to guide you in your work ?

Prin. Gamage — A report of this kind is very necessary. We know very little about the practical workings of these library associations, and everything we can possibly get with reference to the value of the works that are distributed most largely, all the facts about cataloging and taking care of the books, we want. We want the fullest report at the start. We want librarians capable of making out intelligent reports in order that we may get the very best knowledge for the practical working of the libraries.

Pres.— The man who contributes his report seldom realizes the value of it. The man who contributes one wheel for an engine may not understand why that wheel is needed but the engineer who puts all the parts together knows the machine will not run without it. If a school changes teachers frequently the regents want to know about that school; perhaps there is something wrong in its administration. If you want to study the trend of secondary education in this state you can not get any satisfactory light from our report unless it contains much that many overworked principals think unnecessary. We do not intend to repeat in library work what is already in our regents' reports, nor to make longer reports than are necessary to get the best results.

Prin. R. S. Keyser, Middleburg — I think if a long report of this kind is to be made out, the state ought to pay for it.

W: Y. Foote — When I was a principal I had to work on a library, and I should have been happy to have such help as a full report would give. I should be glad to have the fullest possible reports of the blanks, forms, best methods of putting books on the shelves, etc., for the first year's work, so that the libraries may be conducted systematically.

Pres. — A great amount of money has been spent on libraries in New York with very small results. We want to remedy this. A great deal of the extra work complained of is caused by delaying writing out the report. In starting a library we send a proper form of blank on which to keep statistics, and it will be little work to copy the record daily, weekly or monthly. If you wait till the end of the year it will take much time to hunt up forgotten facts.

§ 42. What fee, if any, should be charged for the use of libraries by non-residents?

W: Y. Foote — Charge no fee. Make them as free as air. The new law provides that the library shall be free to residents.

Pres. — In the elementary school libraries the books are limited to the schoolrooms. The use of books bought by money apportioned to academies and high schools by the regents is left to the option of the local authorities.

Member — I favor extending the benefit as far as possible.

Sup't Sherman Williams — If I had charge of a library I would never ask a man who came for a book where he came from.

Pres. — What would you do if a taxpayer came in and said "Give me such and such a book." You would say it is out. Who has it? You say, John Smith, who lives in an adjoining town.

Sup't Williams — I would not tell him who had it. I would say it is none of his business.

Prin. R. S. Keyser — Pupils who have ever been in our schools, wherever they live, may come for books when they choose and we are glad to lend them. We have educated them to read and we like to keep up their interest in books as far as possible.

Prin. A. C. Hill — These libraries are for the education of the public. Anybody that wants to use them should be allowed to do so.

Member — In our town a number of individuals outside want to use the library, and in all cases we allow the free use of books. But we have two or three villages near by, and the authorities of these villages have tried to make arrangements by which their school children and the public in general might make use of the books. In such cases we have said no. The reason is the same exactly as in relation to entrance to our high school. We can not undertake to educate other school districts or other villages. We can undertake, however, to be hospitable and to render a kindness to individuals when they come asking for a single book, and it seems to me that a thing of that kind can be readily managed by the library authorities in the town.

Sup't Sherman Williams — A gentleman in our town is to give us a public library. He is not a scholarly man, but he is an educated man, a man who has traveled all over the world. He was almost persuaded to establish one some years ago but he resolved to wait and find out what was the best to be done. One winter he made it a special business to visit libraries in different parts of the world; the result of which put him back about five years in establishing the library. Now he has finally decided to do it. He said he knew nothing about libraries, but there is one thing he would insist upon; that the doors should not be shut to any person on the face of the earth who wanted to come into it, and there should be as little red tape as possible.

Miss E. M. Coe — Opening libraries to the public freely for reference is one question, and for circulating books quite another.

Pres. — We were taught in college that it was all right to steal from the farmers all the fruit we could eat on the farm but not to carry any away.

§ 45-6. To what extent should a new public library seek to secure the books of old or neglected libraries as a nucleus?

Pres. — There are thousands of old district libraries going or gone to pieces, of which some of the books are marked and others not. This law was passed in order that these books might be rescued. If you are going to start a new library, is it desirable for you to ask from the regents the necessary authority by which you can collect those books into your library, or is it better to go ahead and get a new start and let these old books go to waste?

W: Y. Foote — Have all brought to the regents and let them dispose of them.

W: R. Eastman — I do not know whether these books would be valuable to new libraries or not; some of them would and some would not. It would depend on the character both of the old and the new library. If there are persons in the state that know of such books that are being neglected I believe the regents would be glad to have a note telling where they could be found.

Prin. O. D. Robinson, Albany high school — We have had a little experience in this matter of consolidating district libraries in Albany. Some 20 years ago they consolidated the old public school and district school libraries into what is now known as the high school library, the only approach to a public library we have. The question arose in my mind whether the same thing would happen in any town where they make any pretence of keeping up the district libraries.' A great many of these districts had the same books; not only duplicates and triplicates, but multiplications of the same books, some of them not very valuable. They selected for the consolidated library all those books that were considered of any value, and then the others were packed away and I suppose some of them are in existence now. The last I remember of them was seeing a large load going to the penitentiary, and I suppose they are there now with the marks of the state on them. They were useless as they were. The question is, would you not in a great many towns have a great many copies of the same book which would be a nuisance in a library, but which possibly might be of use here?

Pres. — Gov. Flower personally saw to it that there was an appropriation of $5,000 this year for shelving duplicates, and the architect promises to go immediately to work in fitting up the duplicate room up stairs. In § 19 there is a provision for a duplicate department, and we advise any of you to ship here all books of that kind by cheap freight. A man should not send anything to the paper mill. He is liable to send books that are worth a good deal and lay away with care something that is not worth five cents. Our expert appraiser here can decide values better than any of us. If you send a box of say 200 volumes from any town there might be 50 of them that should be sent to the paper mill and the others may be worth say $50. You can then come or send here and select $50 worth of anything in our collection and have it sent to you. The price at which they were marked when sent in by some other library will be charged. We will take in anything that is of value and undertake with our expert knowledge to put every copy where it will do the most good.

Member—As far as my personal observation is concerned in regard to the intrinsic value of the books collected, the labor spent in collecting them far exceeds what the books are worth.

Pres.—This is doubtless true. It would not pay to employ a man to travel about with a wagon and collect them. But if notice is widely given, they will be brought to some central place without expense by those having them. The main reason for collecting them is, to my mind, less their value than the demoralizing effect of having state property in private hands. A child who has seen in his father's bookcase or attic books which he knows belong the state can never be taught to regard state property with proper sacredness. It would pay to collect these books on this account, even if every copy were burned.

§ 47 Under what conditions should a traveling library be sent out? Should any fee be charged?

Pres.—We propose to make up, for instance, 100 volumes, put them in suitable oak book cases and ship them with printed annotated catalogs, directions and blanks for circulating, and lend to a community, thus leading it on to form a library of its own. We shall require from a responsible real estate owner a guarantee that those books shall be returned with pay for all damages except reasonable wear; that the books shall be accessible not less than so many hours per week and that a simple report shall be made as to what has been done with them. Thus any community may have a library for six months, if a responsible man will guarantee its safety and a competent person will act as librarian without pay. Will it not be more useful instead of sending $100 in cash to send instead, say, four times a year a collection of $100 worth of new, fresh books to be kept three months; so that the people may have a chance to read those books and retain any they specially like and will pay for? Will it do the community more good to have four fresh collections come in a year or to have one come and stay permanently? The great secret in putting life in a public library is in putting in fresh books.

In apportionment of money we say every town shall raise an equal amount. In lending these libraries is it enough to say that the town shall pay for transportation both ways. In other words, we lend you these books without charge. Your town contributes its share by paying the incidental expenses.

Prin. F: L. Gamage — We have two book clubs in Oxford and just this very principle has appeared. We have 40 new books in each club every year, they have been running 10 years, and the interest to-day is greater than it was 10 years ago and is steadily growing. It is all caused by just the fact of getting a new lot of books frequently. At the end of the year we have an auction and sell off these 40 books. If in the lot there are a number of books that we particularly desire, we go to the auction and buy them. It stirs up interest and keeps up the club. I believe the best thing that can be done is to send the fresh books frequently.

Prin. R. S. Keyser — That is not a good plan for school libraries. It takes a long time to work up an interest in good books. Only after one boy has read a book and really enjoyed it and has recommended it to another boy can you get the public interested in the book. It takes a long time if a book is a good book. If it is a story book they become interested very quickly. For my own school I know that $100 worth of books would be worth three times as much to us as $400 worth of books changed four times a year.

Pres. — If we send the 100 volumes the librarian or principal would discover among them five or 10 books he specially wants to keep. He can retain them from the collection or he can get them elsewhere. This refers to a public rather than a school library, though we may offer lending libraries to our regents' academies also.

W: R. Eastman—In this matter of traveling libraries some want new and some want old books. Are we not reaching a point where we need both? We want the town to do something, and in both laws it is expected that the town shall do its part. Under this new appropriation the regents seem to have it in their power to offer bounty for the organization of new libraries. Any town that appropriates anything, $50 or $100, can have a similar amount granted by the regents from the $25,000. If the town will organize a library and appropriate an amount of money the regents might match it by giving them a certain collection of books which they themselves may select. In addition, the regents offer them a traveling library. The question is whether it ought not to be a condition that organization be made before the traveling libraries can be had. Let them buy with their first appropriation books to be added permanently to the library, which shall be the seed, and then let the traveling libraries be lent for a few months.

Then there is the point of fee. I say charge a fee by all means. Let them pay a nominal amount to show their appreciation of the work done for them. As for transportation, some towns are 350 miles from Albany. The only way to reach that point is to make it obligatory to pay a fee of perhaps $10; that pays interest on the books, meets expenses and pays for the catalog cards, etc. I would say charge a $10 fee and let the regents' office pay the express both ways and thus put the distant towns on the same basis as those nearer Albany.

A. C. Hill—It seems to me that these traveling libraries would pave the way for the organization of a library; his suggestion is that the organization prepare the way for the traveling libraries.

R. B. Poole—This privilege might be withdrawn at the end of two or three years if a town did not organize.

Member—Organization should precede these traveling libraries. As I understand it, it is proposed to send them to small towns. I think a very wise suggestion would be to pay a fee of say $10 for each visit four times a year, $40; or is it $10 a year for the four visits?

Pres.— I think Mr. Eastman meant $10 for each $100 library.

Regents examinations in courses of English reading.

Pres.— We have added that subject lately and in some cases it has a most admirable effect. I had hoped that it might be found practicable to have 10 or 15 courses of reading in the best English literature so that any of the schools could select such a course as they should prefer. There are thousands of young and old people in this state who would read books recommended to them in that way, and would read them thoroughly if there were to be a state test at the end. That would be the best way to bring the schools in close contact with the libraries. We are ready to do whatever is best. Give us the benefit of your advice.

Sup't Sherman Williams — I know that that could be done. I know that it has been done in several schools. It is not a difficult thing to do. A great many bright girls on leaving school have nothing in particular to do; their work is not needed at home; they drop into having what they call a good time, which consists of rather frivolous social life and reading light literature. They lose more in two or three years after leaving school than they gain in the last two or three years of school.

Prin. W. E. Bunten, Ulster free academy, Rondout — I think the last suggestion is most valuable. It would help us very much indeed.

Member — It would encourage the pupils to do something for themselves. In my school this year I found that the young people with very little suggestion on my part went to work on this course in English reading, and without doing the reading in the class they were prepared to pass the examinations successfully, and I have no doubt they would go on with other courses in the same way. I found that pupils were also reading at their homes. Seven out of the eight pupils who did this work by themselves I think passed the examinations.

Pres.—Our theory is that every count in these courses of reading as in academic branches ought to represent 100 hours of solid work. There ought to be perhaps 20 courses. This is a kind of university extension that is most practical for us. Keep the hands of the principals and state institutions on this movement instead of having it run off to outside voluntary societies, correspondence schools, etc. We shall this fall, issue a circular describing details of reading courses and I will not anticipate it by further statements now. I believe it is one of the most important steps we have ever taken.

§ 50 Under what circumstances should books instead of money be furnished to libraries by the state. Can any part of the appropriation be spent more helpfully than in buying books to give or lend to libraries?

Pres.—Every library can buy ordinary books for two-thirds retail price if they buy $100 worth or upward. Publishers will furnish 50 copies of the same book in one order at half price sometimes. Those books can be shipped in bulk by cheap freight to the point where they are to be distributed. You can get much more for your money in this way. Judge Draper has expressed the opinion that so much could be gained in this way that it was desirable for us to follow the example of Massachusetts and New Hampshire and send books rather than money. It seems to me that the wisest policy is to offer the option and say to every library: We can send either books or money; you can select the books or we will do it for you and send them to you at lowest wholesale cost.

This is the most serious problem before us and while we are in doubt I shall oppose actually handling the books. It is clear from 50 years of sad experience that if money is given to the local managers it will fail to accomplish its full work. On the other hand, we should hesitate to adopt a plan even resembling setting up a wholesale state bookstore for the benefit of New York libraries. We shall be forced to send books from our duplicate department, gifts sent in for distribution, and books in exchange, but I think beyond this that we may devise a system of supervision to guard against paying too high prices as we guard against unwise selection. We must scrupulously avoid favoritism or commendation of any dealer or publisher ; but from, say, 20 book houses and publishers offering competitive prices we might take the names of the three who would agree to furnish books at the largest discount. We could then announce that any of these three houses would supply at certain rates. If libraries could do as well with local dealers, of course they would buy at home ; but they would know just what was possible after the most careful competitive bids. It is a consideration that the local bookstore should be sustained, but is it not a greater consideration that the limited money available for buying books for the public should be spent in a way to give the greatest public benefit rather than for advancing the interests of any one firm. We shall consider this subject very carefully before taking any action.

SCHOOL LIBRARY LAW

Should the local academy or high school receive the appropriations and maintain a single library for the use of both academy and public?

Pres.—The high school or union school drawing money from this school library fund would have to spend that money on a pedagogic reference library for school use, but it might also maintain a free library with grants from the public library money or from the regents money ; e. g., Albany has a reference library in one room and a circulating library in another.

W: R. Eastman — Do we understand that school authorities do not include academies ?

Pres.—This law is for the common school system. School authorities means the board of education in cities and union schools and the trustees in districts. It includes tax-supported high schools and academic departments of union schools, but not endowed academies.

I have found some of the most successful libraries to be those that were thrown open and were at once the university library and the public library ; e. g., at Amsterdam and Strassburg universities. The plan has proved a great success. The first question is, can we by combining forces with the academy make it the center of direct instruction, and also the center for library interests as it is the natural center for university extension courses or classes. The public ought to look to the local academy as the center for all educating influences of the community.

Member—I represent a school which is a union free school and also an academy. We are anxious to extend our library. We can get an appropriation for a school library if it can also be a public library. We have an annual appropriation from our district which we hope to have the state duplicate; but if the library is not a public library the interest in it will be so far diminished that it is not likely that we can secure an appropriation.

Pres.—This law authorizes the school or other library to turn their books over to a public library.

Member—In our case we can hold our library as it is if we can let the public in to the use of fiction.

Pres.—This is provided for in § 7. Judge Draper thought the public libraries should report to the regents and be affiliated with the state library. If you keep your library as a piece of the school apparatus it must be kept in the building. If you want to make it a public library your school authorities can appoint three trustees who will run it as a public library. I know of nothing that prevents a circulating library from being in a school building, but it can not be under the public school trustees as such. All public circulating libraries hereafter report to the regents, while school district trustees report to the superintendent of public instruction.

Sup't J. M. Dolph, Port Jervis—In 1884 we had no district library but set about getting one. The district made an appropriation of $1000 and we obtained the same amount from the regents. This library has not been in the school building yet; it has been in rooms hired for the purpose. We have no trustees except our board of education, who are owners and controllers as representatives of the district. We have expended about $1000 a year from that time to this in adding to our library, and we have now a library of which our town is proud and for which we are glad to vote money. We have at the same time kept in one of our school buildings a reference library bought from time to time. Last year we bought $1000 worth of books, which are cataloged with the other books and are marked reference books and kept at the academy. In our case the board of education has entire charge of the library and has had from the beginning. It appears to me, if I read this law correctly, that our board of education has to legislate itself out of office as a board having charge of the library and that it must appoint or elect trustees to have charge of a circulating library.

Pres.— If it is a high school library getting its money from the regents it can continue, but if the library draws a share of the $55,000 it must appoint new trustees for the public library but the school board retains charge of the school library. The circulating library reports to the regents while the school library reports to the superintendent of public instruction.

Sup't Dolph — They always have reported to the regents.

Member — As I understand this law, the money that comes with the public school money from the state superintendent must be expended for our reference library. We must keep that reference library in the school building in charge of a teacher and we must sever the connection between the reference and circulating libraries.

Pres.— Yes. The books that belong to the school apparatus of the public schools are reported to the other department, but the public library system comes entirely over to the regents in connection with the state library.

Prin. A. C. Hill— Is there any difference between a high school library and a common school library ?

Pres.— The point is simply if you draw money from this $55,000 for your high school you must put it into reference books and report them to the state superintendent, but he has nothing to do with books bought from regents' or public library money. Our study was on the public library law. This school library law as passed was a compromise bill. It will be revised this coming year with the public school law and I hope we can then clear it of this confusion. Union schools and high schools draw money from the department of public instruction ; but as they report to the regents on other matters they ought to report also as to their school library and we shall try to have this simplified.

Prin. R. S. Keyser—Our building has one suitable library room. We have just one library and that library started from an appropriation from the people. The idea is to use it as a district library. Every now and then when we come to a special topic in the regents' examinations, we lay out a portion of the books that are wanted. Otherwise all the books except cyclopedias and dictionaries are circulated. If we should say to the public, you can not get any books from our library, we should never get another cent appropriated for school libraries.

Pres.—Under this law your trustees can appoint trustees to take care of the circulating department, and then you will be competent to draw money from the public library fund. The law does not forbid your school to allow the new library trustees to keep these circulating books in the building.

Member—Is the principal of the school ex-officio librarian of this circulating department?

Pres.—No.

Member—If he should be, he becomes so on the salary the trustees choose to give him?

Pres.—That is wholly a matter between him and the trustees. The law says nothing.

W: R. Eastman—Is there any public library fund available after October 1, 1893?

Pres.—The law reads "Such sum as shall have been appropriated by the legislature as public library money shall be paid annually by the treasurer, on the warrant of the controller, from the income of the United States deposit fund, according to an apportionment to be made for the benefit of free libraries by the regents in accordance with their rules and authenticated by their seal." We think it wiser to come to the legislature every year and report the condition of affairs. If you fix the amount in the law you are tied down to that. For this year's work in the other bill you will see that § 10 provides that for the fiscal year beginning October 1892 there shall be paid $25,000 for public library money. It was useless to ask the legislature for a dollar. Those who were interested said, "we are willing to do these things but you must not ask anything that will swell the budget this year." They consented for this year to let $25,000 out of the annual $55,000 be used for public library money. Next year we must go to the legislature, report, and ask them for such appropriation as seems necessary. This was the only way in which we could get the law passed this year.

We have this matter in shape now to go ahead. We want to follow it up specially in the first three months of the next fiscal year. When the legislature comes we shall have had only three or four months start. We want not only to get it going for its own sake but for the sake of showing it to the legislature. Stimulate people as far as you can to go to work next fall. We will send some one to your town from the state library for a day or two to look over the ground and give such assistance as he can, and nothing will be charged beyond his traveling expenses. If you have some one for a number of weeks we will make just charges enough to guard against criticism. Let us do all we can to push this public library matter along this coming year.
